Bomb Kills Two Diners

LONDON (AP) — A terrorist bomb shattered another fashionable London restaurant Tuesday night, killing two persons and injuring 17, Scotland Yard said.

Detective Chief Supt. James Neville, deputy head of the Yard's bomb squad, said a middle-aged man and a woman were killed, five persons were seriously injured and 12 were slightly injured.

No identities were immediately released.

"Everything is upside down, shattered, and nothing's left," said Maryse Chirent, the assistant manager, after the blast at Walton's restaurant in the chic Chelsea district. "Even the ceiling has fallen."

"There was blood everywhere," waiter Max Bundt added.

Walton's, known as one of London's most expensive restaurants, was reported crowded with late evening diners when the bomb went off.

The blast was the second at an exclusive London restaurant in a week and the latest in a bombing campaign blamed on Irish terrorists that began Aug. 27. Six persons had been killed and 170 injured prior to Tuesday's bombing.

The primary targets have been the eating places and residential areas of the titled and rich.

Last Wednesday, terrorists hurled a bomb through a window of Scott's, an upper-crust gathering place in Mayfair, killing one person and wounding 15. Scott's is opposite the Trattoria Fiore, an Italian restaurant shattered by an explosion Oct. 29 that injured 28 persons.

Police blame the bombings on elements of the Irish Republican Army who want to force Britain out of Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and unify the province with the Irish Republic.

The Walton's blast came hours after police investigating a 400-pound cache of explosives found in an apartment in Southampton said they believe they have uncovered the supply line for the terrorists — the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2.

Authorities said the ship was probably used to smuggle explosives from New York to the south England port city, and they asked the FBI to investigate the U.S. connection.

A deck-by-deck search of the ship by 100 policemen and soldiers using trained dogs and explosive-detecting equipment ended Tuesday without uncovering any explosives aboard.

Forty-five persons were detained for questioning in Southampton after police found the 400 pounds of explosives in a dockside apartment Sunday. They said the explosives were of the same kind found in a terrorist bomb that recently failed to explode in London.

The bloodiest attack in the current bombing campaign was a Sept. 5 blast at the London Hilton Hotel in which two persons died and 63 were injured

On Oct. 13, a 30-pound bomb was found and defused at Lockets Restaurant near the House of Commons. The restaurant is used by many lawmakers and senior officials.

Rumors Affecting Judgments About Pershing—Carstens

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Milford — Unfounded rumors are affecting Nebraska state senators' judgments about defunct Pershing College, Gary Carstens of Beatrice declared Tuesday.

And the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Board is "maybe being victimized a little bit" because of the gossip coloring its attempt to acquire the Beatrice campus, he said.

"We feel we made the right decision, based on the facts, and I think we have," said Carstens, board facilities committee chairman. But "protective" attitudes are making disposition of Pershing difficult, he said.

Carstens made the remarks to the board on the eve of legislative hearings Wednesday in Fairbury and Thursday in Beatrice, regarding Se Tech's acquisition of Pershing as a replacement for its Fairbury campus.

Board Chairman Robert Wekesser of Lincoln agreed with Carstens, saying some news reports "maligned" him and stated his position on Fairbury's future inaccurately.

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents kicked the Pershing question to the 1976 Legislature for an answer. NU would be the property conduit from owner NU Foundation to SeTech.

In meeting with state senators about the issue, Carstens said they indicated it was a "big mistake in designating area boards" to command local control in deciding on the unanticipated Pershing offer, that is, to close and open campuses.

Carstens said some senators believe the only way to accomplish coordination among technical community colleges is to replace them "under the thumb of the Legislature."

But "I am diametrically opposed to that view," that the Legislature can do a "more effective job and know what's going on" better than the six community college area boards, he said.

Referring to the 7-4 SeTech board decision two months ago to negotiate to acquire Pershing, Earl Kraft of Lincoln and Loretta Draper of Plattsmouth said their affirmative votes were nonpolitical, and based only on the needs and service comparison study on Fairbury and Pershing.

Waverly board member Betty Schlaphoff noted she voted against seeking Pershing, but urged the board to proceed with unity.

The board reviewed a proposed statement — not made available to reporters — which Wekesser and SeTech President Robert S. Eicher will present at the Education Committee hearings.

Lloyd Wright of Reynolds, who also voted in the 7-4 minority, said the statement is "completely biased," pro-Pershing and anti-Fairbury.

But board Vice Chairman G. Alan Dunlap of Milford said the statement represents the board majority view, and condenses the prevote study on Pershing. Even Ted Doyle of Fairbury, the staunchest anti-Pershing board member, acknowledged that was true.

The board discussed but made no decision on submitting a minority report to the Unicameral committee. Yet Doyle severely castigated NU President D. B. Varner for his role and position to aid SeTech in acquiring Pershing.

That prompted Lincolnite Don Nielsen — the staunchest pro-Pershing board member — to rebuke Doyle, saying there's "no sense" in stirring up trouble "just because the vote didn't go your way." Doyle sat silent.

Board members mentioned repeatedly Adams State Sen. George Burrow's vocal opposition to SeTech acquiring Pershing and to local board control.

"If we've made any mustake, maybe it's not in voting the way we did" regarding Pershing-Fairbury. Mrs. Schlaphoff said, "but in not pulling the Legislature along with us."

UNL Parking Violators Get Boot

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Campus Police are giving parking ticket violators the boot.

The rhino boot, that is.

And the practice may spread to the Lincoln Police Department.

Sometimes called the "Denver boot" after the Denver, Colo., firm that manufactures them, rhino boots are steel devices which clamp to car wheels, immobilizing the vehicles. When properly installed, they can be removed only with a special key.

Booting is a substitute for towing.

If violators fail to appeal or pay a parking ticket issued by Campus Police within 20 business days, their cars are placed on an impoundment list and "booted" at the first opportunity, John Duve, UNL parking and traffic coordinator, said.

To have the boot removed, the violator must contact Campus Police and pay his outstanding fines.

Lincoln Police Inspector Dean Leitner said LPD thinks booting is a "good idea" and is studying booting ordinances passed by other cities.

"When we find a suitable ordinance, we'll ask the city attorney's office to introduce it (to the City Council)," he said.

Duve said Campus Police has used rhino boots since the end of September when 10 were purchased for $120-$150 each. Rhino boots also are being used by Omaha's Creighton University and the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

Initially, 15 to 20 cars were booted each day, he said. Now Campus Police boot an average of 10 a day.

Booting has been controversial. A Johnson County, Iowa, district judge ruled last week that immobilizing a car with rhino boots without giving the owner a chance to pay or appeal his fine violated due process and was unconstitutional.

The ruling stemmed from a lawsuit against Iowa City, Iowa, whose police department was booting some cars at the time of the violation.

Duve said cars at UNL are not booted until the violator has been ticketed, given a reminder and allowed 20 days to appeal or pay his fine.

ASUN President Jim Say said students have mixed reactions to rhino boots.

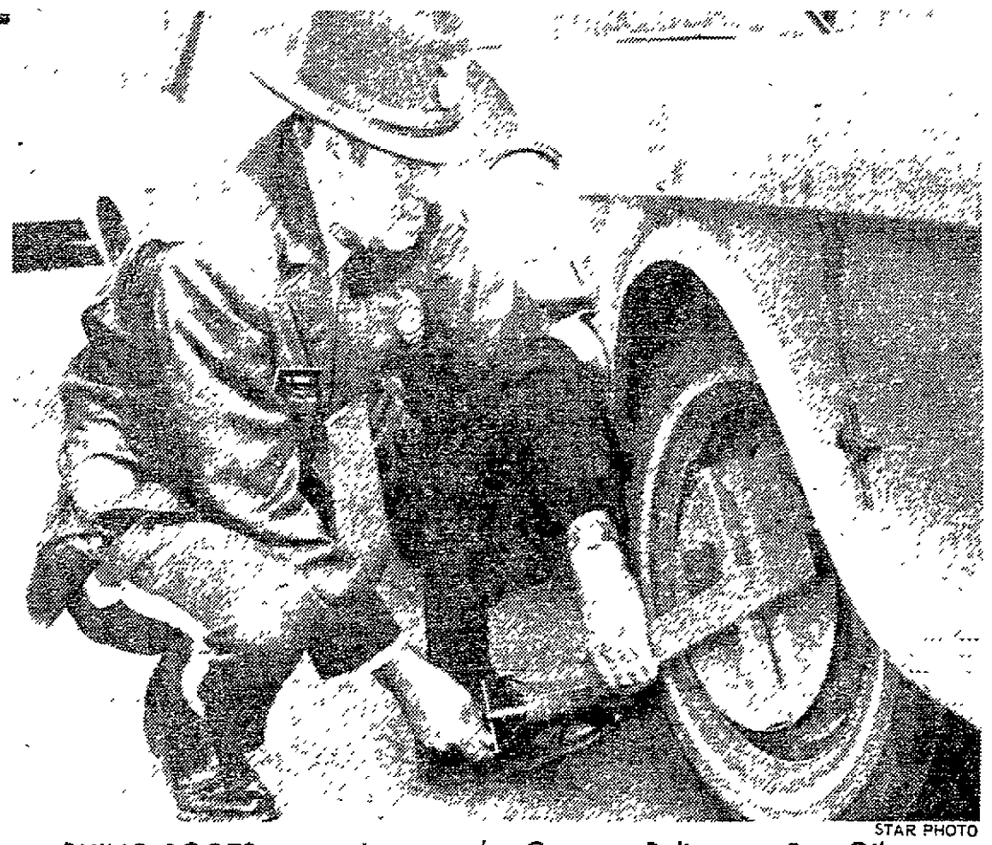

"The bad thing is that they can do it (boot a car) if you have just one ticket you haven't paid — and maybe you lost it," he said. Say said some students also find it inconvenient to have the boot removed when they are in a hurry.

He said the good point is that the university no longer withholds grade transcripts from students with unpaid fines.

Duve said booting is the "most efficient and least expensive" way to collect outstanding fines. Violators are charged $5 to have the boot removed rather than $12.50 to $15 for towing, he said.

Duve said damage to a booted car is unlikely unless it is moved with the boot on.

"As long as the car is properly tagged (with notices that the car has been booted) and the boot has not been improperly installed, the driver normally would be considered liable if he tried to drive," he said. "But if we gave no notification, we certainly would be liable."

Intelligence Committee Won't Name CIA Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee agreed Tuesday not to name a former CIA official linked to plots to kill foreign leaders so its final report would not be delayed by a court battle.

In a surprise reversal of its earlier position, the committee notified the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that it would delete the former official's name from its report.

That action abruptly ended legal efforts by the ex-CIA employe to force the committee to keep his name secret.

The committee's 400-page report is at the Government Printing Office where employes were waiting for a court decision on whether to print it with or without the former official's name.

The select committee formed to investigate alleged abuses by U.S. intelligence agencies plans to make public its report on Thursday after a secret Senate session.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, ranking Republican on the committee, said he and Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, decided that rather than take a chance of delaying issuance of the report because of a court battle they "should go ahead and do it this way."

Tower emphasized that the committee was not acting in response to any of the legal arguments raised in the suit.

The committee decision was disclosed in a brief notice issued by the appeals court clerk which was headed "Anonymous, Appellate v. Thomas F. McCormick, Public Printer Government Printing Office, et al."

The notice said, "Counsel for appellant has been advised that the Senate Select Committee has voluntarily and unilaterally reconsidered its action concerning Anonymous. Based upon such representation of the committee's chief counsel, the application on behalf of Anonymous is now moot. The appeal is therefore dismissed."

While never named in court documents, the former official was represented by attorneys who appeared before the committee on behalf of Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, former director of technical services for the CIA. Published reports have named Gottlieb as a participant in alleged CIA plots to poison Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and Congolese leader Patrice Lumumba.

The committee confirmed that the former official was one of two witnesses who had been granted immunity. The only two witnesses who received such a grant were Gottlieb and Robert Maheu, a former aide to Howard Hughes. Maheu was represented by a Las Vegas, Nev., attorney and has publicly admitted his role in a 1961 plot to kill Castro.

The suit was filed last weekend, and on Monday U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell rejected the request for a temporary restraining order.

Gesell said he agreed with the contention that publication of the former official's name could place his life in danger, but "the public interest greatly outweighs any private interest of the individual."

ETV To Air Report On CIA

A special one-hour program will be aired at 10 p.m. Thursday by the Nebraska ETV Network on the report made by the Senate Intelligence Committee to the full U.S. Senate.

The committee report is to include the role, if any, of the CIA in assassination plots.

Lincoln Police 'Help As Well As Arrest'

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

"It's nice to know that the police are interested in helping as well as arresting."

That comment from an anonymous Lincoln couple was in response to the Lincoln Police Department's Drug Intervention Project, one of many services available to juveniles in Lincoln and Lancaster County, one of many services discussed at the Tuesday night Pieces of a City presentation on youth advocacy.

The drug program is just one of "many exciting things" which are happening in the juvenile division of the police department according to Sgt. Gary Hoffman, a member of a panel which discussed the problems of juveniles in the city.

Other programs include the use of a school resource officer and a summer youth camp "where youngsters can get to know police under a less tense situation," Hoffman added.

"Very few juveniles in Lincoln go to jail after their initial contact," Hoffman noted as he explained how many can be counseled and released to the custody of their parents, depending on the seriousness of the offense. Others are sent to the detention home for referral to other agencies, he added.

Interagency cooperation was stressed by all panel members as being the thing which has given juveniles in Lincoln and the surrounding area a bit more of an even break than in some cities.

In view of the fact that, nationally, over 44% of the persons responsible for all crimes are juveniles, "we're pretty lucky around here," said Jim Arnot, director of the Youth Service System.

Nancy Bare, director of Protective Services, outlined the implications of the Nebraska child protection law as it applies to persons her department deals with.

Following initial contact with families who are suspected of some form of child abuse, a contact made by police officers, one of six case workers will visit the home and determine what form of abuse the party has caused.

"The most prevalent cause of child abuse is a socio-economic one," Ms. Bare said. "Persons living at the poverty level just can't cope with the problems of a complex society, and many times take it out on the kids," she added.

"We aim at preservation of the family unit as a major objective," she said, adding that her agency works with the parents in an attempt to teach them to cope with their problems caused by outside problems so that the children won't suffer.

"In many cases we wind up trying to make new parents out of the people," she said.

Juveniles have the right to an attorney when they appear in juvenile courts, and that's something "we usually fight for, the juvenile's rights," said Marilyn Beggs, a juvenile court probation officer.

Recent legislation in Nebraska stipulates mandatory court appearance for juvenile offenders 16 years and under, and "we'd like to see that raised to 18," she said.

Juvenile offenders have their rights explained to them and are offered the opportunity to have a lawyer if they can obtain one, or have one appointed for them, she added.

Hearings may be either formal or informal with the former in the presence of a judge, not a jury, something which is "often a good break for the person," she explained.

"Our jury system calls for a trial by jury, but it wouldn't be a jury of peers for a juvenile, so they usually fare better with a judge," she said.

"The only time we want to lockup juveniles is to protect them from themselves," she added.

"It's a lot more difficult to deal with 13-year-olds who think they ought to be allowed to go to beer parties than it is to deal with a kid who has stolen a car," she said.

"My ideal for the future of law enforcement with juveniles in this area would be that we have five or six alternatives to confinement to choose from in dealing with the problem," she concluded.

Franco Suffers New Bleeding

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, gravely ill for a month, suffered massive new internal bleeding and heart flutters Tuesday and sank into critical condition, his doctors reported. A high government source said Franco also had suffered brain damage.

Plans for a state funeral for the 82-year-old generalissimo were accelerated.

Doctors gave Franco more blood transfusions and said they had lowered his body temperature to 91.4 degrees from the normal 98.6 for "clinical reasons."

In late afternoon the medical team said there had been no evidence of additional bleeding for some hours. Earlier it had reported the abdominal hemorrhaging was "intermittent."

The doctors also said they noted "sporadic disturbances" in Franco's heart beat and added that he had been connected again to a kidney machine.

The general, wasted away by his 33-day illness and three major operations to remove stomach ulcers and stop the bleeding, apparently was too weak for further surgery.

Franco Suffers New Bleeding

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, gravely ill for a month, suffered massive new internal bleeding and heart flutters Tuesday and sank into critical condition, his doctors reported. A high government source said Franco also had suffered brain damage.

Plans for a state funeral for the 82-year-old generalissimo were accelerated.

Doctors gave Franco more blood transfusions and said they had lowered his body temperature to 91.4 degrees from the normal 98.6 for "clinical reasons."

In late afternoon the medical team said there had been no evidence of additional bleeding for some hours. Earlier it had reported the abdominal hemorrhaging was "intermittent."

The doctors also said they noted "sporadic disturbances" in Franco's heart beat and added that he had been connected again to a kidney machine.

The general, wasted away by his 33-day illness and three major operations to remove stomach ulcers and stop the bleeding, apparently was too weak for further surgery.

FBI Campaigned Against Dr. King

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of a Senate committee said Tuesday that the FBI waged a campaign against the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., including sending a letter which King interpreted as a suggestion he commit suicide.

The campaign to destroy King's influence also included the planting of 16 electronic bugs and eight wiretaps and an effort to hand pick and promote a successor to him as the nation's most influential black leader, committee lawyers said.

The disclosures came as the top lawyers of the Senate Intelligence Committee detailed FBI efforts to investigate, infiltrate and discredit thousands of persons in groups ranging from the Ku Klux Klan and the Communist party to the women's liberation movement.

Chief counsel F.A.O. Schwarz III and minority counsel Curtis Smothers said the full extent of the bureau's activities may never be known because most of director J. Edgar Hoover's personal files were destroyed shortly after his death in 1972.

The staff lawyers gave the most complete account to date of the FBI's counterintelligence, or Cointel programs, which were aimed at disrupting the personal lives of members of alleged terro st, radical or new left groups by causing them to lose their jobs, fight among themselves or be arrested by local police.

They documented several attempts at destroying the marriages of such persons through anonymous letters written by FBI agents.

In the case of King, Smothers testified that a draft of the anonymous letter his wife received was found at FBI headquarters in the file of deputy director William Sullivan.

They said Sullivan maintains the draft letter was planted in his files by persons attempting to discredit him.

But they added the FBI does not dispute its authorship of the letter or the fact it was delivered to King.

King received the letter just 34 days before he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize in 1965, an event which Schwarz said generated intense FBI efforts to find information to discredit King.

Schwarz said the letter "includes materials the FBI had gathered illegally or improperly through tapes and bugs and so forth." Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said some of the bugs were installed in King's hotel room.

AP

SCHWARZ . . . chief counsel.

Schwarz said later the material sent King with the letter was a tape recording gathered by illegal and improper electronic bugs and telephone taps containing information embarassing to King. Other sources said the information was of a nature that could be used to blackmail King.

No senator or staff member would disclose the nature of the information, and one senator said the committee was trying not to create a situation in which the purpose of the FBI to discredit King might actually be realized.

The letter read in part:

"King, there is only one thing left for you to do. You know what it is. You have just 34 days in which to do. (This exact number has been selected for a specific reason.) It has definite practical significance. You are done. There is but one way out for you."

The rest of the letter was not read because of privacy reasons, the lawyers said.

They said King himself interpreted the letter as a clear suggestion that he commit suicide.

Smothers read from FBI memos in which he said the bureau outlined its objective of taking King "off his pedestal and reducing him completely in influence."

The bureau earmarked a man of its own choosing, a person who was not a civil rights leader, to take King's place as "a new national Negro leader."

Schwarz and Smothers later declined to identify the person concerned, saying that he asked to remain anonymous.

That person was never told by the FBI of the role some proposed he play and was "shocked and astonished" when committee staff members relayed the information to him, Smothers said.

A former FBI agent, meanwhile, told the House Intelligence Committee across the Capitol that he believes he was asked to help the FBI try to prevent the election of black Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., in 1972.

Arthur Murtagh told the House committee his supervisor in the FBI Atlanta bureau told him Washington wanted him to obtain samples of Young's handwriting.

Murtagh said he refused and told the supervisor, "I knew damned well it was going to be used in an unrecorded counterintelligence operation to destroy Mr. Young's chances of getting elected to the House of Representatives."

In other testimony, a New Jersey contractor said he reported plans for an assault on the Camden, N.J., draft office in 1971 to the FBI and asserted that the FBI turned him into a provocateur to encourage the raid.

Robert Hardy said he tried to get the FBI to stop the raid in advance but instead said 100 FBI agents were brought into the area to wait for the event.

He asserted that the FBI told him "that the new orders had come directly from the little White House in California."

The House committee's chairman, Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., disclosed that an FBI report shows either a telephone call or some other communication to Pike's administrative assistant was intercepted by the FBI apparently in 1972.

Deputy associate FBI director James B. Adams listened to Pike's account and told the chairman he had never heard of the incident and knew nothing about it.

Adams later told the committee that the FBI does not use agent provocateurs to entrap people into committing crimes but conceded it does permit people so inclined to commit crimes on their own.

N.Y. Times Summary

No Nations Cited

Washington — The State Department has reported to Congress that it has cited no foreign nations for gross violations of human rights because it found "no adequately objective way" of distinguishing which countries engaged in more reprehensible violations than others. The 1974 foreign assistance act included a "sense of the Congress" amendment calling on the President to reduce significantly or terminate except in extraordinary circumstances American security assistance to any government that consistently engaged in gross violations. Aides said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had decided that since almost all countries do violate human rights, it served no purpose to single out American allies and friends for criticism.

CIA Appropriation Hidden

Washington — An appropriation of $750 million for the CIA is hidden in the defense appropriations bill under the title "Other Procurement, Air Force," according to officials with direct knowledge. Appropriations for other intelligence agencies are tucked away in the same bill under categories like "contingencies, defense," "worldwide command and control system," and "procurement, defense agencies" and total around $4 billion for what is called the national intelligence program. This does not include about $2 billion for tactical intelligence by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Joint Insurance Studied

Washington — The Department of Housing and Urban Development is studying a proposal to join the states in insuring housing bonds as a means to encourage construction, according to HUD Secretary Carla A. Hills.

Reductions May Be Only 1¢

Washington — Price reductions for consumers under the compromise energy bill expected to reach President Ford next month are expected to amount to only about a penny a gallon instead of the 3½ cents cited by lawmakers last month, according to congressional and administration aides.

Carey Plan First—Ford

Washington — President Ford told the Republican congressional delegation from New York that if the New York State Legislature approved Gov. Hugh L. Carey's fiscal reform plan, he would be sympathetic toward short-term financial interest to New York City.

World Economic System Threatened

New York — The international economic system is threatened by increasing protectionist pressures from industrialized countries and the developing world's demands for a "new international economic order," bankers and government officials attending the 62nd annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council were warned by Olav Gundlach of Denmark, a member of the European Economic Community Commission.

His Funeral Is Just Like He Wanted It

Lakeland, Fla. (AP) — Oliver "Georgia Boy" Hurley's funeral was just the way he wanted it.

The 81-year-old dishwasher was buried with two dollars in his pocket, a bottle of whiskey in his hand and six barmaids as pallbearers.

"He died with a drink in his hand, leaning on a woman and that's the way he always said he wanted to be buried," a friend said after the weekend funeral.

Senate Votes To Shut Down ABM Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — After voting to shut down the nation's only antiballistic-missile system, the Senate passed a defense appropriation bill Tuesday that is $8.3 billion below what President Ford requested.

The bill would appropriate $112.6 billion for national defense during the 15 months that began July 1. The House voted $111.8 billion.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference which will work out a compromise between the two versions, which differ on more than 200 points.

The ABM had been approved in 1969 after much debate and was supposed to be the ultimate defense against the Soviet Union.

But in 1972, the United States and Soviet Union agreed to limit themselves to two sites, each with no more than 100 missiles, then agreed again last year to cut that to one site. The Senate ratified that treaty just last week.

The only facility in the United States is at Grand Forks, N.D., and there is one in the Soviet Union at Moscow.

Before passing the bill on an 87-7 vote, the Senate:

— On a 52-47 vote ordered that the $6-billion antiballistic-missile (ABM) installation at Grand Forks, N.D., be mothballed, except for its sophisticated radar which would be used to track spacecraft and enemy missiles.

— Refused, 55 to 38, to cut $568 million from the spending bill. The specific cuts would have been made by the Pentagon.

— Agreed by voice vote to phase out the federal subsidy to military commissaries — the food stores available to military personnel and retirees where costs average 23% less than those available to civilians.

The huge appropriation bill was passed by the Senate in virtually the same form as it emerged from the Armed Services Committee.

Except for the $69-million cut in the subsidy for commissaries, the only spending cut was removal of $5.6 million the committee had included for flight testing of the Enforcer aircraft.

The committee had restored funds cut by the House for the Trident submarine missile system, the SAM-D air-defense missile system and for the AWACS airborne warning system.

The Senate panel slashed $114 million that the House had voted for research on the B1 bomber but agreed with the House on a $132.8-million appropriation for the F18 lightweight Navy fighter plane.

The Senate bill includes $90.78 billion for the current fiscal year, which began on July 1, and $21.8 billion for the three-month transitional period ending Oct. 1, 1976.

Layoffs Protested

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — Some 300 employes demonstrated at the Cudahy Co. meat-packing plant in protest of temporary layoffs that have idled the facility for four and a half months.

FREMONT STREET
...An Improvement Plan

Citizen participation is an essential element in Lincoln's street planning process. That's why your Department of Public Works is asking for your opinion on the future of Fremont Street. Within the next few weeks, you will have two more opportunities to become involved in the planning process.

On November 28th, a draft Planning Study Report on Fremont Street, 48th to 70th, will be available to interested citizens. This report describes proposed street improvements and identifies the degree of study required to assess the social, economic and environmental impacts of the project. Citizens will have 30 days to submit written comments on the report.

Then, on December 11th at 7:30 p.m., a neighborhood information meeting will be held at Dawes School, 49th and Colfax. Public Works personnel will be on hand to discuss Fremont proposals.

A Fremont Street draft Planning Study Report can be obtained by contacting the Public Assistance Officer, Department of Public Works, County-City Building, Lincoln, Nebraska 68508, 473-6547. Written comments should also be forwarded to this office.

Few things in life worry a Volkswagen.
Gas shortage worry a Volkswagen?
Not while the VW Rabbit gets about 38 MPG highway and 24 MPG city.
In fact, if every car used as little gas as a Rabbit there wouldn't be any threat of a gas shortage to begin with.

Conflicts Bloody In Mexican Land Disputes

By VICENTE MORALES

Mexico City (AP) — Clashes are breaking out with increasing frequency between peasant land squatters and Mexican soldiers and police.

This year alone, more than 100 persons — peasants, soldiers, policemen and ranchers — have been killed in land disputes. Two governors have been forced to resign. Peasant unions say their people are clamoring for guns.

The government is trying to resolve the problem of too many people and not enough fertile land. Mexico, a country one-fifth the size of the United States and with 60 million people, is mostly desert, semi-arid, mountainous and jungled.

Agrarian Reform Law

President Luis Echeverria in the first five years of his six-year term launched a new agrarian reform law, created an agrarian reform ministry, increased federal spending for rural irrigation from $320 million to $1.7 billion a year and has initiated price supports for agricultural products.

However, the bloody confrontations continue.

Last May in the state of Hidalgo just north of Mexico City, peasants who had seized land ambushed authorities who had come to remove them. Seven policemen and six men the peasants said had been hired as gunmen by ranchers were killed.

Two months later in the same state, 20 trucks filled with gunmen swooped down on a peasant meeting. Six peasant leaders were killed.

Seven Peasants Killed

Last month seven peasants were killed in the Yaqui Valley in Sonora in a clash between 300 squatters and police and soldiers. A week later, another five peasants were killed in the southern state of Veracruz when landowners took up arms after a government judgment turned part of their property over to the peasants.

In a small village in southern Mexico several months ago peasants attacked a landowner in the main plaza and hacked him to death with machetes.

In Mexico City, peasants unable to make a living in the countryside are squatting on private property. Police at times persuade them to move by pulling down their cardboard and scrap lumber shanties at night.

An agrarian reform researcher with the University of Mexico, Rodolfo Stavenhagen, says agrarian reform has failed to lift peasants from poverty. Instead, the program has "transformed itself into an organism of political control and has spread corruption," he said in an interview.

The Mexican government has distributed 220 million acres of land to two millin peasants in the last half century. Some of the land is dry and sun-scorched desert.

In Sonora, where seven peasants were killed, there are 31,486 legal actions by peasants against 2,422 private holdings of up to 250 acres each.

Some of the claims are so entangled in dozens of years of buying, selling and of one person taking land from another at the point of a gun that no one probably ever could determine the rightful owner.

Some peasants feel that the only way to get land is to take it.

"They killed one of my sons and wounded two others," said Juan Tera who went to the Yaqui Valley five years ago looking for a piece of land. "But we are not going to abandon the fight.

"We have rights to the land and at least to a piece of the meat the land barons throw to their dogs."

Landowners Determined

The landowners are just as determined to hold onto their land.

"I have worked the land all my life," said one rancher in the spacious living room of his home in Ciudad Obregon in Sonora.

"If the authorities don't stop the invasion, we will."

Lucinda Castro, a medical student in Mexico City, has 247 acres of land in Sonora in her name.

"My father bought it 10 years ago and spent six cleaning the salty soil and digging up rocks in order to make it produce. We're not going to allow the lazy peasants to take it from us," she said.

Peasant leaders claim that much of the land is in the hands of absentee landowners.

Restriction Avoided

Mexican law prohibits any one person from holding more than 247 acres, but peasant leaders claim that families put excess acreage in the names of their wives, children, brothers, sisters and other relatives to get around the law.

According to government statistics, of 350,882 acres in the Yaqui Valley privately owned, 12% of these proprietors are not yet 16 years old, and 11% are between 16 and 20.

Statistics and promises by the government are of little consolation, however, to peasants who earn as little as 80 cents a day when they can find work.

"Since the massacre of the peasants, they won't give work to us organized farmhands," said Olegario Perez, 27. He was one of the 300 peasants who invaded a ranch in the Yaqui Valley.

"My grandfather fought in the revolution, looking for a piece of land that he never got," said another peasant from the Yaqui Valley, Tomas Jimenes. "I'll keep on looking for a plot, and I'll go off to another revolution in order to get it."

Henry Wallace Said Truman Small Man

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Former Vice President Henry Wallace called former President Harry Truman "a small opportunistic man" and compared J. Edgar Hoover to Nazi Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler.

The characterizations were made in the 42-volume diary of the former vice president, unsealed Tuesday on the 10th anniversary of his death.

The University of Iowa library, which has custody of the diary, released exerpts from the volumes giving Wallace's characterizations of some of his contemporaries.

Truman "is a small man of limited background who wants to do the right thing," Wallace wrote following a meeting between the two in August 1944. The meeting came after the Democratic convention where then-Vice President Wallace was dropped as Franklin D. Roosevelt's running mate.

"He is a small opportunistic man, a man of good instincts but, therefore, probably all the more dangerous," Wallace said of Truman. "As he moves out more in the public eye, he will get caught in the webs of his own making."

At another date, Wallace wrote that he had heard on "good authority" that FBI director Hoover continually had columnist Drew Pearson followed.

"Hoover specializes in building up a file against the various public figures and especially against the columnists," Wallace wrote.

Site Picketing Filibuster Ended

Washington (AP) — The Senate voted 62 to 37 Tuesday to curb a filibuster against a bill sought by construction unions to allow more widespread picketing in labor disputes.

The bill was expected to be passed Wednesday.

The legislation, which has been before Congress for 25 years, has been passed by the House. It would allow unions to picket an entire construction site in a dispute with one subcontractor.

Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both R-Neb., voted against limiting debate.

Hollywood (UPI) — Sidney Lumet will direct "They Shall Not Pass," a pre-World War II epic set in Europe, for Universal Pictures.

Public Broadcasting Called Male Bastion

Washington (UPI) — Federally financed public broadcasting employs far too few women either behind the scenes or on the air in such programs as "Sesame Street," the Corporation for Public Broadcasting said Tuesday in a report on its own performance.

A 141-page report commissioned by the CPB described the corporation as largely a male bastion, with few women in positions of corporate power and with men dominating the broadcast shows as well. It rated "Sesame Street," the popular educational program, as the most male-dominated children's show of all.

Caroline Isber, director of the CPB's National Task Force on Women, said there was a "consistent pattern" of de facto job segregation against women throughout the industry, although the discrimination may not have been deliberate.

"They seem to be conducting job segregation," she said. "Nobody really thought about the issue.

"We found overwhelming evidence of the existence of pervasive underrepresentation of women throughout the public broadcasting industry, both in employment and in program content."

Donald R. Quayle, senior CPB vice president for broadcasting, said the CPB board agreed with the study's findings and had ordered remedial steps. An initial report is due in three months.

Quayle said the CPB did not have control over local programming or employment, but would "attempt to persuade the rest of the industry," to follow the recommendations for employment of more females.

The study examined nationwide public radio and television programs for the week of Jan. 19-25 this year, as well as employment statistics at both national and local levels.

It showed 69% of the characters in childrens' programs for that week were male and 31 per cent were female.

" 'Sesame Street' had the smallest proportion of females and 'Carrascolendas' the largest," it said.

It said 78% of "Sesame Street" characters, including puppets, were male, as were more than 87% of announcers and narrators on the program.

In adult television programming, which included such events as a presidential news conference, captioned ABC news, and "America," 85% of those who appeared were men. Females fared slightly better in adult radio, with men comprising 77% of the participants.

The report said women held less than 30% of all jobs in public broadcasting and were not likely to hold a top executive position. Most were found in secretarial and clerical jobs.

Figures also showed less than 20% of governing boards of public television stations were women. On the CPB board itself, only 3 of the 15 spots are held by women.

Terrorists Take Credit For Sabotaging Meters

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New World Liberation Front, which has taken responsibility for numerous terrorist bombings in recent months, claims a new target — the city's parking meters.

Police said Tuesday they were investigating the group's claim that it poured liquid steel into the locks of several hundred parking meters in retaliation for a recent ticket-writing spree by officers.

The ticket blitz was prompted by police anger at voters for passing several antipolice propositions in the Nov. 4 election.

"They got 400 to 500 meters, including a bunch in front of police headquarters," said officer Bob Lenzis. "You can't prove who did it, but it does appear to be retaliation for all the tickets.

"Luckily the substance used wasn't too good, and we hope to have the meters back in operation in a few days," Lenzis said.

The liberation front, which is under investigation by the FBI for more than 20 bombings in the San Francisco Bay area in recent months, made their claim in a communique delivered to news media Monday. The communique was signed by the "Training Unit, Peoples Forces, New World Liberation Front." It read in part:

"If the San Francisco police who are acting like pigs and harassing the people for voting 'no confidence' do not cease their activities immediately, we will attempt to sabotage every parking meter in San Francisco, with the assistance of the hundreds or thousands of sisters and brothers who are tired enough with being pushed around by the pigs to start fighting back."

During one day of the blitz, police wrote 1,434 parking tickets, more than triple their daily average.

FBI Campaigned Against Dr. King

WASHINGTON (AP) — The staff of a Senate committee said Tuesday that the FBI waged a campaign against the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., including sending a letter which King interpreted as a suggestion he commit suicide.

The campaign to destroy King's influence also included the planting of 16 electronic bugs and eight wiretaps and an effort to hand pick and promote a successor to him as the nation's most influential black leader, committee lawyers said.

The disclosures came as the top lawyers of the Senate Intelligence Committee detailed FBI efforts to investigate, infiltrate and discredit thousands of persons in groups ranging from the Ku Klux Klan and the Communist party to the women's liberation movement.

Chief counsel F.A.O. Schwarz III and minority counsel Curtis Smothers said the full extent of the bureau's activities may never be known because most of director J. Edgar Hoover's personal files were destroyed shortly after his death in 1972.

The staff lawyers gave the most complete account to date of the FBI's counterintelligence, or Cointel programs, which were aimed at disrupting the personal lives of members of alleged terro st, radical or new left groups by causing them to lose their jobs, fight among themselves or be arrested by local police.

They documented several attempts at destroying the marriages of such persons through anonymous letters written by FBI agents.

In the case of King, Smothers testified that a draft of the anonymous letter his wife received was found at FBI headquarters in the file of deputy director William Sullivan.

They said Sullivan maintains the draft letter was planted in his files by persons attempting to discredit him.

But they added the FBI does not dispute its authorship of the letter or the fact it was delivered to King.

King received the letter just 34 days before he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize in 1965, an event which Schwarz said generated intense FBI efforts to find information to discredit King.

Schwarz said the letter "includes materials the FBI had gathered illegally or improperly through tapes and bugs and so forth." Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said some of the bugs were installed in King's hotel room.

AP

SCHWARZ . . . chief counsel.

Schwarz said later the material sent King with the letter was a tape recording gathered by illegal and improper electronic bugs and telephone taps containing information embarassing to King. Other sources said the information was of a nature that could be used to blackmail King.

No senator or staff member would disclose the nature of the information, and one senator said the committee was trying not to create a situation in which the purpose of the FBI to discredit King might actually be realized.

The letter read in part:

"King, there is only one thing left for you to do. You know what it is. You have just 34 days in which to do. (This exact number has been selected for a specific reason.) It has definite practical significance. You are done. There is but one way out for you."

The rest of the letter was not read because of privacy reasons, the lawyers said.

They said King himself interpreted the letter as a clear suggestion that he commit suicide.

Smothers read from FBI memos in which he said the bureau outlined its objective of taking King "off his pedestal and reducing him completely in influence."

The bureau earmarked a man of its own choosing, a person who was not a civil rights leader, to take King's place as "a new national Negro leader."

Schwarz and Smothers later declined to identify the person concerned, saying that he asked to remain anonymous.

That person was never told by the FBI of the role some proposed he play and was "shocked and astonished" when committee staff members relayed the information to him, Smothers said.

A former FBI agent, meanwhile, told the House Intelligence Committee across the Capitol that he believes he was asked to help the FBI try to prevent the election of black Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., in 1972.

Arthur Murtagh told the House committee his supervisor in the FBI Atlanta bureau told him Washington wanted him to obtain samples of Young's handwriting.

Murtagh said he refused and told the supervisor, "I knew damned well it was going to be used in an unrecorded counterintelligence operation to destroy Mr. Young's chances of getting elected to the House of Representatives."

In other testimony, a New Jersey contractor said he reported plans for an assault on the Camden, N.J., draft office in 1971 to the FBI and asserted that the FBI turned him into a provocateur to encourage the raid.

Robert Hardy said he tried to get the FBI to stop the raid in advance but instead said 100 FBI agents were brought into the area to wait for the event.

He asserted that the FBI told him "that the new orders had come directly from the little White House in California."

The House committee's chairman, Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., disclosed that an FBI report shows either a telephone call or some other communication to Pike's administrative assistant was intercepted by the FBI apparently in 1972.

Deputy associate FBI director James B. Adams listened to Pike's account and told the chairman he had never heard of the incident and knew nothing about it.

Adams later told the committee that the FBI does not use agent provocateurs to entrap people into committing crimes but conceded it does permit people so inclined to commit crimes on their own.

N.Y. Times Summary

No Nations Cited

Washington — The State Department has reported to Congress that it has cited no foreign nations for gross violations of human rights because it found "no adequately objective way" of distinguishing which countries engaged in more reprehensible violations than others. The 1974 foreign assistance act included a "sense of the Congress" amendment calling on the President to reduce significantly or terminate except in extraordinary circumstances American security assistance to any government that consistently engaged in gross violations. Aides said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had decided that since almost all countries do violate human rights, it served no purpose to single out American allies and friends for criticism.

CIA Appropriation Hidden

Washington — An appropriation of $750 million for the CIA is hidden in the defense appropriations bill under the title "Other Procurement, Air Force," according to officials with direct knowledge. Appropriations for other intelligence agencies are tucked away in the same bill under categories like "contingencies, defense," "worldwide command and control system," and "procurement, defense agencies" and total around $4 billion for what is called the national intelligence program. This does not include about $2 billion for tactical intelligence by the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Joint Insurance Studied

Washington — The Department of Housing and Urban Development is studying a proposal to join the states in insuring housing bonds as a means to encourage construction, according to HUD Secretary Carla A. Hills.

Reductions May Be Only 1¢

Washington — Price reductions for consumers under the compromise energy bill expected to reach President Ford next month are expected to amount to only about a penny a gallon instead of the 3½ cents cited by lawmakers last month, according to congressional and administration aides.

Carey Plan First—Ford

Washington — President Ford told the Republican congressional delegation from New York that if the New York State Legislature approved Gov. Hugh L. Carey's fiscal reform plan, he would be sympathetic toward short-term financial interest to New York City.

World Economic System Threatened

New York — The international economic system is threatened by increasing protectionist pressures from industrialized countries and the developing world's demands for a "new international economic order," bankers and government officials attending the 62nd annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council were warned by Olav Gundlach of Denmark, a member of the European Economic Community Commission.

His Funeral Is Just Like He Wanted It

Lakeland, Fla. (AP) — Oliver "Georgia Boy" Hurley's funeral was just the way he wanted it.

The 81-year-old dishwasher was buried with two dollars in his pocket, a bottle of whiskey in his hand and six barmaids as pallbearers.

"He died with a drink in his hand, leaning on a woman and that's the way he always said he wanted to be buried," a friend said after the weekend funeral.

Senate Votes To Shut Down ABM Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — After voting to shut down the nation's only antiballistic-missile system, the Senate passed a defense appropriation bill Tuesday that is $8.3 billion below what President Ford requested.

The bill would appropriate $112.6 billion for national defense during the 15 months that began July 1. The House voted $111.8 billion.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference which will work out a compromise between the two versions, which differ on more than 200 points.

The ABM had been approved in 1969 after much debate and was supposed to be the ultimate defense against the Soviet Union.

But in 1972, the United States and Soviet Union agreed to limit themselves to two sites, each with no more than 100 missiles, then agreed again last year to cut that to one site. The Senate ratified that treaty just last week.

The only facility in the United States is at Grand Forks, N.D., and there is one in the Soviet Union at Moscow.

Before passing the bill on an 87-7 vote, the Senate:

— On a 52-47 vote ordered that the $6-billion antiballistic-missile (ABM) installation at Grand Forks, N.D., be mothballed, except for its sophisticated radar which would be used to track spacecraft and enemy missiles.

— Refused, 55 to 38, to cut $568 million from the spending bill. The specific cuts would have been made by the Pentagon.

— Agreed by voice vote to phase out the federal subsidy to military commissaries — the food stores available to military personnel and retirees where costs average 23% less than those available to civilians.

The huge appropriation bill was passed by the Senate in virtually the same form as it emerged from the Armed Services Committee.

Except for the $69-million cut in the subsidy for commissaries, the only spending cut was removal of $5.6 million the committee had included for flight testing of the Enforcer aircraft.

The committee had restored funds cut by the House for the Trident submarine missile system, the SAM-D air-defense missile system and for the AWACS airborne warning system.

The Senate panel slashed $114 million that the House had voted for research on the B1 bomber but agreed with the House on a $132.8-million appropriation for the F18 lightweight Navy fighter plane.

The Senate bill includes $90.78 billion for the current fiscal year, which began on July 1, and $21.8 billion for the three-month transitional period ending Oct. 1, 1976.

Layoffs Protested

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — Some 300 employes demonstrated at the Cudahy Co. meat-packing plant in protest of temporary layoffs that have idled the facility for four and a half months.

FREMONT STREET

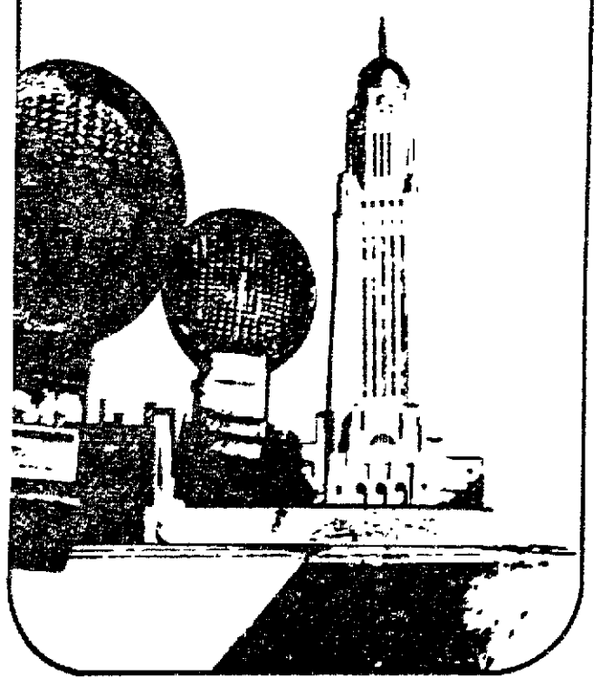

...An Improvement Plan

Citizen participation is an essential element in Lincoln's street planning process. That's why your Department of Public Works is asking for your opinion on the future of Fremont Street. Within the next few weeks, you will have two more opportunities to become involved in the planning process.

On November 28th, a draft Planning Study Report on Fremont Street, 48th to 70th, will be available to interested citizens. This report describes proposed street improvements and identifies the degree of study required to assess the social, economic and environmental impacts of the project. Citizens will have 30 days to submit written comments on the report.

Then, on December 11th at 7:30 p.m., a neighborhood information meeting will be held at Dawes School, 49th and Colfax. Public Works personnel will be on hand to discuss Fremont proposals.

A Fremont Street draft Planning Study Report can be obtained by contacting the Public Assistance Officer, Department of Public Works, County-City Building, Lincoln, Nebraska 68508, 473-6547. Written comments should also be forwarded to this office.

Conflicts Bloody In Mexican Land Disputes

By VICENTE MORALES

Mexico City (AP) — Clashes are breaking out with increasing frequency between peasant land squatters and Mexican soldiers and police.

This year alone, more than 100 persons — peasants, soldiers, policemen and ranchers — have been killed in land disputes. Two governors have been forced to resign. Peasant unions say their people are clamoring for guns.

The government is trying to resolve the problem of too many people and not enough fertile land. Mexico, a country one-fifth the size of the United States and with 60 million people, is mostly desert, semi-arid, mountainous and jungled.

Agrarian Reform Law

President Luis Echeverria in the first five years of his six-year term launched a new agrarian reform law, created an agrarian reform ministry, increased federal spending for rural irrigation from $320 million to $1.7 billion a year and has initiated price supports for agricultural products.

However, the bloody confrontations continue.

Last May in the state of Hidalgo just north of Mexico City, peasants who had seized land ambushed authorities who had come to remove them. Seven policemen and six men the peasants said had been hired as gunmen by ranchers were killed.

Two months later in the same state, 20 trucks filled with gunmen swooped down on a peasant meeting. Six peasant leaders were killed.

Seven Peasants Killed

Last month seven peasants were killed in the Yaqui Valley in Sonora in a clash between 300 squatters and police and soldiers. A week later, another five peasants were killed in the southern state of Veracruz when landowners took up arms after a government judgment turned part of their property over to the peasants.

In a small village in southern Mexico several months ago peasants attacked a landowner in the main plaza and hacked him to death with machetes.

In Mexico City, peasants unable to make a living in the countryside are squatting on private property. Police at times persuade them to move by pulling down their cardboard and scrap lumber shanties at night.

An agrarian reform researcher with the University of Mexico, Rodolfo Stavenhagen, says agrarian reform has failed to lift peasants from poverty. Instead, the program has "transformed itself into an organism of political control and has spread corruption," he said in an interview.

The Mexican government has distributed 220 million acres of land to two millin peasants in the last half century. Some of the land is dry and sun-scorched desert.

In Sonora, where seven peasants were killed, there are 31,486 legal actions by peasants against 2,422 private holdings of up to 250 acres each.

Some of the claims are so entangled in dozens of years of buying, selling and of one person taking land from another at the point of a gun that no one probably ever could determine the rightful owner.

Some peasants feel that the only way to get land is to take it.

"They killed one of my sons and wounded two others," said Juan Tera who went to the Yaqui Valley five years ago looking for a piece of land. "But we are not going to abandon the fight.

"We have rights to the land and at least to a piece of the meat the land barons throw to their dogs."

Landowners Determined

The landowners are just as determined to hold onto their land.

"I have worked the land all my life," said one rancher in the spacious living room of his home in Ciudad Obregon in Sonora.

"If the authorities don't stop the invasion, we will."

Lucinda Castro, a medical student in Mexico City, has 247 acres of land in Sonora in her name.

"My father bought it 10 years ago and spent six cleaning the salty soil and digging up rocks in order to make it produce. We're not going to allow the lazy peasants to take it from us," she said.

Peasant leaders claim that much of the land is in the hands of absentee landowners.

Restriction Avoided

Mexican law prohibits any one person from holding more than 247 acres, but peasant leaders claim that families put excess acreage in the names of their wives, children, brothers, sisters and other relatives to get around the law.

According to government statistics, of 350,882 acres in the Yaqui Valley privately owned, 12% of these proprietors are not yet 16 years old, and 11% are between 16 and 20.

Statistics and promises by the government are of little consolation, however, to peasants who earn as little as 80 cents a day when they can find work.

"Since the massacre of the peasants, they won't give work to us organized farmhands," said Olegario Perez, 27. He was one of the 300 peasants who invaded a ranch in the Yaqui Valley.

"My grandfather fought in the revolution, looking for a piece of land that he never got," said another peasant from the Yaqui Valley, Tomas Jimenes. "I'll keep on looking for a plot, and I'll go off to another revolution in order to get it."

Henry Wallace Said Truman Small Man

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Former Vice President Henry Wallace called former President Harry Truman "a small opportunistic man" and compared J. Edgar Hoover to Nazi Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler.

The characterizations were made in the 42-volume diary of the former vice president, unsealed Tuesday on the 10th anniversary of his death.

The University of Iowa library, which has custody of the diary, released exerpts from the volumes giving Wallace's characterizations of some of his contemporaries.

Truman "is a small man of limited background who wants to do the right thing," Wallace wrote following a meeting between the two in August 1944. The meeting came after the Democratic convention where then-Vice President Wallace was dropped as Franklin D. Roosevelt's running mate.

"He is a small opportunistic man, a man of good instincts but, therefore, probably all the more dangerous," Wallace said of Truman. "As he moves out more in the public eye, he will get caught in the webs of his own making."

At another date, Wallace wrote that he had heard on "good authority" that FBI director Hoover continually had columnist Drew Pearson followed.

"Hoover specializes in building up a file against the various public figures and especially against the columnists," Wallace wrote.

Site Picketing Filibuster Ended

Washington (AP) — The Senate voted 62 to 37 Tuesday to curb a filibuster against a bill sought by construction unions to allow more widespread picketing in labor disputes.

The bill was expected to be passed Wednesday.

The legislation, which has been before Congress for 25 years, has been passed by the House. It would allow unions to picket an entire construction site in a dispute with one subcontractor.

Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both R-Neb., voted against limiting debate.

Public Broadcasting Called Male Bastion

Washington (UPI) — Federally financed public broadcasting employs far too few women either behind the scenes or on the air in such programs as "Sesame Street," the Corporation for Public Broadcasting said Tuesday in a report on its own performance.

A 141-page report commissioned by the CPB described the corporation as largely a male bastion, with few women in positions of corporate power and with men dominating the broadcast shows as well. It rated "Sesame Street," the popular educational program, as the most male-dominated children's show of all.

Caroline Isber, director of the CPB's National Task Force on Women, said there was a "consistent pattern" of de facto job segregation against women throughout the industry, although the discrimination may not have been deliberate.

"They seem to be conducting job segregation," she said. "Nobody really thought about the issue.

"We found overwhelming evidence of the existence of pervasive underrepresentation of women throughout the public broadcasting industry, both in employment and in program content."

Donald R. Quayle, senior CPB vice president for broadcasting, said the CPB board agreed with the study's findings and had ordered remedial steps. An initial report is due in three months.

Quayle said the CPB did not have control over local programming or employment, but would "attempt to persuade the rest of the industry," to follow the recommendations for employment of more females.

The study examined nationwide public radio and television programs for the week of Jan. 19-25 this year, as well as employment statistics at both national and local levels.

It showed 69% of the characters in childrens' programs for that week were male and 31 per cent were female.

"'Sesame Street' had the smallest proportion of females and 'Carrascolendas' the largest," it said.

It said 78% of "Sesame Street" characters, including puppets, were male, as were more than 87% of announcers and narrators on the program.

In adult television programming, which included such events as a presidential news conference, captioned ABC news, and "America," 85% of those who appeared were men. Females fared slightly better in adult radio, with men comprising 77% of the participants.

The report said women held less than 30% of all jobs in public broadcasting and were not likely to hold a top executive position. Most were found in secretarial and clerical jobs.

Figures also showed less than 20% of governing boards of public television stations were women. On the CPB board itself, only 3 of the 15 spots are held by women.

Terrorists Take Credit For Sabotaging Meters

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New World Liberation Front, which has taken responsibility for numerous terrorist bombings in recent months, claims a new target — the city's parking meters.

Police said Tuesday they were investigating the group's claim that it poured liquid steel into the locks of several hundred parking meters in retaliation for a recent ticket-writing spree by officers.

The ticket blitz was prompted by police anger at voters for passing several antipolice propositions in the Nov. 4 election.

"They got 400 to 500 meters, including a bunch in front of police headquarters," said officer Bob Lenzis. "You can't prove who did it, but it does appear to be retaliation for all the tickets.

"Luckily the substance used wasn't too good, and we hope to have the meters back in operation in a few days," Lenzis said.

The liberation front, which is under investigation by the FBI for more than 20 bombings in the San Francisco Bay area in recent months, made their claim in a communique delivered to news media Monday. The communique was signed by the "Training Unit, Peoples Forces, New World Liberation Front." It read in part:

"If the San Francisco police who are acting like pigs and harassing the people for voting 'no confidence' do not cease their activities immediately, we will attempt to sabotage every parking meter in San Francisco, with the assistance of the hundreds or thousands of sisters and brothers who are tired enough with being pushed around by the pigs to start fighting back."

During one day of the blitz, police wrote 1,434 parking tickets, more than triple their daily average.

Mack Sennett Presents

WASHINGTON — Deep within the Central Intelligence Agency, locked in one of its super-secret, three-way combination safes, is the story of an illegal operation.

It was a CIA farce, an exercise in domestic deviltry, a Mack Sennett comedy come true. It was called Project Mudhen.

I was the villain in this bit of CIA hilarity. It began over my access to information which the CIA had intended for the President, not for me.

The CIA's top snoops were particularly upset over a series of columns I wrote in late December, 1971. The most urgent of them warned that the Soviets had threatened to intercept a naval task force, which the U.S. had sent into the Bay of Bengal during the India-Pakistan war.

In another column, I wrote that the strongman we were backing in Cambodia, Lon Nol, was "a sick man, both physically and mentally." U.S. officials were worried, I reported, about his "haphazard, out-of-channel and ill-coordinated conduct of military operations."

I also wrote a Christmas Eve column, describing in discomforting detail the threat to the peace in the Holy Land.

Not long after the New Year, the CIA began a search for my sources. A staggering total of 1,566 CIA employes were grilled, without a single confession or clue.

Finally, on Feb. 15, 1972, the CIA out of sheer desperation placed me under surveillance. Twenty CIA heavies, laden with binoculars, walkie-talkies, secret cameras and other James Bond paraphernalia, followed me around the country and photographed people entering my office.

Three stakeout cars were strategically deployed around my house, like a scene from a TV mystery, ready to tail me whichever direction I headed.

These cloak-and-dagger routines happen to violate the law, which restricts the CIA to foreign operations. The CIA is also supposed to chase spies, not newspaper columnists.

Project Mudhen, therefore, became one of the CIA's deep, dark secrets, in the same category as assassinations, burglaries and other extrajudicial doings.

The project got its code name, I presume, because the mudhen is noted for rooting around in the mud and for its obstreperous clacking when riled. But I am mystified by the personal code name assigned to me, "Brandy," since I am a notorious teetotaler.

☆ ☆ ☆

For the next few weeks, I was accompanied far and near by my CIA shadows. They rushed with me on March 15 to catch the shuttle plane to Newark, N.J., where some conspiratorial-looking youths hustled me into a car and drove me along backroads to South Orange.

But my CIA escorts were disappointed. The circuitous route was taken to avoid traffic. For all their breathless trailing, they got to hear me deliver a lecture at Seton Hall University.

The situation became more hilarious when CBS chose this same period to film a TV report on my activities for the show, "Sixty Minutes." For several days, CBS cameramen followed me around, with the CIA cameramen, presumably, not far behind. The result must have been a bewildering ring-around-a-rosy.

But for the CIA, the most traumatic event occurred on March 17 when I had a luncheon meeting with the then CIA director, Richard Helms, at the Madison Hotel in Washington. Helms' purpose was to persuade me to drop certain lines of inquiry that might create security problems.

But this required him to explain, unhappily, what secret national applecarts might be upset. At Project Mudhen, therefore, the forthcoming encounter was viewed with grave alarm. The CIA, assuming I might do unto them as they were doing unto me, feared I would come to the luncheon rigged up with concealed bugging equipment.

I am not privy to what electronic countermeasure the CIA took, except that it was elaborate. Apparently, Helms was rigged with sophisticated electronic equipment capable either of detecting or neutralizing my non-existent recording device. A CIA technician, I understand, manned the dials in a nearby mobile unit or hotel room.

At the appointed hour, Helms faced me across the table, confident of his superior wattage. Relaxed and unfettered, he made an effective pitch, and I agreed to cooperate.

By late March, strategic sources tipped me off that I was being followed and helpfully provided me with the license numbers of the stakeout cars. I unleashed my nine children to initiate their own surveillance of the surveillants. My junior sleuths not only located the cars but photographed them.

On April 3, 1972, the men with binoculars ceased their vigil, perhaps demoralized by the countersnooping of my Katzenjammer paparazzi.

Meanwhile, back at the CIA, the gumshoes were able to state categorically that my sources were located either in the State Department, or the National Security Agency, or the Defense Intelligence Agency, or the Naval Intelligence Command. Mudhen thus exonerated the CIA and narrowed down the field of suspects to about half the U.S. intelligence community.

Will a similar extravanganza discover the source of today's column? Watch out, CIA! The kids on my block are ready for you.

Police Review Board Confirmed

Mayor Helen Boosalis' appointments to the newly created Police Review Board were confirmed Monday on split votes by the City Council, illustrating further the ongoing controversy surrounding some aspects of police-community relations.

The division between council members was rendered insignificant, however, by the meaningless obstructionism of Councilmen Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta who said since they opposed creation of the board in the first place, they couldn't vote to fill the seats. They voted against all seven appointments. Lincolnites might well question the reasoning behind those negative votes. The Police Review Board is a fact. Are Sikyta and Cook fulfilling their duty to represent their constituents by blindly voting against each and every appointment to a board which will function despite their votes against it several weeks ago? Responsibility, in our opinion, requires council members to pass independent judgment on each mayoral appointment's fitness to serve regardless of whether or not the council members believe the post is needed.

Although he still seems to be unconvinced of the mayor's right of appointment and apparently feels the council should share that right equally with the mayor, Councilman Richard Baker nevertheless offered the only reasonable opposition to the review board appointments. Baker questioned the geographic and socio-economic mix of the seven Boosalis appointees, suggested the appointments (six of the seven are Democrats) were tinged with a partisan bias and voiced concern that those named might be "anti-police." We think Baker's charge that Boosalis didn't supply enough information on the appointees' backgrounds was phony and his assertions that the panel does not represent a cross-section of the community and that it is "anti-police" are unfounded, but we do believe that Baker is taking the matter of reviewing appointments seriously. Baker is still caught in a bad attitude trap, however, and, if past debates are any clue, in it with him are Sikyta and Cook.

The bad attitude, or perception, is that anyone who is not mindlessly pro-police, who does not believe that the police can do no wrong, must be violently anti-police.

In Lincoln that is not true. There are many, many people in Lincoln who are objective about the performance of law enforcement agencies and we have enough confidence in Mayor Boosalis's judgment that she has found such people. The mayor has not tried to "stack" the police review board. Neither strongly anti-police nor unquestioning pro-police people should be on the panel. People who tend to open-mindedness should comprise its membership.

It all boils down to the same basic point: A good police department has nothing to fear from the review of responsible citizens.

The Highest Standard

President Ford has made up his initial list of prospective nominees to Justice William O. Douglas' seat on the U.S. Supreme Court. He possibly will add other names to it before sending one name to the Senate for confirmation.

As speculation over Douglas' successor continues, it is well to consider what New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis wrote on this page Tuesday.

" . . . there is no formula for choosing justices except to seek excellence," Lewis wrote. "President Ford was right when he said, last month, that presidents usually try to choose 'somebody that has a somewhat similar political philosophy.' But that attempt often miscarries, and the political advantage to be gained is trivial.

"The credit that history has given to presidents for their nominees to the Supreme Court has usually been not for doctrine but for wisdom and character."

The standard which ultimately should prevail for the benefit of the people who are affected by the court's rulings is excellence. Too many times — once is really too often—presidents of either party have ignored the highest standard in choosing a member of the highest court. Short-term political gain has been more important than quality.

Judge Carswell's unsuccessful nomination was to be expected from the likes of Richard Nixon. It will be interesting to see which standard his successor uses.

Soviets Have Hide Of Rhinoceros

NEW YORK — Hitler must have had a good laugh down in Hell when the United Nations General Assembly formally endorsed anti-Semitism by a large majority. After 30 years in odious repute, the old dictator's theory of what made the world go wrong has finally been declared the collective wisdom of the higher-minded nations of the planet.

The sweet irony of it, of course, was that the Soviet Union was right out front there with Himmler. Just like the old days, Stalin might have reflected, down there in the brimstone. It couldn't have been an altogether happy memory for the old monster.

The last time Russia embraced Hitler was in the non-aggression pact at the eve of World War Two. By signing it, Stalin gave the Nazis the security they needed to march into Poland, a march that eventually ended in the deaths of 20 million Russians.

And here they were together again, swastika and sickle, in New York. One might have thought that the Russians would draw the line at so blandly crawling into bed with Hitler again, but obviously there is no overestimating their indifference to principle.

As political opportunists, they make American politicians look like Salvation Army workers. Nobody is surprised any more by that. The Soviet government has been so hopelessly mired in political cynicism for so long that one has come to take it for granted. Criticizing it would be as pointless as criticizing a dinosaur afloat in mud. But rehabilitating Hitlerism — surely there were some things they would not do.

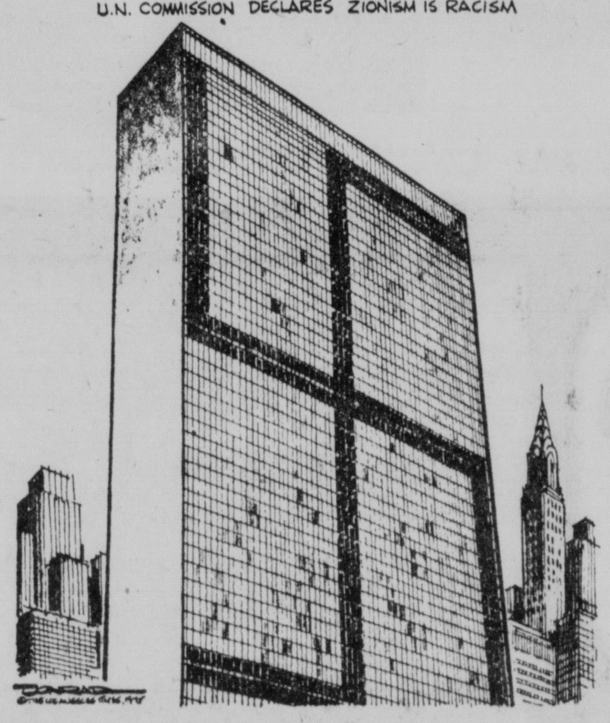

There weren't. We may suppose there aren't.

In this case, Russian policy was dictated by desire to play the regular fellow with the Arab, as well as the so-called "Third-World" states which are becoming the arbiters of international moral conduct.

A curiosity of the Soviet government is its utter inability to be embarrassed. It has the true cynic's indifference to public exposure of its own hypocrisy. Trudging about the earth championing the freedom of oppressed peoples, it deports or imprisons its own people for attempting to exercise free expression.

Throughout the Watergate catastrophe in Washington, so long as it appeared that Nixon, with whom it was doing profitable business, might survive, it printed and broadcast nothing of what was going on. After Nixon's removal, it used the squalor revealed in the Watergate hearings as text to denounce the United States for a police state.

It was shocked — it was appalled — to discover that the American government had been conducting wire-tapping, bugging, burglaries, character assassination and police provocations against American citizens.

Imagine Al Capone denouncing Jersey City for harboring corrupt politicians. It is the sort of thing the Soviet government does regularly without even a wink.

Now, in addition to leading its client states down to the haberdasher to fit anti-Semitism out in a fancy new suit, it paused at the visa office to forbid Andrei Sakharov to leave the country to collect his Nobel Peace Prize.

Sakharov has misbehaved. He has criticized the Soviet government. The Soviet government, however, always has a better explanation of why beastliness is the best policy. Sakharov's request to travel is refused for security reasons. He is a nuclear physicist.

In the same way it will in other arenas have other explanations for endorsing anti-Semitism. Henry Kissinger, who is not entirely without cynicism himself, doubtless understands these without having them articulated.

"The General Assembly," Moscow might say. "What does it amount to? A cave of windbags with no more divisions than the Pope. A place for Banana republics to puff themselves up, give themselves airs, let off steam and pass ridiculous resolutions.

"It is like being stuck in a downpour with a garrulous, opinionated cab driver. One nods, agrees, humors him without listening, then goes about his business. The General Assembly — it amounts to nothing finally."

What it will be telling the Arabs, of course, is something quite different. Like all the great political opportunists, it tells the audience whatever it wants to hear.

One can speak of it this way outside the Soviet Union without annoying it in the least. Criticizing it from without is like sticking pins in a rhinoceros.

American Status In U.N. Slipping

WASHINGTON — The U.N. General Assembly's approval of a resolution declaring that Zionism "is a form of racism and racial discrimination" is only the latest in a series of votes demonstrating that American influence in the world organization has deteriorated over the years. At its birth in 1945, the United Nations had 51 member countries. Today there are 142, the great majority of which are Third World, developing, or non-aligned countries.

In the early days of the U.N., the United States could usually count on other non-communist members for support in the General Assembly. Today, on the other hand, the 100-odd less-developed member countries often vote in opposition to the United States and other western industrial powers.

The situation is deeply disturbing to American officials. "The future of the United Nations is clouded," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said in an address to the Institute of World Affairs in Milwaukee on July 14. ". . . Troubling trends have appeared in the General Assembly and some of its specialized agencies. Ideological confrontation, bloc voting and new attempts to manipulate the charter to achieve unilateral ends threaten to turn the United Nations into a weapon of political warfare rather than a healer of political conflict and a promoter of human welfare."

The General Assembly's only functions are to discuss, to study, to recommend and to call world attention to problems and recommended solutions. It has no authority to commit U.N. members to direct action. That power resides in the Security Council, of which the United States is one of the five permanent members.

The council's principal duties are to investigate tinderbox situations, to mediate disputes between nations, to determine when a threat to peace exists, to call on members to apply economic sanctions and — most significant of all — to take military action. Security Council decisions require the affirmative votes of at least nine of the 15 members, including those of all five permanent members. Any one of the five thus may veto a council decision.

In certain circumstances, it is possible to sidestep a Security Council veto. The American-sponsored "Uniting for Peace" resolution, adopted by the General Assembly in 1950, provided that if exercise of the veto power prevented the Security Council from taking action to maintain peace, the assembly might be called into emergency session on 24 hours' notice — at the request of any seven members of the Security Council or a majority of the members of the General Assembly — to make recommendations for collective security action.

The main purpose of the resolution was to provide a way of neutralizing any Soviet veto of a U.N. peacekeeping operation. It is entirely possible, however, that the resolution will some day be invoked in response to an American veto of such a venture.

Meanwhile, the Third World countries no doubt will continue to throw their weight around in the General Assembly and trample on American toes in the process. The question is whether the United States, which contributes more money to the U.N. than any other country, will suffer such treatment in silence or attempt some form of reprisal. In any event, it is clear that the days of American dominance in the United Nations have passed and are unlikely ever to return.

Jewish Couple, 'Heartsick' At U.N. Resolution

Seeing The Real Issues

Lincoln, Neb.

As life-long advocates of the United Nations, we are heartsick at the recent action by the U.N. which labeled Zionism racism.

As Jews, we are alarmed and frightened at the worldwide anti-Semitism this action may trigger.

But, as Americans, we are proud of our country's position. We believe Ambassador Moynihan's response was superb. We applaud the unanimous vote of condemnation of this action by the House of Representatives and the Senate. We approve President Ford's rejection of the resolution and agree that it cannot be ignored.

We pray that there will be better days in the U. N. so that it can fulfill the hope for world peace, and address itself to the real issues of racism.

Plea For Return Of Purse

Lincoln, Neb.

Since it was my purse someone chose to steal Saturday evening around 8:00 p.m. in front of the Safeway at Treasure City, I want to tell that someone how brave a person he must be, opening the car door under all those bright lights in front of the main entrance. I'm willing to take part of the blame for not locking the doors, however he must be very quick at his job, as I ran in only to cash a check, which took maybe three minutes.

Is he human enough to realize the baby pictures, driver's license and all those things that mean a lot to me and nothing to him could be returned without my finding out who he is? Would he be so kind as to call me and maybe drop off the things he doesn't want some place where I can pick them up?

There wasn't a lot of money in it but maybe enough for what he evidently needed, so he is welcome to it! He can find us in the phone book and he has all the information he needs to look it up.

I hope he will think about this and decide it's the least he could do. Some day maybe this will happen to him (and I certainly hope so).

And if I sound bitter, it's because I am. I work for everything I have. How about the individual who took my purse?

Orchestra Featured

Lincoln, Neb.

I have had many fine comments on the full-page spread in The Star on Nov. 5 abut the Lincoln Symphony.

Gracia McAndrew did a most excellent job of going through that ton of material, and getting organized so that it made sense. So many have spoken of how well it was presented.

The Symphony Association is most appreciative of this publicity, especially as it is our 50th year and also that we are faced with an extra heavy expense due to the transition of our conductors.

A Park For Malcolm

Malcolm, Neb.

In Malcolm we now have a community park with play equipment for our children and picnic equipment for our families. We would like to thank the Malcolm Planning Commission under Rex Guerin's leadership for its work in making the park possible. We appreciate the work by many people in raising funds for the park — the men of Green Thumb and their work and the Lincoln firm that was so gracious in letting us use their heavy equipment.

We want to say a special thank-you to the men who set up the equipment Nov. 8. Many children and adults will enjoy the Malcolm park for years to come.

Hildreth Does Its Part

Hildreth, Neb.

Honey selling was a success in the Hildreth community thanks to the Hildreth Cub Scouts of Dens 1 and 2. The following boys assisted in selling: Troy Casper, Lance Jeldon, Bryan Casper, Greg Frecks, Curtis Bauer, Joel Panter and Charles Polleck. Webloes of the group were Steve Burns and Clark Bauer, also of Hildreth.

Extra workers were Michele Polleck, Brenda Casper, Susan and Mary Polleck, Becky Casper, Teresa Frecks and Linda Fruhling, all of Hildreth; Barbara Hohlen of Hastings; Jeff and Jan Fruhling of Kearney; Lisa and Michael Ryan of Ravenna.

The children sold 94 jars of honey. The money goes to local associations to help the retarded.

Lessons To Be Learned

DuBois, Neb.

Here is a new slogan: "Liberals Are Bankrupt!"

One day in the news we read of rights: right to food, right to sex, right to revolt, right not to go to jail, right to college, right to health, and on and on. Many liberal groups are bankrupt morally.

The next day we read of grants for some group. We count and there are six or seven grant programs suddenly for the group. We throw money at every problem.

Where federal help is given, federal regs follow. We can't have Big Government intervention and freedom. Liberals have not learned these lessons.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

"I am a Pisces and I don't write fan letters. But I admire your skills, knowledge and, most of all, the way you display the courage of your convictions. Do you think I am a wonderful Pisces for saying these things?" — Ray Grossman, Pomona, N Y. Response: I really cannot say how "wonderful" you are, but your taste obviously is excellent. I will put down a plus mark for Pisces — in your name.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on relatives, close neighbors, short trips and special messages. Older individual is willing to share knowledge. Be receptive. Don't permit false pride to block progress. Pet theory may take a beating. Maintain sense of humor. It will be a wonderful ally!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on earning power and potential. You come to fork in road — choice of ultimate direction is your own. Benefits shown if you release the past — and take cold plunge into future. Aries, Libra could be on picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress original approach. Highlight greater independence. Imprint personality. Be obvious, direct, communicative. Say what you mean-mean what you say. Leo, Aquarius persons are fascinated and come to your aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You delve deep, into past, into areas in mystery, into clandestine affairs. You visit one confined to home, hospital. You are asked to contribute to "a cause." You're also asked to represent group, club, organization "before the media." What's happening!

LEO (July 23-Aug 22): Highlight entertainment, versatility. Expand horizons. Don't take yourself too seriously. Laughing at your own foibles now will win allies. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are involved. A wish is fulfilled. Romance and creative endeavors could make this a red-letter day.

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept 22): Home life, family, comforts, sense of well being — these are highlighted and, perhaps, challenged. Accent on promotion, career, standing in community. Now you can contact professional superior with expectation of good results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Travel emphasized. Movement, analysis, curiosity all play key roles. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. You find out where you can get best results, how to get there, who to see. Plainly, puzzle pieces can fall into place and you can profit as result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, costs, luxury items, making the home more pleasant, convenient and beautiful — these are featured. You get "lucky break." Means timing is likely to be on target. Tax problems, write-offs are matters to be considered, now more so than in recent past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on what is legal or otherwise. Special consultation is in store with partner, mate. You find that, in the ultimate, you must face yourself. No one is going to solve anything that you cannot resolve for yourself. Message becomes increasingly clear. Pisces is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Achievement is featured. You know what should be done — and you have tools, materials with which to accomplish goal. Know it and get busy. Steady pace will win. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — could play key roles. Keep diet, health resolutions. Avoid extremes. You'll understand!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, education, publication, language. Your ability to gain "rare insights is enhanced. You finish a project and get credit which has been overdue. Aries, Libra persons could be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Roadblock to progress is removed. You get green light to progress. Transaction, leading to profit and security, can be completed. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Home improvements are indicated, too.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you hae suffered disappointments, disillusionment — but emotional bruises are going to be healed. You're coming back — you'll be on your feet, stronger in many ways, including financial. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. A fresh start is shown for you in December.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

N.Y. Officials Slate Crackdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Times Square: a paradox of pornography amid a plenty of restaurants and cultural pastimes, a center of vice at the crossroads of New York, the place where the New Year begins on everybody's TV set.

They're going to try to clean it up — again.

The city fathers have declared war on the paradox once more, vowing to rid the area of its massage parlors, of book stores that flaunt glossy, graphic sex, of pimps, of prostitutes and of movie theaters that screen bizarre sexual couplings.

Although administrations have come and gone with unkept vows to clean up Times Square, Mayor Abraham D. Beame says that this time, with the Democratic National Convention due in July, the campaign will work.

"We realize it's going to be difficult," says Deputy Mayor Paul Gibson, who is in charge of the crackdown. "We realize we're going to have a lot of problems."

The deputy mayor himself says he doubts Times Square will ever be totally free of sleazy doings. But, he continues, "We certainly can reduce the impact they have on the area."

Its habitues are sanguine. Says one bookseller who admits to 75 pornography arrests since 1970: "The vast majority will stay."

Another bookseller who has survived multiple arrests says the campaign is a waste of time and money.

"I don't kill people. I don't make movies — none of that nonsense," he says. "No one gets hurt over here."

But according to the Broadway Association, the League of New York Theaters and Producers and City Hall, people do indeed get hurt, people like the six salesmen waiting forlornly in their empty haberdashery just yards from a movie marquee trumpeting "the ultimate porno trip."

"It's the concentration that's damaging, and I'm talking from a business viewpoint, not a moral viewpoint," says real estate speculator Seymour Durst, chairman of the Broadway Association.

Nowhere is that concentration more evident than on 42nd Street, throbbing with the incandescent glitter of one tawdry movie theater after another. A half-century ago, this street gave Broadway's Great White Way its brilliance.

Now it is a street of sin, perfumed with pizzerias, lined with burly houses, pornographic book stores and a blaze of tourist-trapping shops. Shuffling streams of humanity pass by, eyeing the shadowy figures, male and female, slouched in doorways, retailing easy sex.

"Anyone who expects we're going to eliminate prostitution is not being realistic," says mayoral aide Sidney Baumgarten, head of the Midtown Law Enforcement Coordinating Committee. "Our job is to suppress it to the point where it isn't a public nuisance and doesn't intrude on other people's lives."

TIMES SQUARE . . . they'll try to clean it up again.

The former prosecutor lays the cause of proliferating pornography to increased permissiveness and what he terms a fading distinction between what is acceptible activity in private and in public.

"Whether you want to moralize or not," he goes on, "the fact is that legitimate business cannot survive in this area at all."

A case in point is a 2,000-room hotel that Atlanta architect-developer John Portman has proposed for Times Square. But last January, he warned of abandoning the project for want of long-term financing.

"Times Square, whether you like it or not, is the image of New York, and right now that image is not very good," he said then. "Unless faith is restored, it is going to be a long, hard winter."

Chairman Gerald Schoenfeld of the Shubert organization, active in the Broadway Association and the theater group, concurs:

"When you have an unhealthy environment, not only are we affected, but the whole city is affected. The whole city is victim."

Prodded mainly by real estate interests and the theater, which foresook its earlier ostrich stance, the city has obtained a $432,000 federal grant to fight the problem.

Its two-pronged attack, which began last month, would eliminate litter and close down undesirable operations by building a record against them as public nuisances.

This is being done through a team of fire, building, electrical and health inspectors who repeatedly visit sleazy operations with a police officer to detect violations and in that way build a public nuisance case.

The city will hold hearings Wednesday on a proposed zoning ordinance that would classify legitimate massage operations as physical culture establishments.

They would be allowed in Times Square only if they meet the standards of a nationally recognized sports institution or if they are to be situated in a community facility or hotel with more than 200 rooms. New ones would be prohibited for a year.

Additionally, Baumgarten is seeking passage of a new antiloitering law. The old one was declared unconstitutional last year.

"The legislature has been either unwilling or unable to focus on the problem, and that's where it belongs," he says.

The zoning and the antiloitering proposals are said by legal experts to be on shaky ground and to face constitutional challenges if enacted.

Part of the financially strapped city's strategy has been to encourage the community's participation. Some groups are buying sidewalk vacuums, and one private source is giving the city $150,000 for each of the next three years for midtown enhancement.

Nor is participation solely economic. A citizens' advisory panel is being formed to monitor the effectiveness of the cleanup campaign.

Will Times Square ever be free of its prostitutes, its pimps and its pornography?

"I doubt if that time will ever come, but . . . we're going to be able to contain it all over the city," says Deputy Mayor Gibson.

The reason, he says, is that the city has made "a conscience effort to coordinate whatever resources we can bring to bear on the problem" and that the effort will be sustained.

No one is promising any miracles.

"You can't expect it to be done quickly," says the Broadway Association's Durst, whose land assembling once found him the embarassed owner of a prostitution hotel. "It's taken 20 years to reach this condition, and it will take a long time to recover from it."

Police Inspector Milton Schwartz, whose command includes Times Square, says it's not that dangerous now and cleaning up what he calls its "visual pollution" is not a high priority with him.

Considering the number of persons who pass through the area, he adds, "the chance of being mugged there is almost nil."

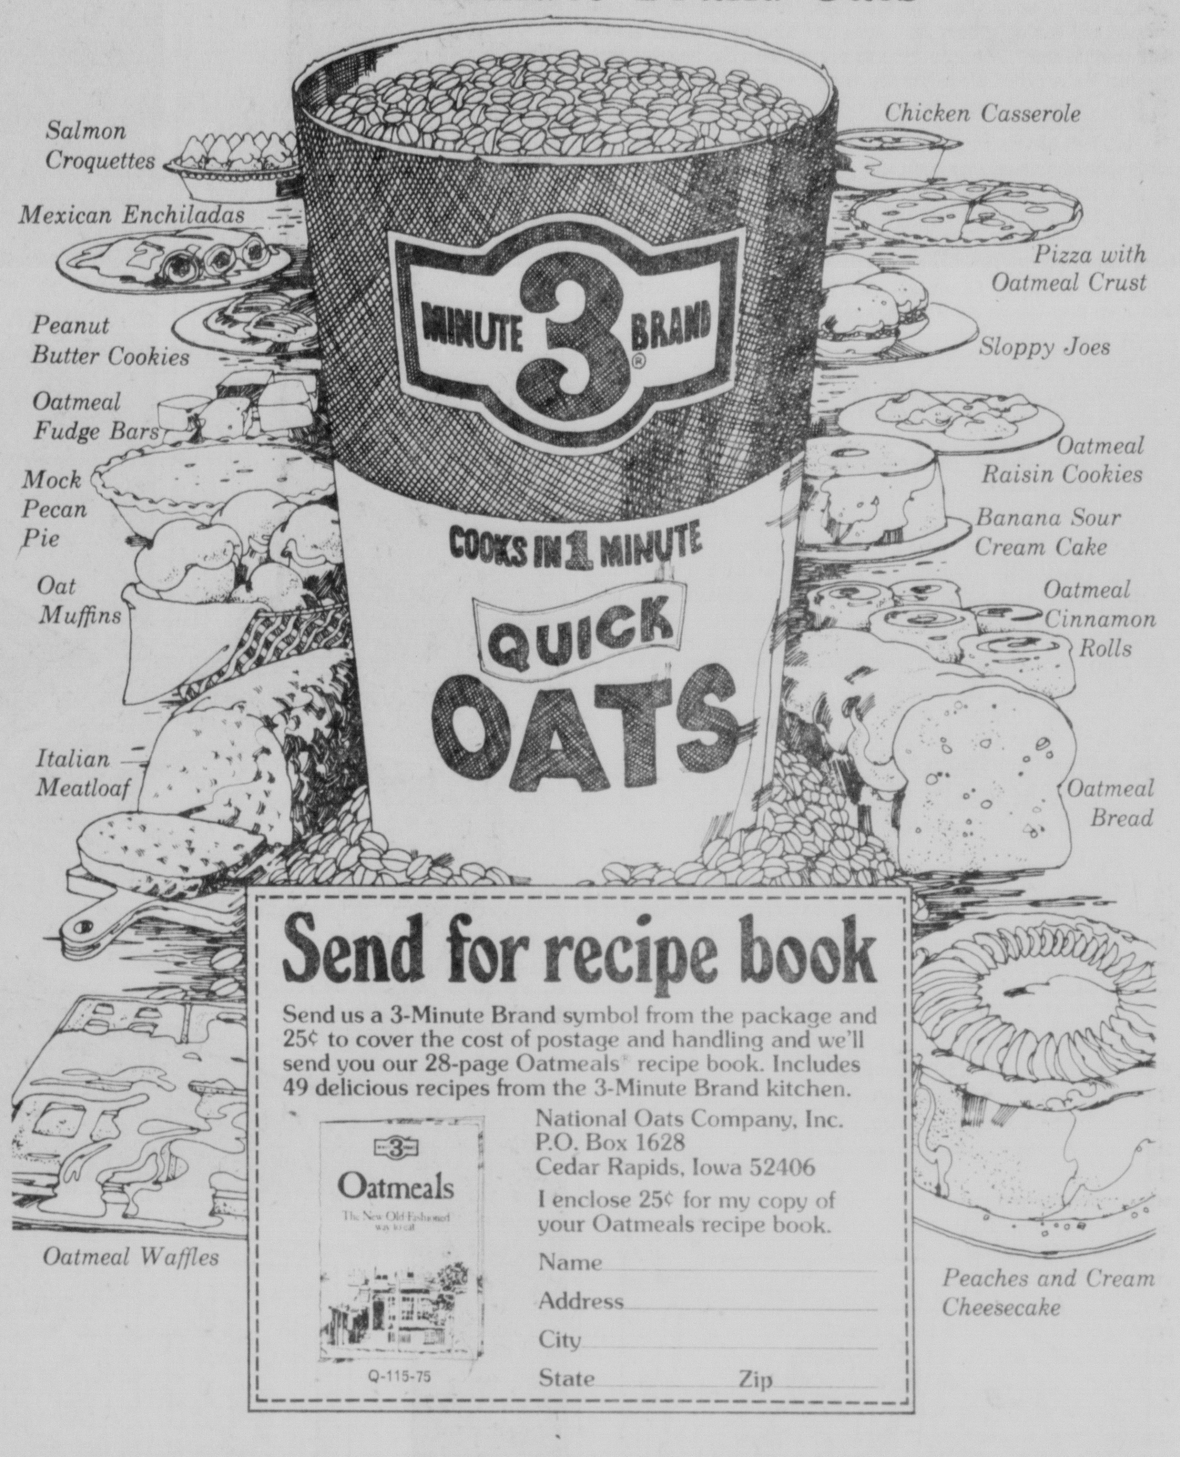

What about legalizing prostitution and creating a special "red light" zone for prostitutes, massage parlors, dirty book stores and porno movie houses — a zone like the "boys' towns" in many Mexican border cities or Boston's Combat Zone?

For the time being, the city says, no, it won't consider legalizing prostitution or setting aside a red-light district.

The deputy mayor and the mayor's assistant say such measures create as many problems, political and legal, as they might solve. They say that New Yorkers, despite their reputation, are pretty moral and don't want to legalize prostitution.

ACTION LINE

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

Our next-door neighbor has four dogs. He never cleans the pens and we and our neighbors can't open our windows without getting that terrible smell. We also have to put up with the noise of their barking. We've called the health department and the Humane Society.

—Dan Coufal, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept. has taken quick action on your complaint. Denis Grams, assistant chief of environmental health, sent out an inspector to check on the problem Friday. The inspector found that your neighbor was violating city sanitation ordinances, despite earlier warnings. The matter now has been turned over to the city attorney's office, which promised to file charges immediately. Grams also said your neighbor's ownership of four dogs may violate an ordinance against keeping a kennel in your zoning area.

How does a person get a patent on an invention? Where can I write for information?

—F.B.A., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Obtaining a patent isn't a simple procedure, according to the Federal Information Center in Omaha. You must make an application to the Commissioner of Patents in Washington, D.C. The application must include plans of your invention. There is a $65 filing fee and a $100 final fee if the patent is granted. The process is sufficiently complex that it is usually handled by a patent attorney. The Omaha center is sending you the government pamphlet "Questions and Answers About Patents" that gives a detailed explanation. Other readers can obtain a free copy by writing to Federal Information Center, 215 No. 17th St., Omaha.

Could you tell me where one can buy buffalo meat in quantities less than a quarter or half? It is supposed to be low in cholesterol and I'm sure a large number of people would be interested in buying it if available locally.

—G.D.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There apparently is only one source of buffalo meat in small quantities in the Capital City, and that's no bull. Shuster's Jack and Jill market, 140 Capital Beach Blvd., can provide buffalo hamburger, roasts and other cuts in family-size packages. The butcher there says the market doesn't stock the meat because of low demand for it, but does accept orders for quick delivery. The price of buffalo meat fluctuates, he said.

Since when does the public have to wait hand and foot on cable TV? It was to be installed in my home Oct. 22. They rescheduled installation for Nov. 4. No one showed up. I called and they said they would be out the morning of Nov. 5. They came in the afternoon when no one was home.

—Ray Kuta, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It seems that Cablevision, 401 So. 21st St., may have its wires crossed a little. John Romania, assistant manager, said no appointment should have been made for you Oct. 22 since the firm's installers don't work Saturdays. He said the work wasn't done Nov. 4 because too many appointments were scheduled for that day. The work order for Nov. 5 didn't specify that the installation was to be done in the morning, Romania said. He said he would call you this week to set up another appointment, which he promised would be kept this time.

About 18 months ago I purchased three golf clubs from Cobra Golf in San Diego, Calif. After some correspondence, I asked them to replace the clubs because the wood cracked or refund my $108. I haven't heard from them since July.

—Teed-Off, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Tom Crow, manager of Cobra Golf, 5569 Kearney Villa Road, San Diego, Calif. 92123, said three new clubs were ordered for you from the manufacturer Nov. 10. He said he expected that you would receive them in about two weeks. Crow added that he ordered a different brand from the brand of the cracked clubs, as you requested in an earlier letter.

On Aug. 14, I ordered a short-wave radio kit from Burstein-Applebee of Kansas City. When the kit arrived, I found that a tuning coil was missing. I wrote to them and they said the manufacturer would send a replacement part to me. I'm still waiting and the kit is worthless without the part.

—Ellis Butcher, Hebron

ACTION LINE: Burstein-Applebee, 3199 Mercier St., Kansas City, Mo. 64111, is checking with the manufacturer about your complaint. Ray Freeze, customer service manager, said that if the part is not available, the firm will send you another kit or refund your money.

ACTION TIP: Buying securities can be a risky business. The Securities and Exchange Commission urges you to think carefully before you buy. Keep in mind that the value of your stock market investment can go down as well as up. Buy only from a broker, banker or salesman you know and trust. Beware of promises of spectacular profits. Make sure to get all information and agreements in writing. Want to know more before you decide whether to buy? Write for a free copy of the federal government pamphlet "Investigate Before You Invest" to Consumer Information, Dept. 70, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Mack Sennett Presents

WASHINGTON — Deep within the Central Intelligence Agency, locked in one of its super-secret, three-way combination safes, is the story of an illegal operation.

It was a CIA farce, an exercise in domestic deviltry, a Mack Sennett comedy come true. It was called Project Mudhen.

I was the villain in this bit of CIA hilarity. It began over my access to information which the CIA had intended for the President, not for me.

The CIA's top snoops were particularly upset over a series of columns I wrote in late December, 1971. The most urgent of them warned that the Soviets had threatened to intercept a naval task force, which the U.S. had sent into the Bay of Bengal during the India-Pakistan war.

In another column, I wrote that the strongman we were backing in Cambodia, Lon Nol, was "a sick man, both physically and mentally." U.S. officials were worried, I reported, about his "haphazard, out-of-channel and ill-coordinated conduct of military operations."

I also wrote a Christmas Eve column, describing in discomforting detail the threat to the peace in the Holy Land.

☆ ☆ ☆

Not long after the New Year, the CIA began a search for my sources. A staggering total of 1,566 CIA employes were grilled, without a single confession or clue.

Finally, on Feb. 15, 1972, the CIA out of sheer desperation placed me under surveillance. Twenty CIA heavies, laden with binoculars, walkie-talkies, secret cameras and other James Bond paraphernalia, followed me around the country and photographed people entering my office.

Three stakeout cars were strategically deployed around my house, like a scene from a TV mystery, ready to tail me whichever direction I headed.

These cloak-and-dagger routines happen to violate the law, which restricts the CIA to foreign operations. The CIA is also supposed to chase spies, not newspaper columnists.

Project Mudhen, therefore, became one of the CIA's deep, dark secrets, in the same category as assassinations, burglaries and other extrajudicial doings.

The project got its code name, I presume, because the mudhen is noted for rooting around in the mud and for its obstreperous clacking when riled. But I am mystified by the personal code name assigned to me, "Brandy," since I am a notorious teetotaler.

☆ ☆ ☆

For the next few weeks, I was accompanied far and near by my CIA shadows. They rushed with me on March 15 to catch the shuttle plane to Newark, N.J., where some conspiratorial-looking youths hustled me into a car and drove me along backroads to South Orange.

But my CIA escorts were disappointed. The circuitous route was taken to avoid traffic. For all their breathless trailing, they got to hear me deliver a lecture at Seton Hall University.

The situation became more hilarious when CBS chose this same period to film a TV report on my activities for the show, "Sixty Minutes." For several days, CBS cameramen followed me around, with the CIA cameramen, presumably, not far behind. The result must have been a bewildering ring-around-a-rosy.

But for the CIA, the most traumatic event occurred on March 17 when I had a luncheon meeting with the then CIA director, Richard Helms, at the Madison Hotel in Washington. Helms' purpose was to persuade me to drop certain lines of inquiry that might create security problems.

But this required him to explain, unhappily, what secret national applecarts might be upset. At Project Mudhen, therefore, the forthcoming encounter was viewed with grave alarm. The CIA, assuming I might do unto them as they were doing unto me, feared I would come to the luncheon rigged up with concealed bugging equipment.

I am not privy to what electronic countermeasure the CIA took, except that it was elaborate. Apparently, Helms was rigged with sophisticated electronic equipment capable either of detecting or neutralizing my non-existent recording device. A CIA technician, I understand, manned the dials in a nearby mobile unit or hotel room.

At the appointed hour, Helms faced me across the table, confident of his superior wattage. Relaxed and unfettered, he made an effective pitch, and I agreed to cooperate.

By late March, strategic sources tipped me off that I was being followed and helpfully provided me with the license numbers of the stakeout cars. I unleashed my nine children to initiate their own surveillance of the surveillants. My junior sleuths not only located the cars but photographed them.

On April 3, 1972, the men with binoculars ceased their vigil, perhaps demoralized by the countersnooping of my Katzenjammer paparazzi.

Meanwhile, back at the CIA, the gumshoes were able to state categorically that my sources were located either in the State Department, or the National Security Agency, or the Defense Intelligence Agency, or the Naval Intelligence Command. Mudhen thus exonerated the CIA and narrowed down the field of suspects to about half the U.S. intelligence community.

Will a similar extravanganza discover the source of today's column? Watch out, CIA! The kids on my block are ready for you.

Police Review Board Confirmed

Mayor Helen Boosalis' appointments to the newly created Police Review Board were confirmed Monday on split votes by the City Council, illustrating further the ongoing controversy surrounding some aspects of police-community relations.

The division between council members was rendered insignificant, however, by the meaningless obstructionism of Councilmen Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta who said since they opposed creation of the board in the first place, they couldn't vote to fill the seats. They voted against all seven appointments. Lincolnites might well question the reasoning behind those negative votes. The Police Review Board is a fact. Are Sikyta and Cook fulfilling their duty to represent their constituents by blindly voting against each and every appointment to a board which will function despite their votes against it several weeks ago? Responsibility, in our opinion, requires council members to pass independent judgment on each mayoral appointment's fitness to serve regardless of whether or not the council members believe the post is needed.

Although he still seems to be unconvinced of the mayor's right of appointment and apparently feels the council should share that right equally with the mayor, Councilman Richard Baker nevertheless offered the only reasonable opposition to the review board appointments. Baker questioned the geographic and socio-economic mix of the seven Boosalis appointees, suggested the appointments (six of the seven are Democrats) were tinged with a partisan bias and voiced concern that those named might be "anti-police." We think Baker's charge that Boosalis didn't supply enough information on the appointees' backgrounds was phony and his assertions that the panel does not represent a cross-section of the community and that it is "anti-police" are unfounded, but we do believe that Baker is taking the matter of reviewing appointments seriously. Baker is still caught in a bad attitude trap, however, and, if past debates are any clue, in it with him are Sikyta and Cook.

The bad attitude, or perception, is that anyone who is not mindlessly pro-police, who does not believe that the police can do no wrong, must be violently anti-police.

In Lincoln that is not true. There are many, many people in Lincoln who are objective about the performance of law enforcement agencies and we have enough confidence in Mayor Boosalis's judgment that she has found such people. The mayor has not tried to "stack" the police review board. Neither strongly anti-police nor unquestioning pro-police people should be on the panel. People who tend to open-mindedness should comprise its membership.

It all boils down to the same basic point: A good police department has nothing to fear from the review of responsible citizens.

The Highest Standard

President Ford has made up his initial list of prospective nominees to Justice William O. Douglas' seat on the U.S. Supreme Court. He possibly will add other names to it before sending one name to the Senate for confirmation.

As speculation over Douglas' successor continues, it is well to consider what New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis wrote on this page Tuesday.

". . . there is no formula for choosing justices except to seek excellence," Lewis wrote. "President Ford was right when he said, last month, that presidents usually try to choose 'somebody that has a somewhat similar political philosophy.' But that attempt often miscarries, and the political advantage to be gained is trivial.

"The credit that history has given to presidents for their nominees to the Supreme Court has usually been not for doctrine but for wisdom and character."

The standard which ultimately should prevail for the benefit of the people who are affected by the court's rulings is excellence. Too many times — once is really too often—presidents of either party have ignored the highest standard in choosing a member of the highest court. Short-term political gain has been more important than quality.

Judge Carswell's unsuccessful nomination was to be expected from the likes of Richard Nixon. It will be interesting to see which standard his successor uses.

Soviets Have Hide Of Rhinoceros

NEW YORK — Hitler must have had a good laugh down in Hell when the United Nations General Assembly formally endorsed anti-Semitism by a large majority. After 30 years in odious repute, the old dictator's theory of what made the world go wrong has finally been declared the collective wisdom of the higher-minded nations of the planet.

The sweet irony of it, of course, was that the Soviet Union was right out front there with Himmler. Just like the old days, Stalin might have reflected, down there in the brimstone. It couldn't have been an altogether happy memory for the old monster.

The last time Russia embraced Hitler was in the non-aggression pact at the eve of World War Two. By signing it, Stalin gave the Nazis the security they needed to march into Poland, a march that eventually ended in the deaths of 20 million Russians.

And here they were together again, swastika and sickle, in New York. One might have thought that the Russians would draw the line at so blandly crawling into bed with Hitler again, but obviously there is no overestimating their indifference to principle.

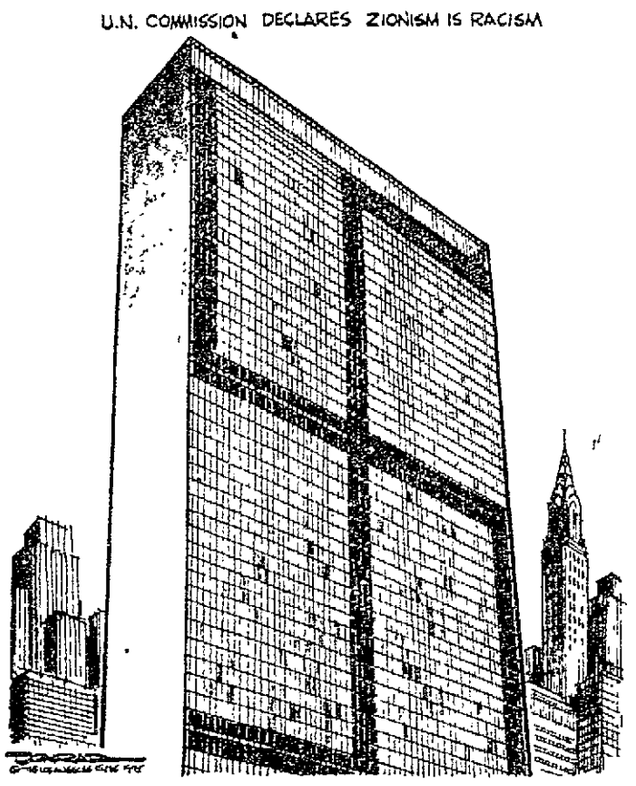

As political opportunists, they make American politicians look like Salvation Army workers. Nobody is surprised any more by that. The Soviet government has been so hopelessly mired in political cynicism for so long that one has come to take it for granted. Criticizing it would be as pointless as criticizing a dinosaur afloat in mud. But rehabilitating Hitlerism — surely there were some things they would not do.

There weren't. We may suppose there aren't.

In this case, Russian policy was dictated by desire to play the regular fellow with the Arab, as well as the so-called "Third-World" states which are becoming the arbiters of international moral conduct.

A curiosity of the Soviet government is its utter inability to be embarrassed. It has the true cynic's indifference to public exposure of its own hypocrisy. Trudging about the earth championing the freedom of oppressed peoples, it deports or imprisons its own people for attempting to exercise free expression.

Throughout the Watergate catastrophe in Washington, so long as it appeared that Nixon, with whom it was doing profitable business, might survive, it printed and broadcast nothing of what was going on. After Nixon's removal, it used the squalor revealed in the Watergate hearings as text to denounce the United States for a police state.

It was shocked — it was appalled — to discover that the American government had been conducting wire-tapping, bugging, burglaries, character assassination and police provocations against American citizens.

Imagine Al Capone denouncing Jersey City for harboring corrupt politicians. It is the sort of thing the Soviet government does regularly without even a wink.

Now, in addition to leading its client states down to the haberdasher to fit anti-Semitism out in a fancy new suit, it paused at the visa office to forbid Andrei Sakharov to leave the country to collect his Nobel Peace Prize.

Sakharov has misbehaved. He has criticized the Soviet government. The Soviet government, however, always has a better explanation of why beastliness is the best policy. Sakharov's request to travel is refused for security reasons. He is a nuclear physicist.

In the same way it will in other arenas have other explanations for endorsing anti-Semitism: Henry Kissinger, who is not entirely without cynicism himself, doubtless understands these without having them articulated.

"The General Assembly," Moscow might say. "What does it amount to? A cave of windbags with no more divisions than the Pope. A place for Banana republics to puff themselves up, give themselves airs, let off steam and pass ridiculous resolutions.

"It is like being stuck in a downpour with a garrulous, opinionated cab driver. One nods, agrees, humors him without listening, then goes about his business. The General Assembly — it amounts to nothing finally."

What it will be telling the Arabs, of course, is something quite different. Like all the great political opportunists, it tells the audience whatever it wants to hear.

One can speak of it this way outside the Soviet Union without annoying it in the least. Criticizing it from without is like sticking pins in a rhinoceros.

American Status In U.N. Slipping

WASHINGTON — The U.N. General Assembly's approval of a resolution declaring that Zionism "is a form of racism and racial discrimination" is only the latest in a series of votes demonstrating that American influence in the world organization has deteriorated over the years. At its birth in 1945, the United Nations had 51 member countries. Today there are 142, the great majority of which are Third World, developing, or non-aligned countries.

In the early days of the U.N., the United States could usually count on other non-communist members for support in the General Assembly. Today, on the other hand, the 100-odd less-developed member countries often vote in opposition to the United States and other western industrial powers.

The situation is deeply disturbing to American officials. "The future of the United Nations is clouded," Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said in an address to the Institute of World Affairs in Milwaukee on July 14. ". . . Troubling trends have appeared in the General Assembly and some of its specialized agencies. Ideological confrontation, bloc voting and new attempts to manipulate the charter to achieve unilateral ends threaten to turn the United Nations into a weapon of political warfare rather than a healer of political conflict and a promoter of human welfare."

The General Assembly's only functions are to discuss, to study, to recommend and to call world attention to problems and recommended solutions. It has no authority to commit U.N. members to direct action. That power resides in the Security Council, of which the United States is one of the five permanent members.

The council's principal duties are to investigate tinderbox situations, to mediate disputes between nations, to determine when a threat to peace exists, to call on members to apply economic sanctions and — most significant of all — to take military action. Security Council decisions require the affirmative votes of at least nine of the 15 members, including those of all five permanent members. Any one of the five thus may veto a council decision.

In certain circumstances, it is possible to sidestep a Security Council veto. The American-sponsored "Uniting for Peace" resolution, adopted by the General Assembly in 1950, provided that if exercise of the veto power prevented the Security Council from taking action to maintain peace, the assembly might be called into emergency session on 24 hours' notice — at the request of any seven members of the Security Council or a majority of the members of the General Assembly — to make recommendations for collective security action.

The main purpose of the resolution was to provide a way of neutralizing any Soviet veto of a U.N. peacekeeping operation. It is entirely possible, however, that the resolution will some day be invoked in response to an American veto of such a venture.

Meanwhile, the Third World countries no doubt will continue to throw their weight around in the General Assembly and trample on American toes in the process. The question is whether the United States, which contributes more money to the U.N. than any other country, will suffer such treatment in silence or attempt some form of reprisal. In any event, it is clear that the days of American dominance in the United Nations have passed and are unlikely ever to return.

Jewish Couple, 'Heartsick' At U.N. Resolution

Seeing The Real Issues

Lincoln, Neb.

As life-long advocates of the United Nations, we are heartsick at the recent action by the U.N. which labeled Zionism racism.

As Jews, we are alarmed and frightened at the worldwide anti-Semitism this action may trigger.

But, as Americans, we are proud of our country's position. We believe Ambassador Moynihan's response was superb. We applaud the unanimous vote of condemnation of this action by the House of Representatives and the Senate. We approve President Ford's rejection of the resolution and agree that it cannot be ignored

We pray that there will be better days in the U. N. so that it can fulfill the hope for world peace, and address itself to the real issues of racism.

Plea For Return Of Purse

Lincoln, Neb.

Since it was my purse someone chose to steal Saturday evening around 8:00 p.m. in front of the Safeway at Treasure City, I want to tell that someone how brave a person he must be, opening the car door under all those bright lights in front of the main entrance. I'm willing to take part of the blame for not locking the doors, however he must be very quick at his job, as I ran in only to cash a check, which took maybe three minutes.

Is he human enough to realize the baby pictures, driver's license and all those things that mean a lot to me and nothing to him could be returned without my finding out who he is? Would he be so kind as to call me and maybe drop off the things he doesn't want some place where I can pick them up?

There wasn't a lot of money in it but maybe enough for what he evidently needed, so he is welcome to it! He can find us in the phone book and he has all the information he needs to look it up.

I hope he will think about this and decide it's the least he could do. Some day maybe this will happen to him (and I certainly hope so).

And if I sound bitter, it's because I am I work for everything I have. How about the individual who took my purse?

Orchestra Featured

Lincoln, Neb.

I have had many fine comments on the full-page spread in The Star on Nov. 5 abut the Lincoln Symphony.

Gracia McAndrew did a most excellent job of going through that ton of material, and getting organized so that it made sense. So many have spoken of how well it was presented

The Symphony Association is most appreciative of this publicity, especially as it is our 50th year and also that we are faced with an extra heavy expense due to the transition of our conductors.

A Park For Malcolm

Malcolm, Neb.

In Malcolm we now have a community park with play equipment for our children and picnic equipment for our families We would like to thank the Malcolm Planning Commission under Rex Guerin's leadership for its work in making the park possible. We appreciate the work by many people in raising funds for the park — the men of Green Thumb and their work and the Lincoln firm that was so gracious in letting us use their heavy equipment.

We want to say a special thank-you to the men who set up the equipment Nov 8. Many children and adults will enjoy the Malcolm park for years to come

Honey selling was a success in the Hildreth community thanks to the Hildreth Cub Scouts of Dens 1 and 2. The following boys assisted in selling: Troy Casper, Lance Jeldon, Bryan Casper, Greg Frecks, Curtis Bauer, Joel Panter and Charles Polleck. Webloes of the group were Steve Burns and Clark Bauer, also of Hildreth.

Extra workers were Michele Polleck, Brenda Casper, Susan and Mary Polleck, Becky Casper, Teresa Frecks and Linda Fruhling, all of Hildreth; Barbara Hohlen of Hastings, Jeff and Jan Fruhling of Kearney, Lisa and Michael Ryan of Ravenna.

The children sold 94 jars of honey. The money goes to local associations to help the retarded.

Lessons To Be Learned

DuBois, Neb.

Here is a new slogan: "Liberals Are Bankrupt!"

One day in the news we read of rights: right to food, right to sex, right to revolt, right not to go to jail, right to college, right to health, and on and on. Many liberal groups are bankrupt morally.

The next day we read of grants for some group. We count and there are six or seven grant programs suddenly for the group. We throw money at every problem.

Where federal help is given, federal regs follow. We can't have Big Government intervention and freedom. Liberals have not learned these lessons.

N.Y. Officials Slate Crackdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Times Square: a paradox of pornography amid a plenty of restaurants and cultural pastimes, a center of vice at the crossroads of New York, the place where the New Year begins on everybody's TV set.

They're going to try to clean it up — again.

The city fathers have declared war on the paradox once more, vowing to rid the area of its massage parlors, of book stores that flaunt glossy, graphic sex, of pimps, of prostitutes and of movie theaters that screen bizarre sexual couplings.

Although administrations have come and gone with unkept vows to clean up Times Square, Mayor Abraham D. Beame says that this time, with the Democratic National Convention due in July, the campaign will work.

"We realize it's going to be difficult," says Deputy Mayor Paul Gibson, who is in charge of the crackdown. "We realize we're going to have a lot of problems."

The deputy mayor himself says he doubts Times Square will ever be totally free of sleazy doings. But, he continues, "We certainly can reduce the impact they have on the area."

Its habitues are sanguine. Says one bookseller who admits to 75 pornography arrests since 1970: "The vast majority will stay."

Another bookseller who has survived multiple arrests says the campaign is a waste of time and money.

"I don't kill people. I don't make movies — none of that nonsense," he says. "No one gets hurt over here."

But according to the Broadway Association, the League of New York Theaters and Producers and City Hall, people do indeed get hurt, people like the six salesmen waiting forlornly in their empty haberdashery just yards from a movie marquee trumpeting "the ultimate porno trip."

"It's the concentration that's damaging, and I'm talking from a business viewpoint, not a moral viewpoint," says real estate speculator Seymour Durst, chairman of the Broadway Association.

Nowhere is that concentration more evident than on 42nd Street, throbbing with the incandescent glitter of one tawdry movie theater after another. A half-century ago, this street gave Broadway's Great White Way its brilliance.

Now it is a street of sin, perfumed with pizzerias, lined with burly houses, pornographic book stores and a blaze of tourist-trapping shops. Shuffling streams of humanity pass by, eyeing the shadowy figures, male and female, slouched in doorways, retailing easy sex.

"Anyone who expects we're going to eliminate prostitution is not being realistic," says mayoral aide Sidney Baumgarten, head of the Midtown Law Enforcement Coordinating Committee. "Our job is to suppress it to the point where it isn't a public nuisance and doesn't intrude on other people's lives."

TIMES SQUARE . . . they'll try to clean it up again.

The former prosecutor lays the cause of proliferating pornography to increased permissiveness and what he terms a fading distinction between what is acceptible activity in private and in public.

"Whether you want to moralize or not," he goes on, "the fact is that legitimate business cannot survive in this area at all."

A case in point is a 2,000-room hotel that Atlanta architect-developer John Portman has proposed for Times Square. But last January, he warned of abandoning the project for want of long-term financing.

"Times Square, whether you like it or not, is the image of New York, and right now that image is not very good," he said then. "Unless faith is restored, it is going to be a long, hard winter."

Chairman Gerald Schoenfeld of the Shubert organization, active in the Broadway Association and the theater group, concurs:

"When you have an unhealthy environment, not only are we affected, but the whole city is affected. The whole city is victim."

Prodded mainly by real estate interests and the theater, which foresook its earlier ostrich stance, the city has obtained a $432,000 federal grant to fight the problem.

Its two-pronged attack, which began last month, would eliminate litter and close down undesirable operations by building a record against them as public nuisances.

This is being done through a team of fire, building, electrical and health inspectors who repeatedly visit sleazy operations with a police officer to detect violations and in that way build a public nuisance case.

The city will hold hearings Wednesday on a proposed zoning ordinance that would classify legitimate massage operations as physical culture establishments.

They would be allowed in Times Square only if they meet the standards of a nationally recognized sports institution or if they are to be situated in a community facility or hotel with more than 200 rooms. New ones would be prohibited for a year.

Additionally, Baumgarten is seeking passage of a new antiloitering law. The old one was declared unconstitutional last year.

"The legislature has been either unwilling or unable to focus on the problem, and that's where it belongs," he says.

The zoning and the antiloitering proposals are said by legal experts to be on shaky ground and to face constitutional challenges if enacted.

Part of the financially strapped city's strategy has been to encourage the community's participation. Some groups are buying sidewalk vacuums, and one private source is giving the city $150,000 for each of the next three years for midtown enhancement.

Nor is participation solely economic. A citizens' advisory panel is being formed to monitor the effectiveness of the cleanup campaign.

Will Times Square ever be free of its prostitutes, its pimps and its pornography?

"I doubt if that time will ever come, but . . . we're going to be able to contain it all over the city," says Deputy Mayor Gibson.

The reason, he says, is that the city has made "a conscience effort to coordinate whatever resources we can bring to bear on the problem" and that the effort will be sustained.

No one is promising any miracles.

"You can't expect it to be done quickly," says the Broadway Association's Durst, whose land assembling once found him the embarassed owner of a prostitution hotel. "It's taken 20 years to reach this condition, and it will take a long time to recover from it."

Police Inspector Milton Schwartz, whose command includes Times Square, says it's not that dangerous now and cleaning up what he calls its "visual pollution" is not a high priority with him.

Considering the number of persons who pass through the area, he adds, "the chance of being mugged there is almost nil."

What about legalizing prostitution and creating a special "red light" zone for prostitutes, massage parlors, dirty book stores and porno movie houses — a zone like the "boys' towns" in many Mexican border cities or Boston's Combat Zone?

For the time being, the city says, no, it won't consider legalizing prostitution or setting aside a red-light district.

The deputy mayor and the mayor's assistant say such measures create as many problems, political and legal, as they might solve. They say that New Yorkers, despite their reputation, are pretty moral and don't want to legalize prostitution.

Our next-door neighbor has four dogs. He never cleans the pens and we and our neighbors can't open our windows without getting that terrible smell. We also have to put up with the noise of their barking. We've called the health department and the Humane Society.

—Dan Coufal, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Dept. has taken quick action on your complaint. Denis Grams, assistant chief of environmental health, sent out an inspector to check on the problem Friday. The inspector found that your neighbor was violating city sanitation ordinances, despite earlier warnings. The matter now has been turned over to the city attorney's office, which promised to file charges immediately. Grams also said your neighbor's ownership of four dogs may violate an ordinance against keeping a kennel in your zoning area.

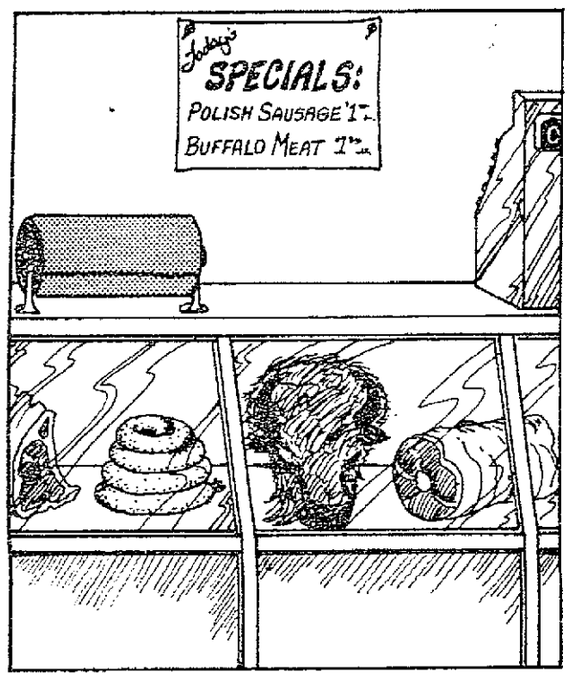

How does a person get a patent on an invention? Where can I write for information?

—F.B.A., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Obtaining a patent isn't a simple procedure, according to the Federal Information Center in Omaha. You must make an application to the Commissioner of Patents in Washington, D.C. The application must include plans of your invention. There is a $65 filing fee and a $100 final fee if the patent is granted. The process is sufficiently complex that it is usually handled by a patent attorney. The Omaha center is sending you the government pamphlet "Questions and Answers About Patents" that gives a detailed explanation. Other readers can obtain a free copy by writing to Federal Information Center, 215 No. 17th St., Omaha.

Could you tell me where one can buy buffalo meat in quantities less than a quarter or half? It is supposed to be low in cholesterol and I'm sure a large number of people would be interested in buying it if available locally.

—G.D.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: There apparently is only one source of buffalo meat in small quantities in the Capital City, and that's no bull. Shuster's Jack and Jill market, 140 Capital Beach Blvd., can provide buffalo hamburger, roasts and other cuts in family-size packages. The butcher there says the market doesn't stock the meat because of low demand for it, but does accept orders for quick delivery. The price of buffalo meat fluctuates, he said.

Since when does the public have to wait hand and foot on cable TV? It was to be installed in my home Oct. 22. They rescheduled installation for Nov. 4. No one showed up. I called and they said they would be out the morning of Nov. 5. They came in the afternoon when no one was home.

—Ray Kuta, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: It seems that Cablevision, 401 So. 21st St., may have its wires crossed a little. John Romania, assistant manager, said no appointment should have been made for you Oct. 22 since the firm's installers don't work Saturdays. He said the work wasn't done Nov. 4 because too many appointments were scheduled for that day. The work order for Nov. 5 didn't specify that the installation was to be done in the morning, Romania said. He said he would call you this week to set up another appointment, which he promised would be kept this time.

About 18 months ago I purchased three golf clubs from Cobra Golf in San Diego, Calif. After some correspondence, I asked them to replace the clubs because the wood cracked or refund my $108. I haven't heard from them since July.

—Teed-Off, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Tom Crow, manager of Cobra Golf, 5569 Kearney Villa Road, San Diego, Calif. 92123, said three new clubs were ordered for you from the manufacturer Nov. 10. He said he expected that you would receive them in about two weeks. Crow added that he ordered a different brand from the brand of the cracked clubs, as you requested in an earlier letter.

On Aug. 14, I ordered a short-wave radio kit from Burstein-Applebee of Kansas City. When the kit arrived, I found that a tuning coil was missing. I wrote to them and they said the manufacturer would send a replacement part to me. I'm still waiting and the kit is worthless without the part.

—Ellis Butcher, Hebron

ACTION LINE: Burstein-Applebee, 3199 Mercier St., Kansas City, Mo. 64111, is checking with the manufacturer about your complaint. Ray Freeze, customer service manager, said that if the part is not available, the firm will send you another kit or refund your money.

For Spies, World War II Never Came To An End

©The New York Times

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK

Washington — For most Americans, World War II ended on Aug. 15, 1945. Though the United States would send troops into foreign battle twice in the next 30 years it would never return to the war footing of the early 1940s. Now an 11-month congressional investigation of the nation's intelligence agencies has disclosed that for the spies and counerspies, World War II never really ended.

On May 21, 1940, in the face of the armed might of Germany and Japan, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a secret memorandum to the attorney general stating that he believed electronic surveillance would be proper under the Constitution where "grave matters involving the defense of the nation" existed.

He authorized the attorney general, and thus the FBI, "to secure information by listening devices (directed at) the conversation or other communications of persons suspected of subversive activities against the government of the United States, including spies."

It was drastic action, but a world war loomed.

Truman Carried It On

With a signature scribbled on a letter from his attorney general, Tom C. Clark, President Harry S. Truman carried the practice into peacetime in July 1946. Clark had told the president that there was "an increase in subversive activities."

The FBI used this authority for 24 years of bugging and wiretapping without a court order. It placed some 6,000 wiretaps and 1,800 secret microphones. Since the microphones were usually put on private premises, each placement constituted a break-in. The current attorney general, Edward H. Levi, has gently dubbed them "trespassory microphone surveillances."

The wiretapping and bugging were sharply reduced in the mid-1960s. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was one of those who noticed the political atmosphere had changed.

Cables are not a dissimilar case. During World War II the military censored every overseas communication leaving or entering the United States. It was war, and every serviceman knew that his letter or telegram was probably going to be read by someone else.

Cable Copies Turned Over

In 1947, two years after the war ended, James V. Forrestal, then secretary of defense, persuaded the three major cable companies to give the government secretly copies of overseas cables of certain targets of foreign intelligence. Presumably the targets were Soviet bloc nations.

Between 1947 and 1975 this practice, expanded and abetted by technology, enabled the National Security Agency to monitor virtually every overseas cable communication. International telephone calls have also been eavesdropped upon. Members of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which has been investigating the practice, believe the entire operation violates the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution and sections of the Federal Communications Act.

Mail opening, another wartime practice that brought few outcries, was secretly continued by the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency for two decades after World Wr II.

The men who manned U.S. intelligence agencies from the days of the Berlin airlift to the antiwar riots by and large believed that the nation was in an undeclared conflict with Soviet communism.

Men Died In Cold War

"You know there was a cold war," one retired CIA intelligence officer remarked in a recent interview. "I know. I fought in it and my friends died in it."

The various intelligence agencies have, in general, relied upon what they believed to be the president's powers to suspend civil liberties in national emergencies as the justification for their domestic surveillance programs. Indeed, the wiretap law of 1968, which ran into constitutional problems in the courts, set out this proposition.

"Nor shall anything contained in this chapter be deemed to limit the constitutional power of the President to take such measures as he deems necessary to protect the United States against the overthrow of the government by force or other unlawful means, or against any other clear and present danger to the structure or existence of the government."

Ths was the atmosphere in 1968 as cities burned in racial rioting and antiwar groups participated in civil disturbance.

Both Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon pressed the intelligence agencies to find out if civil disturbance was secretly supported by the Russians. The cold war was clearly still on.

But Is U.S. Still In War?

There are indications that next year, when the Senate and House debate new laws for the intelligence agencies, a significant part of the issue will be whether in this time of detente the United Still is still in a war.

At one point in a recent public hearing, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, the Democratic chairman of the intelligence committee, posed one position:

"I think we should recognize the distinction between war and peace, and it poses the question whether this country in peacetime wants to live always under the customs of war."

Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, the Republican vice chairman, quickly responded with the other side:

"I think to make a fine distinction on a matter of war and peace ignores the fact that we are confronted in this world by a very powerful adversary that would not hesitate to resort to military means to achieve its political objectives . . . we are in effect in a war of sorts . . ."

Church believes the Senate can write legislation curbing the internal powers of the intelligence agencies without reducing their effectiveness. If the Senate cannot, and Tower's analysis is correct, the United States will be in a perpetual war.

Contributions Must Be Voluntary . . .

Businesses Allowed To Solicit Political Money From Employes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission voted Tuesday to permit corporations to solicit political contributions from among their employes.

By a 4-2 vote, the commissioners said companies may support the election campaigns of candidates for Congress or president, as long as the money comes from voluntary employe contributions.

The FEC said in a final opinion, however, "that there is in the best intentioned plans a potential for coercion which is inherent in the employment relationship and which may be triggered by solicitation of employes by or on behalf of an employer."

The commission acted in response to a request from Sun Oil Corp., which sought to continue administering and paying the costs of organizing a political fund.

Two dissenting commissioners, Thomas Harris and Robert O. Tiernan, said a corporation should be permitted to use funds from its treasury only to solicit stockholders for contributions.

Long before creation of the commission, it had been illegal for corporations to tap their treasuries to make political contributions. Dozens of companies were taken to court by the Special Watergate Prosecutor's Office under that part of the federal election laws.

Since last summer, however, the commissioners have been wrestling with the more complicated question of firms which seek to support candidates with funds contributed by their employes.

The FEC ruling allows companies to dip into their treasuries to administer political funds, which must be kept separate from the rest of their operations.

Staff lawyers of the FEC had urged an end to employe solicitations. Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard L. Thornburgh had said the Justice Department probably would refuse to prosecute violations of the FEC ruling even if employe solicitations were declared illegal.

The FEC said in its opinion that within each company, "no superior should solicit a subordinate."

The commissioners also said each worker should be told the purpose of any political fund for which he is solicited. The employe should also be informed of his right to refuse to contribute "without reprisal of any kind," the FEC said.

In a closely related issue, the FEC also said corporations may establish and pay for the administration of nonpartisan bank accounts into which their employes would deposit political contributions to candidates of their choosing.

The contributions would be automatically deducted from the paychecks of workers who signed up to participate.

Rumsfeld Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate confirmed President Ford's choice of Donald Rumsfeld as the nation's new secretary of defense by a vote of 95 to 2 Tuesday.

Both senators casting negative votes, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Richard Stone, D-Fla., said they were protesting the way Ford fired Defense Secretary Rames R. Schlesinger 16 days earlier and replaced him with Rumsfeld, the White House chief of staff.

Much of the 30-minute debate was taken up with speeches praising the outgoing secretary. After the confirmation vote, the Senate by voice vote passed a resolution commending Schlesinger.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Brisk mornings and all's well at Snug Harbor. Oh, a few skate board crashes. But nothing an old frontier surgeon can't fix.

I said to the youngest boy: "That ain't no hunting arrow, podner. That's a Sioux war shaft. We'd better fort up while I butcher it out of you."

A great many of my medical miracles I attribute to Band-Aids.

Taking care of children is not child's play. How to get them through life's thorny paths calls for a lot of luck. Forget anything else.

"Tell me about Egypt." The youngest chick has a book: "Ancient Civilizations." Now she's being tested.

I said: "Egypt? Well, there's the Nile — that's a river. They have belly dancers. Belly dancing is very big in Egypt."

She said: "What do they eat?"

"Dates," I said. "Lots of dates."

She said: "I don't think the teacher will like that. They must eat other things."

I said "Look. You asked me to do your homework. Free. No pay. If you don't put up any front money, you get an inferior product."

I'm getting a lot of queries on "a" plus "b" equals etc. I said: "I passed algebra. But for the life of me I can't remember how I did it."

I walked out of the ivied halls of learning shedding knowledge like a snake sheds his skin. In all life's ups and downs, I never found a need for algebra. I put it in some dusty closet of my mind and there it sits.

I said: "Cleopatra was an Egyptian face card. Her boy friend was a Roman name of Marc Antony. He made shish kebab of himself on his sword saying: 'I am dying, Egypt, dying.' "

She consulted her notes and said: "What did the ancient Egyptians raise?

I said: "Dates — they are dates so they must have raised them. And cotton. Pearls. Cleopatra used to melt pearls in her martinis."

She said: "Why did she do that?"

I said: "Maybe they hadn't invented the cocktail onion."

She said: "Are you sure? The teacher didn't say anything about that."

I said: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child. I quote the Bard himself. Fetch me the cooking sherry, there's a dear girl."

☆ ☆ ☆

You leave school with a feeling of relief. "That's that. Let's get the show on the road."

You stop at the first bank and ask if they'd like to hire a new president. They tell you to start at the bottom and work up. The bottom is a kind of depressed slum area. Always room for one more.

It's when you start to work up, you find somebody is not standing on the ladder. He's standing on your fingers.

Home, sweet home? Not so. Home is where you do homework.

Polygamists To Build Backbone City

Backbone, Utah (UPI) — With his covey of 13 young wives in tow, polygamist Alex Joseph and eight followers have abandoned their disputed southern Utah homesteads and moved down the road to build themselves a city.

"They won't let us be homesteaders so we're going to build a city and be city people," said Joseph as he headed for the town he has named Backbone (Backers of the American Constitution to Build Our Nation's Energy).

Joseph said Backbone will be located 11 miles west of Glen Canyon City and 16 miles south of the disputed homestead in Kane County.

The nine-person group tore down sheds, work shacks and trailers and packed them out of the Bureau of Land Management's Cottonwood Canyon, leaving behind about 100 other homesteaders who are not covered by a federal judge's order to vacate the dusty, craggy canyon.

Joseph, a 39-year-old excommunicated Mormon who started his own church, said the group was leaving to show it wants to cooperate with the court, but he vowed to continue the fight to legitimize the homestead claims.

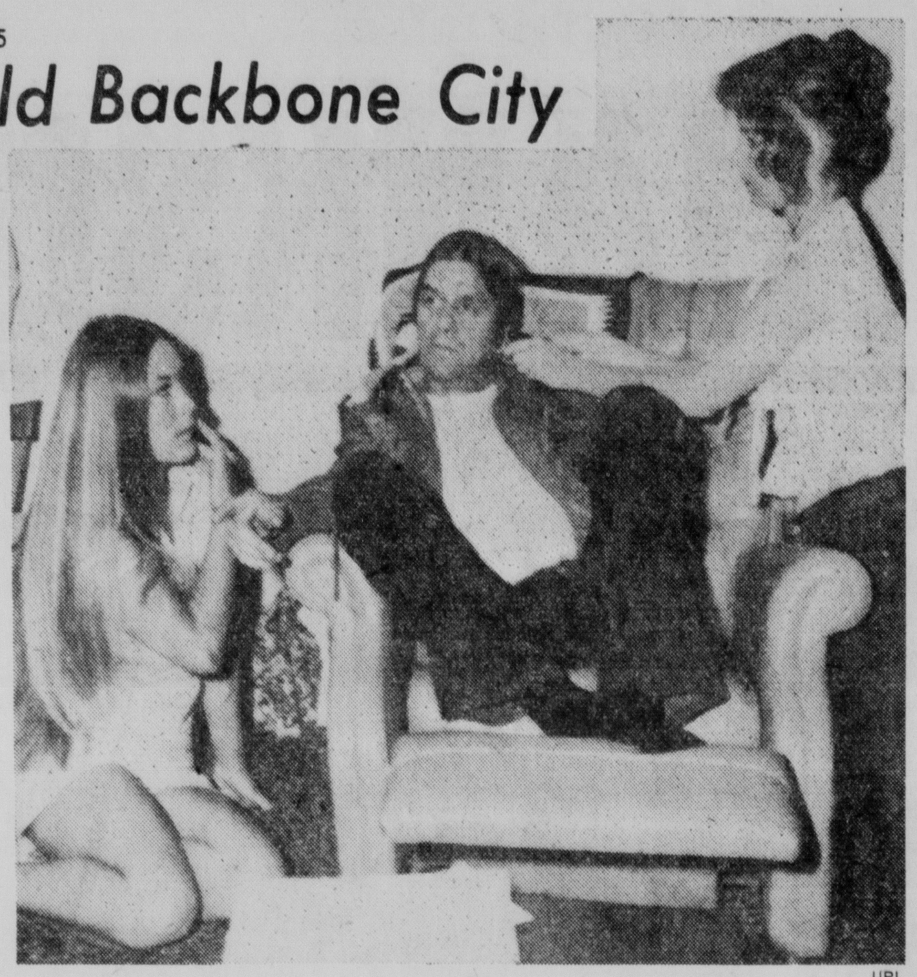

"We're trying to cooperate with the court in every way and we always have," said Joseph, his Indian-style braids pulled back, a pistol on his hip.

The exodus began as U.S. Atty. Ramon Child sought a writ of assistance, which he described as "in the nautre of an eviction order" to send federal marshals to the Kane County homesteads to forcibly remove the squatters from the land.

Stephen Bryant, Joseph's attorney, said he had advised his clients to move because they can keep up the fight in court without actually living on the disputed land.

Joseph said he has already built the Backbone Electric Co. (a portable generator) and the Backbone Water Co. (a water tank on the bed of a truck) and permanent houses and businesses will follow.

"If I'm going to build a city, it's going to be a nice one."

NFO Members To Be Told U.S. Not Involved In Collection

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the National Farmers Organization (NFO) to tell its members the federal government won't be directly involved in efforts to collect delinquent membership dues.

U.S. District Judge William Stuart signed a temporary injunction prohibiting NFO representatives from telling members of the farm organization the government will try to collect the dues if they are not paid.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) sought the order in connection with its suit against the NFO. Stuart said the order was issued with the consent of the NFO, but "without the NFO admitting or denying the allegations."

The judge ordered the NFO to print a 600-word statement on the front page of the December issue of "NFO Reporter" outlining the SEC lawsuit and explaining steps that can be taken to collect back dues.

On aspect of the dispute over the NFO's financial condition is the question of whether back dues are collectible. The SEC twice has tried to have a receiver appointed for the NFO.

The SEC has contended that about $45 million is owed in back dues, and that only a small percentage can be collected.

The statement to be printed explains the duties of a receiver, says that the receiver may "continue the dues collection effort, including lawsuits," if appointed.

But the statement informs members that "should the receiver take steps to collect...dues, neither the SEC nor the federal court would be directly involved" in the effort.

Members are to be told in the statement that the NFO has "redoubled its efforts to collect back dues" in order to raise money to keep current bills paid and to counter the SEC's contention that only a small percentage can be collected.

$6,245 Paid For Grand Champion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A syndicate of six businessmen paid $6,245 Tuesday for the grand champion steer of the American Royal Horse and Livestock Show. The animal was then donated to the strikebound Kansas City Philharmonic Association.

The top bid was $5.09 a pound for the 1,265-pound animal, an Angus-Chianina steer owned by Jeff Gropper, 18, of Grinnell, Iowa. Gropper, whose steer was chosen the 4-H Club champion Monday, said he would use the money received from the auction to attend college.

The bid was nine cents a pound more than was paid for the grand champion steer last year.

John Latshaw, the main bidder for the syndicate, said the carcass would be donated to the Philharmonic, whose musicians went on strike at the start of the season in a salary dispute.

No Evidence Found That Fluoride Causes Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute said Tuesday there is no evidence that fluoridated water causes cancer, and there is some suggestion that high levels of natural fluoride may reduce cancers of the brain and nervous system.

The institute said its new study, prompted by earlier allegations by the National Health Federation in California, "provides no support for recent claims that fluoridation of water supplies in the United States has increased the risk of cancer."

"No significant excess mortality from cancer could be detected up to 15 years after fluoridation in areas where 95% of the population had been abruptly and continuously exposed."

The health federation had studied cancer rates in the 10 largest fluoridated and 10 largest non-fluoridated counties and concluded that fluoride contributed to higher cancer rates in Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and Philadelphia.

The cancer institute last May criticized the federation's statements as containing "factual errors and oversimplified data" that ignored other factors associated with cancer, such as population density, industrial concentraion, educational achievement and the per cent of the population that is non-white or from foreign countries.

To answer the charges more fully, government researchers last August began studying naturally fluoridated counties in Texas and communities elsewhere in the country that began adding fluoride to their water between 1950 and 1969, and compared them with cancer death rate during that 20-year period.

After all the demographic variables had been taken into account, the report said, "the presence or absence of fluoride made no statistically significant contribution for any site, other than stomach cancer. Stomach cancer is known to have a relationship with specific ethnic groups.

"A finding of possible importance," the report added, "was the reduced mortality from cancers of the brain and nervous system in communities with high levels of natural fluoride.

"This finding may be due to chance, because of the multiple comparisons made in this analysis, but additional observations in other areas seem indicated," it said.

Thousands of communities across the country have fluoridated their water at the urging of medical and dental groups who say the element can cut dental cavities by two-thirds.

By the end of 1972, according to the Public Health Service, virtually every state had natural or added fluoride in its water, led by the District of Columbia with 100% of its population drinking fluoridated water. Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado and Michigan all had fluoridated water reaching more than 90% of their populations.

Gunman Calmly Pumps Seven Shots Into Wounded Victim

NEW YORK (AP) — A murder defendant with reputed underworld connections was shot to death on a Brooklyn street Tuesday by a gunman who first wounded the victim and then calmly pumped seven more shots at him as he tried to flee.

Police identified the dead man as Mario Paniccioli, 27, of Staten Island, who was to appear in court to start jury selection Tuesday for his trial on charges of killing a bartender in a shootout linked to cigarette smuggling operations.

Paniccioli was driving down a quiet, tree-lined block of Bedford Avenue, between Glenwood and Farragut roads, in the Midwood section when two shots were fired through his windshield, police said.

Witnesses told police that Paniccioli jumped out of the slowly moving car and began running down the street. He had apparently been wounded, for blood was found in the car.

The gunman, said to be about 19 years old and wearing a fur hat, went down on one knee, took careful aim and squeezed off the additional shots from his automatic pistol, witnesses said. He escaped before police arrived.

Housing Starts Up In October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported Tuesday that the number of new housing units started in October spurted to the highest level in 15 months, providing evidence that the sluggish housing industry may be ready to make a stronger contribution to the over-all economic recovery.

Until now, relatively high interest rates and the depletion of consumer savings during the recession have dampened recovery in the housing industry.

But the Commerce Department said starts on new housing hit a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.458 million in October, up by 15% from the previous month. And, at the same time, the department revised upward the total of September starts to 1.268 million, only 1,000 less than August. The September level of starts as originally reported had shown a 2.2% drop.

The October total was 31.8% ahead of the same month last year, when the industry had the lowest level of starts in seven years. However, activity remained 12.9% behind two years ago for the same month.

Reagan's Column To Cease

San Diego (AP) — Ronald Reagan's weekly commentary column is being discontinued after this week, Copley News Service has informed 260 newspaper subscribers.

It was still another hint — along with the chartering of a campaign jet for this coming Thursday and Friday — that Reagan will become a formal candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

The news service started distributing the Reagan column a week after the former governor left office last Jan. 6.

In a notice attached to this week's column, Copley News Service advised its subscribers:

"This is the last of the Ronald Reagan columns. Since the governor is expeeted to announce his presidential candidacy on Nov. 20, we are releasing this column for immediate publication."

The Farm outlook is important. Complete coverage of the latest of importance to agriculture appears on the "Sunday Journal and Star" farm page.

For Spies, World War II Never Came To An End

©The New York Times

By NICHOLAS M. HORROCK

Washington — For most Americans, World War II ended on Aug. 15, 1945. Though the United States would send troops into foreign battle twice in the next 30 years it would never return to the war footing of the early 1940s. Now an 11-month congressional investigation of the nation's intelligence agencies has disclosed that for the spies and counerspies, World War II never really ended.

On May 21, 1940, in the face of the armed might of Germany and Japan, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued a secret memorandum to the attorney general stating that he believed electronic surveillance would be proper under the Constitution where "grave matters involving the defense of the nation" existed.

He authorized the attorney general, and thus the FBI, "to secure information by listening devices (directed at) the conversation or other communications of persons suspected of subversive activities against the government of the United States. including spies."

It was drastic action, but a world war loomed.

Truman Carried It On

With a signature scribbled on a letter from his attorney general, Tom C. Clark, President Harry S. Truman carried the practice into peacetime in July 1946. Clark had told the president that there was "an increase in subversive activities."

The FBI used this authority for 24 years of bugging and wiretapping without a court order. It placed some 6,000 wiretaps and 1,800 secret microphones. Since the microphones were usually put on private premises, each placement constituted a break-in. The current attorney general, Edward H. Levi, has gently dubbed them "trespassory microphone surveillances."

The wiretapping and bugging were sharply reduced in the mid-1960s. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover was one of those who noticed the political atmosphere had changed.

Cables are not a dissimilar case. During World War II the military censored every overseas communication leaving or entering the United States. It was war, and every serviceman knew that his letter or telegram was probably going to be read by someone else.

Cable Copies Turned Over

In 1947, two years after the war ended, James V. Forrestal, then secretary of defense, persuaded the three major cable companies to give the government secretly copies of overseas cables of certain targets of foreign intelligence. Presumably the targets were Soviet bloc nations.

Between 1947 and 1975 this practice, expanded and abetted by technology, enabled the National Security Agency to monitor virtually every overseas cable communication. International telephone calls have also been eavesdropped upon. Members of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which has been investigating the practice, believe the entire operation violates the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution and sections of the Federal Communications Act.

Mail opening, another wartime practice that brought few outcries, was secretly continued by the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency for two decades after World Wr II.

The men who manned U.S. intelligence agencies from the days of the Berlin airlift to the antiwar riots by and large believed that the nation was in an undeclared conflict with Soviet communism.

Men Died In Cold War

"You know there was a cold war," one retired CIA intelligence officer remarked in a recent interview. "I know. I fought in it and my friends died in it."

The various intelligence agencies have, in general, relied upon what they believed to be the president's powers to suspend civil liberties in national emergencies as the justification for their domestic surveillance programs. Indeed, the wiretap law of 1968, which ran into constitutional problems in the courts, set out this proposition.

"Nor shall anything contained in this chapter be deemed to limit the constitutional power of the President to take such measures as he deems necessary to protect the United States against the overthrow of the government by force or other unlawful means, or against any other clear and present danger to the structure or existence of the government."

Ths was the atmosphere in 1968 as cities burned in racial rioting and antiwar groups participated in civil disturbance.

Both Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon pressed the intelligence agencies to find out if civil disturbance was secretly supported by the Russians. The cold war was clearly still on.

But Is U.S. Still In War?

There are indications that next year, when the Senate and House debate new laws for the intelligence agencies, a significant part of the issue will be whether in this time of detente the United Still is still in a war.

At one point in a recent public hearing, Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, the Democratic chairman of the intelligence committee, posed one position:

"I think we should recognize the distinction between war and peace, and it poses the question whether this country in peacetime wants to live always under the customs of war."

Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, the Republican vice chairman, quickly responded with the other side:

"I think to make a fine distinction on a matter of war and peace ignores the fact that we are confronted in this world by a very powerful adversary that would not hesitate to resort to military means to achieve its political objectives . . . we are in effect in a war of sorts . . ."

Church believes the Senate can write legislation curbing the internal powers of the intelligence agencies without reducing their effectiveness. If the Senate cannot, and Tower's analysis is correct, the United States will be in a perpetual war.

Contributions Must Be Voluntary . . .

Businesses Allowed To Solicit Political Money From Employes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission voted Tuesday to permit corporations to solicit political contributions from among their employes.

By a 4-2 vote, the commissioners said companies may support the election campaigns of candidates for Congress or president, as long as the money comes from voluntary employe contributions.

The FEC said in a final opinion, however, "that there is in the best intentioned plans a potential for coercion which is inherent in the employment relationship and which may be triggered by solicitation of employes by or on behalf of an employer."

The commission acted in response to a request from Sun Oil Corp., which sought to continue administering and paying the costs of organizing a political fund.

Two dissenting commissioners, Thomas Harris and Robert O. Tiernan, said a corporation should be permitted to use funds from its treasury only to solicit stockholders for contributions.

Long before creation of the commission, it had been illegal for corporations to tap their treasuries to make political contributions. Dozens of companies were taken to court by the Special Watergate Prosecutor's Office under that part of the federal election laws.

Since last summer, however, the commissioners have been wrestling with the more complicated question of firms which seek to support candidates with funds contributed by their employes.

The FEC ruling allows companies to dip into their treasuries to administer political funds, which must be kept separate from the rest of their operations.

Staff lawyers of the FEC had urged an end to employe solicitations. Asst. Atty. Gen. Richard L. Thornburgh had said the Justice Department probably would refuse to prosecute violations of the FEC ruling even if employe solicitations were declared illegal.

The FEC said in its opinion that within each company, "no superior should solicit a subordinate."

The commissioners also said each worker should be told the purpose of any political fund for which he is solicited. The employe should also be informed of his right to refuse to contribute "without reprisal of any kind," the FEC said.

In a closely related issue, the FEC also said corporations may establish and pay for the administration of nonpartisan bank accounts into which their employes would deposit political contributions to candidates of their choosing.

The contributions would be automatically deducted from the paychecks of workers who signed up to participate.

Rumsfeld Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate confirmed President Ford's choice of Donald Rumsfeld as the nation's new secretary of defense by a vote of 95 to 2 Tuesday.

Both senators casting negative votes, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Richard Stone, D-Fla., said they were protesting the way Ford fired Defense Secretary Rames R Schlesinger 16 days earlier and replaced him with Rumsfeld, the White House chief of staff.

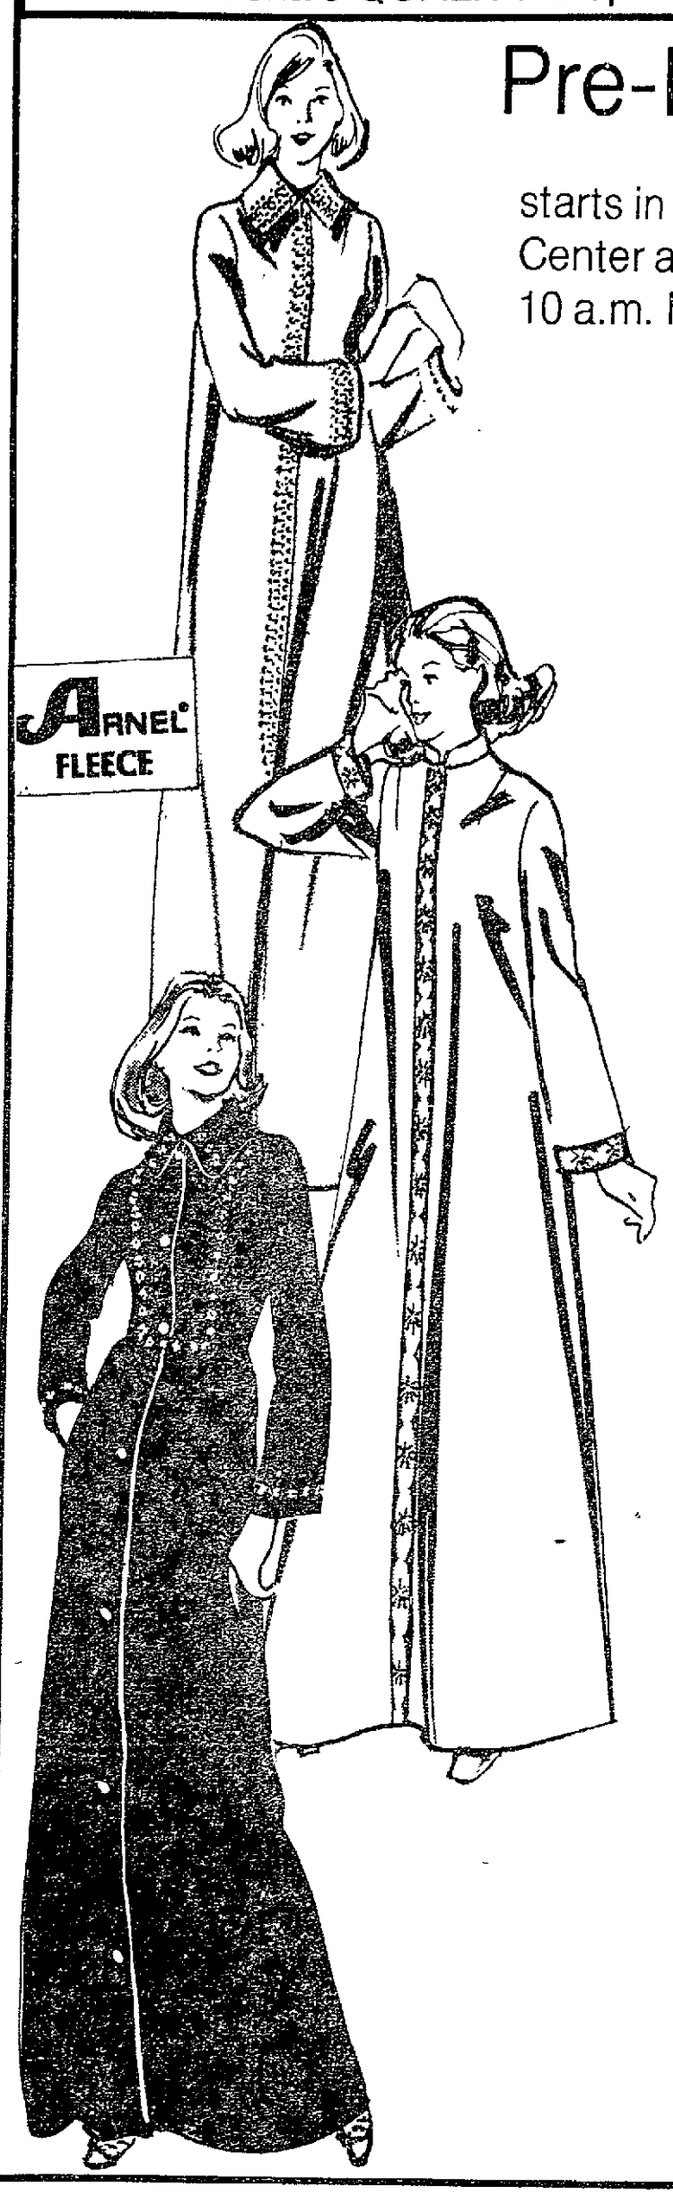

Much of the 30-minute debate was taken up with speeches praising the outgoing secretary. After the confirmation vote, the Senate by voice vote passed a resolution commending Schlesinger.

Egg Fancier Worries About Cholesterol

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have this passion for eggs and have enjoyed eating a soft-boiled egg almost every day since I was 19. I am 30 now. I worry because I continue to hear that eggs may create a cholesterol problem.

Presently, I am on a hypoglycemia diet on which there are other high-cholesterol foods. How dangerous is my egg eating? — Mrs. J. C.

Unfortunately, a high-protein diet, which is usually recommended for control of hypoglycemia, may turn out to be one rather high in cholesterol, but there are ways to beat this.

I wouldn't call your egg-a-day habit a "passion." But frying it in fat would boost the already high cholesterol content of your daily egg. As to your other high-protein, cholesterol-rich foods such as meat, there are corners to be cut. With meat, you can cut off those heavy trimmings of fat before cooking. Look for meat that is not heavily marbleized. This will reduce the cholesterol-to-weight ratio, and still give you the good protein value you want for your diet.

I can't tell for sure, but I suspect from your letter that you already have a high cholesterol reading. With hypoglycemia and cholesterol problems existing together, it is well to investigate thyroid function. An underfunctioning thyroid can contribute to each.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 17 years old, and I have developed a mild case of anorexia nervosa. I'm going through psychiatric treatment, and recently had a physical. My cholesterol is high and my thyroid is low. I have gained weight.

I want to know the types of food to avoid, and what foods to eat. The doctor mentioned thyroid medication, then discarded the idea. — Miss L.S.

What you have is loss of appetite caused by emotional states such as anger, fear, anxiety, and so on.

It is encouraging that you have gained weight. This may be why your doctor has decided against use of thyroid medication for you. In anorexia nervosa there is usually a lowered metabolism rate (low thyroid function) and a heightened cholesterol level in the blood. Thyroid medication may be necessary to control these problems. In most cases of anorexia nervosa resumption of proper food intake removes the thyroid problem.

As to your diet, your doctor should prescribe, but generally you want foods high in protein and vitamins.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68. About two years ago I developed overactive salivary glands. I'm uncomfortable and exhausted from constantly chewing and swallowing saliva. At times I choke. I'm active and in good health. Is there anything to be done? — Mrs. A.P.H.

Ptyalism (TY-a-lism) gets its name from ptyalin, an enzyme present in saliva which begins the digestive process in the mouth with chewing. It breaks down starch particles, chiefly. The enzyme is present in the juices secreted into the mouth by three pairs of glands (parotid, submaxillary, and sublingual).

Hypersecretion can stem from drugs or poisons (including tobacco and arsenic), or from local inflammation as in stomatitis. Nervous disorders such as migraine, motion sickness, tic douloureux, and others can be associated with it also. Denture material is often the irritant involved.

There are anti-secretory drugs that can help alleviate the salivation. Atropine is one, but it must be prescribed carefully and the patient supervised so that the opposite problem, undersecretion, does not occur.

An alkaline mouthwash can help, too.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Fires in the home have many causes. When fire strikes, do not risk a life. Call or send for help. Get persons out and away from the danger area immediately.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that smoke and heat are usually the killers, not flames. Develop a home fire drill and escape plan with a prearranged meeting place so you can have a head-count in emergency.

Fires involving combustible materials like wood, paper or hay, should be cooled off. Use water.

Grease, oil, paint or gasoline fires need to be smothered by shutting off the air. Stove-top grease fires can be put out with baking soda.

Electricity or electrical equipment fires must be smothered using dry chemical, dioxide or vaporizing liquid.

Only Bad Predicted

Boston (UPI) — The variety of Massachusetts weather was noted by Mark Twain: "Probable nor'-east to sou'-west winds, varying to the southard and westard and eastard and points between; high and low barometer, sweeping around from place to place; probable areas of rain, snow, hail and drought, succeeded or preceded by earthquakes with thunder and lightning."

Ore-Ida's new frozen vegetables.

35¢ says they're as good as our potatoes.

Broccoli. Beans. Corn. Peas. Spinach. Cauliflower. Mixed Vegetables.

Ten in all. A whole new line of frozen vegetables that's every bit as good as our frozen potatoes.

Because they're made with all the know-how that has made our frozen potatoes America's favorite brand.

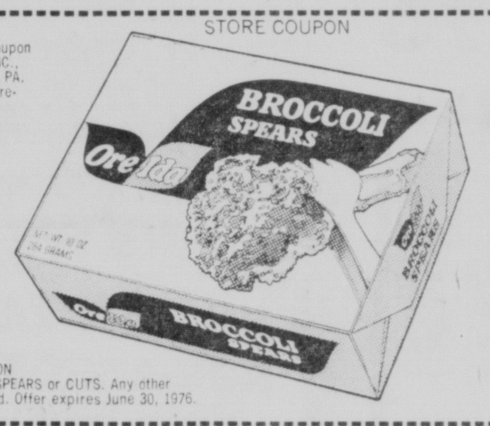

The vegetables are raised with tender loving care. Picked at just the right moment. Then quick frozen to seal in all the freshness and flavor.

Try our new frozen vegetables.

We're betting 35¢ that they stack up beautifully with our potatoes.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — Brisk mornings and all's well at Snug Harbor. Oh, a few skate board crashes. But nothing an old frontier surgeon can't fix.

I said to the youngest boy: "That ain't no hunting arrow, podner. That's a Sioux war shaft. We'd better fort up while I butcher it out of you."

A great many of my medical miracles I attribute to Band-Aids.

Taking care of children is not child's play. How to get them through life's thorny paths calls for a lot of luck. Forget anything else.

"Tell me about Egypt." The youngest chick has a book: "Ancient Civilizations." Now she's being tested.

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "Egypt? Well, there's the Nile — that's a river. They have belly dancers. Belly dancing is very big in Egypt."

She said: "What do they eat?"

"Dates," I said. "Lots of dates."

She said: "I don't think the teacher will like that. They must eat other things."

I said "Look. You asked me to do your homework. Free. No pay. If you don't put up any front money, you get an inferior product."

☆ ☆ ☆

I'm getting a lot of queries on "a" plus "b" equals etc. I said: "I passed algebra. But for the life of me I can't remember how I did it."

I walked out of the ivied halls of learning shedding knowledge like a snake sheds his skin. In all life's ups and downs, I never found a need for algebra. I put it in some dusty closet of my mind and there it sits.

I said: "Cleopatra was an Egyptian face card. Her boy friend was a Roman name of Marc Antony. He made shish kebab of himself on his sword saying: 'I am dying, Egypt, dying.'"

She consulted her notes and said: "What did the ancient Egyptians raise?

I said: "Dates — they are dates so they must have raised them. And, cotton. Pearls. Cleopatra used to melt pearls in her martinis."

She said: "Why did she do that?"

I said: "Maybe they hadn't invented the cocktail onion."

She said: "Are you sure? The teacher didn't say anything about that."

I said: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child. I quote the Bard himself. Fetch me the cooking sherry, there's a dear girl."

☆ ☆ ☆

You leave school with a feeling of relief. "That's that. Let's get the show on the road."

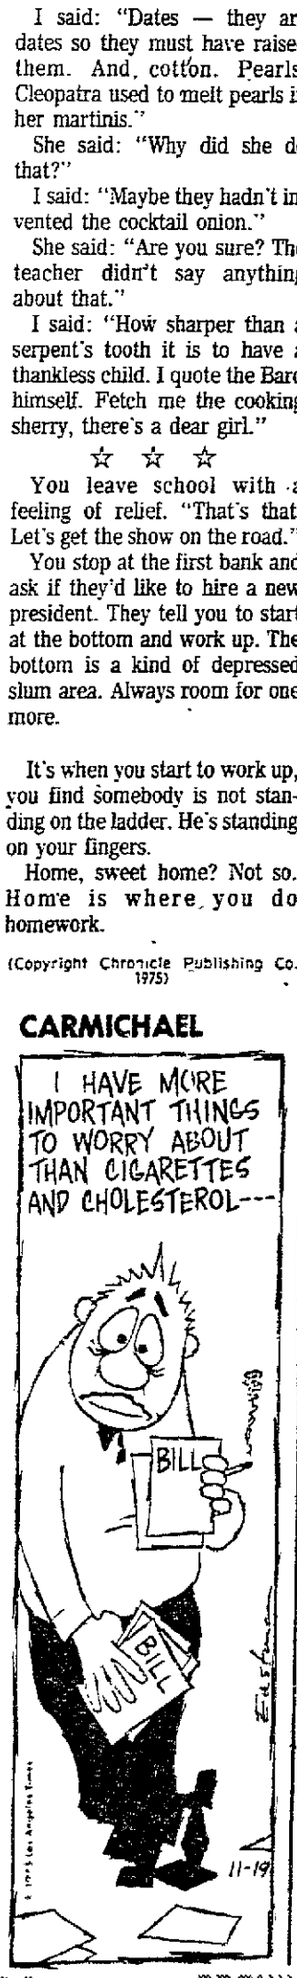

You stop at the first bank and ask if they'd like to hire a new president. They tell you to start at the bottom and work up. The bottom is a kind of depressed slum area. Always room for one more.

It's when you start to work up, you find somebody is not standing on the ladder. He's standing on your fingers.

Home, sweet home? Not so. Home is where you do homework.

HERITAGE SCHOOL'S SINGLE CLASSROOM . . . Mrs. Patty Russell teaches her fourth-grade class just like in the old days.

The Way It Used To Be

Story by Patty Beutler

Photos by Randy Hampton

In this age of ballpoints, they were using quill pens and ink. And instead of recycled paper, they did their sums on slates with chalk.

The fourth-graders from Mrs. Patty Russell's Eastridge School class were spending the day at the one-room Heritage School at the State Fairgrounds.

The old District 113 schoolhouse, also known as Cunningham School, was transported intact from a site west of Wahoo earlier this summer.

The students came prepared for their living lesson in history. Carrying lard lunch buckets (coffee cans with wire handles in disguise) and slate rags, the girls wore long pinafore-type dresses while the boys sported overalls, flannel shirts and jeans.

The day's outing had been much anticipated by the youngsters. Several weeks' preparation in their own classroom gave them an idea of what to expect. And they behaved accordingly.

First came a solemn flag-raising ceremony, complete with the Pledge of Allegiance and singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" before the students filed into the cloakroom — girls ahead of boys.

Heeding the "Silence is Golden" rule hanging prominently on the front wall, the youngsters stifled the lively chatter of the open classroom atmosphere they'd just left behind.

With folded hands and bowed heads, they reverently listened to a reading from the Scriptures — long since banned in present day schools by a Supreme Court decision.

But this was 1875 and the school-goers were caught up in the ritual of the time.

Judy Lewis, Junior League volunteer school marm for the morning, recited the rules to abide by. Students were to speak only when spoken to. A silence hung in the air.

But a requirement of good posture, in these modern days of slouch and sprawl, sent a shuffle about the room as backs straightened and pairs of feet strained for flatness on the floor.

Penmanship lessons had the 24 youngsters practicing push-pulls and ovals first on their slates and then in their copybooks with quill pens and ink. Smudged pages and ink-stained fingers attested to the newness of the strange writing tools.

McGuffey's Third Eclectic Reader provided the reading lesson for the day. Reading cursive print from the reprinted readers caused several students to pause as they stood up at the recitation bench for the oral lesson.

Each time a student's raised hand was acknowledged, the youngster hopped to his or her feet by the side of the desk to recite the answer.

"What happened in 1867 that's really important to the people of Nebraska?" Mrs. Lewis asked the class at the conclusion of the geography lesson. "The Louisiana Purchase?" one youngster tentatively queried, only to be corrected by an alert classmate.

In order to pass the hygiene check before lunch-time, each of the students had to scrub his hands clean of ink stains and chalk dust. Lye and lard soap and a small wash basin made the job more fun than the perfunctory task at home. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" reminded a well-placed sign in the schoolroom.

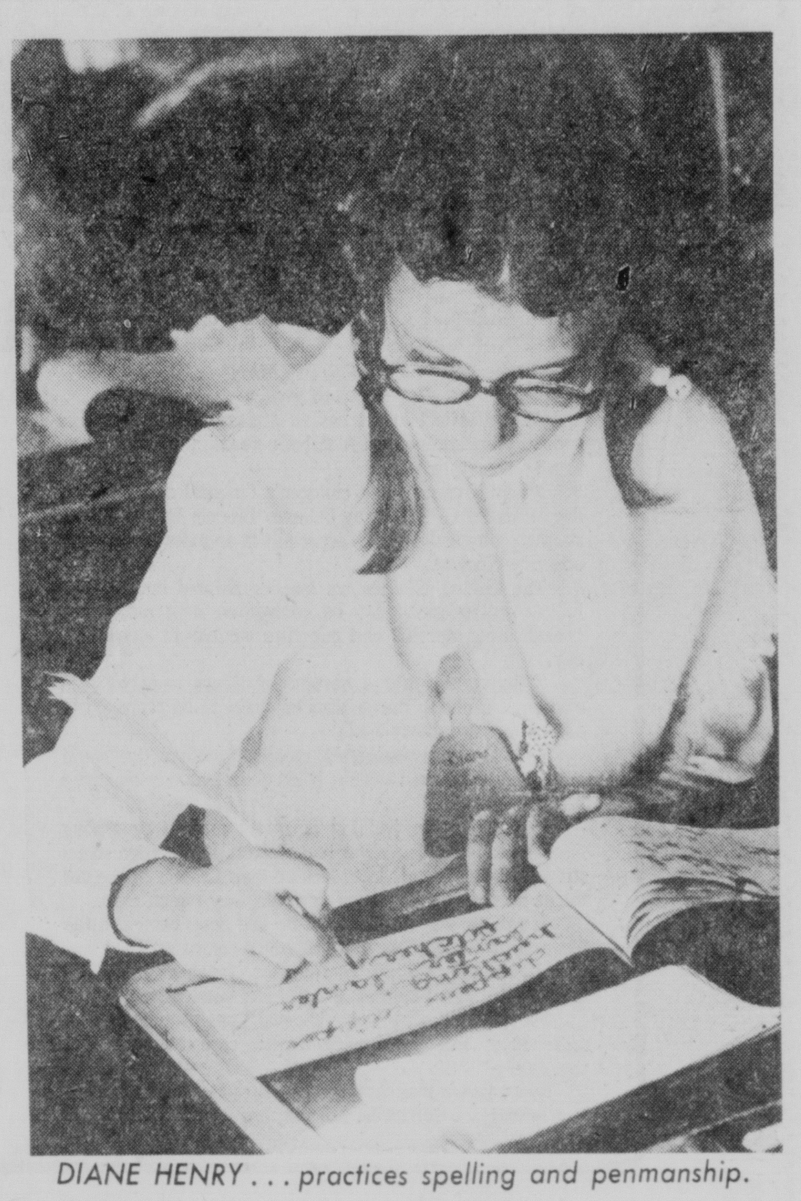

Lunch and games were followed by a spelling bee, art and the reading of a story with a moral. Then it was flag-lowering time, and a last song before the youngsters hopped on the bus — a time capsule that would convey them back to modern days.

The day's adventure, however, was hardly taken lightly by the youngsters. The combination of authentic environment and the strict curriculum totally absorbed the kids in a replay of the past.

The unique outing will be experienced by most fourth and seventh-graders in the Lincoln school system, as well as by classes from surrounding areas.

The success of the program has prompted a mini-classroom visit for afterschool youth groups. Arrangements can be made through Tana Warren, schoolroom aide for the year.

Cooperating in the bicentennial venture are the Lincoln Public Schools, State Historical Society, Lincoln Junior League and State Fair Board, as well as the building's owners.

Teachers Learn First Aid

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

An epileptic student has an attack. Another wheezes suddenly with bronchitis. A diabetic needs immediate attention — insulin or sugar?

While teachers serve children's "mental needs" every day, Richard C. Treadway believes Lincoln Public School students' physical needs — especially in an emergency — are often overlooked.

The Clinton Elementary teacher pointed out that his fellow professionals may be confronted with more than broken arms, sprains and puncture wounds in any school day.

"There are quite a variety of things, especially in elementary school, that a teacher ought to be prepared to deal with," Treadway said.

They also face youngsters' medical problems that could go unrecognized until a crisis, when quick action could save a life, he said.

Since first aid training is rarely mandatory among teachers colleges, Treadway and Everett Junior High social studies teacher Rex J. Scott decided their Lincoln colleagues might want to get grounded in emergency health care.

Treadway was an Army medic and Scott serves in the Nebraska National Guard 24th Medical company. They surveyed Lincoln school secretaries, teachers and administrators about student injuries and sudden sicknesses.

The poll revealed "very unusual" unamity, Treadway said: 100% felt emergency health care training was "necessary."

He explained that some schools, such as Arnold Elementary in extreme northwest Lincoln, are far away from ambulance services. And nurses aren't always on duty in every school building.

Treadway said his "eventual goal" is to help teachers and staff "fill the void when the nurse is gone." He and Scott worked with Betty Dillon, staff development director, and set up a nine-week emergency health care course that ends Nov. 24.

Twelve staff members completed a basic Red Cross course and Nebraska Heart Association-sponsored CPR training. Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation addresses airway breathing and circulation — to help a choking child, for example.

The staffers got how-to lectures from pediatricians, poison control, epilsepsy, burn and mobile heart team experts.

Health services superviser Helen E. Weber and activities director Virgil Horne will join Heart Association representatives and mental retardation experts next week in a "community sharing session" with the class.

Some of the staffers are even writing health care plans for their schools, Treadway said.

"We want them to know how to treat these things on a basic level," to erase fear of the unknown, he said. Such knowledge "could prevent serious injury later on." He and Scott are stressing prevention as well as basic treatment.

The class may benefit not only kids but adults, Treadway noted, explaining that teachers as well as parents visiting schools could have heart attacks, for instance.

The interest and time that the staff is devoting to emergency health care "does show that teachers care more about children than serving their only learning needs," Treadway said.

Polygamists To Build Backbone City

Backbone, Utah (UPI) — With his covey of 13 young wives in tow, polygamist Alex Joseph and eight followers have abandoned their disputed southern Utah homesteads and moved down the road to build themselves a city

"They won't let us be homesteaders so we're going to build a city and be city people," said Joseph as he headed for the town he has named Backbone (Backers of the American Constitution to Build Our Nation's Energy)

Joseph said Backbone will be located 11 miles west of Glen Canyon City and 16 miles south of the disputed homestead in Kane County

The nine-person group tore down sheds, work shacks and trailers and packed them out of the Bureau of Land Management s Cottonwood Canyon, leaving behind about 100 other homesteaders who are not covered by a federal judge's order to vacate the dusty, craggy canyon

Joseph, a 39-year-old excommunicated Mormon who started his own church, said the group was leaving to show it wants to cooperate with the court, but he vowed to continue the fight to legitimize the homestead claims

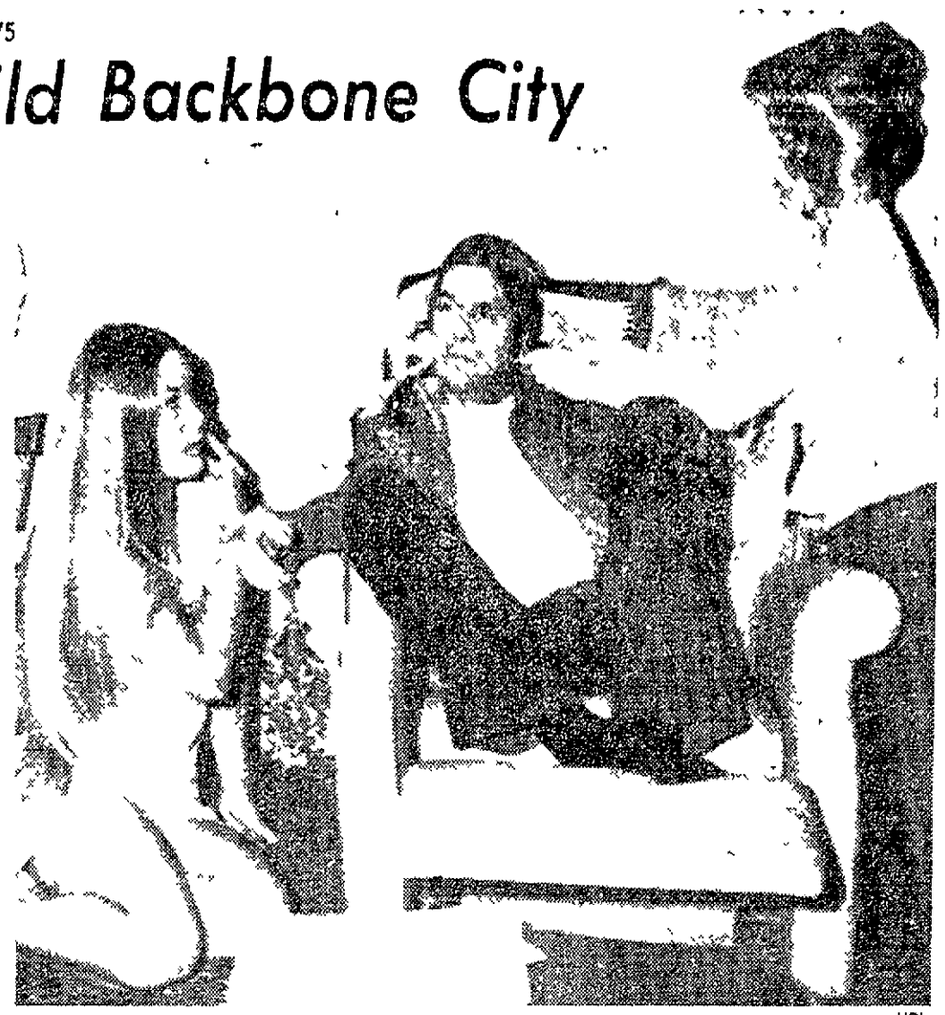

"We're trying to cooperate with the court in every way and we always have,' said Joseph, his Indian-style braids pulled back, a pistol on his hip

The exodus began as U S Atty Ramon Child sought a writ of assistance, which he described as "in the nautre of an eviction order" to send federal marshals to the Kane County homesteads to forcibly remove the squatters from the land

Stephen Bryant, Joseph's attorney, said he had advised his clients to move because they can keep up the fight in court without actually living on the disputed land

Joseph said he has already built the Backbone Electric Co (a portable generator) and the Backbone Water Co (a water tank on the bed of a truck) and permanent houses and businesses will follow

"If I m going to build a city, it's going to be a nice one '

NFO Members To Be Told U.S. Not Involved In Collection

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the National Farmers Organization (NFO) to tell its members the federal government won't be directly involved in efforts to collect delinquent membership dues

U S District Judge William Stuart signed a temporary injunction prohibiting NFO representatives from telling members of the farm organization the government will try to collect the dues if they are not paid.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) sought the order in connection with its suit against the NFO Stuart said the order was issued with the consent of the NFO, but "without the NFO admitting or denying the allegations "

The judge ordered the NFO to print a 600-word statement on the front page of the December issue of "NFO Reporter" outlining the SEC lawsuit and explaining steps that can be taken to collect back dues

On aspect of the dispute over the NFO's financial condition is the question of whether back dues are collectible The SEC twice has tried to have a receiver appointed for the NFO

The SEC has contended that about $45 million is owed in back dues, and that only a small percentage can be collected

The statement to be printed explains the duties of a receiver, says that the receiver may "continue the dues collection effort, including lawsuits," if appointed

But the statement informs members that "should the receiver take steps to collect dues, neither the SEC nor the federal court would be directly involved" in the effort.

Members are to be told in the statement that the NFO has 'redoubled its efforts to collect back dues" in order to raise money to keep current bills paid and to counter the SEC's contention that only a small percentage can be collected

$6,245 Paid For Grand Champion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A syndicate of six businessmen paid $6,245 Tuesday for the grand champion steer of the American Royal Horse and Livestock Show The animal was then donated to the strikebound Kansas City Philharmonic Association

The top bid was $5 09 a pound for the 1,265 pound animal, an Angus-Chianina steer owned by Jeff Gropper, 18, of Grinnell, Iowa Gropper, whose steer was chosen the 4-H Club champion Monday, said he would use the money received from the auction to attend college

The bid was nine cents a pound more than was paid for the grand champion steer last year

John Latshaw, the main bidder for the syndicate, said the carcass would be donated to the Philharmonic, whose musicians went on strike at the start of the season in a salary dispute

No Evidence Found That Fluoride Causes Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cancer Institute said Tuesday there is no evidence that fluoridated water causes cancer, and there is some suggestion that high levels of natural fluoride may reduce cancers of the brain and nervous system

The institute said its new study prompted by earlier allegations by the National Health Federation in California, provides no support for recent claims that fluoridation of water supplies in the United States has increased the risk of cancer "

No significant excess mortality from cancer could be detected up to 15 years after fluoridation in areas where 95% of the population had been abruptly and continuously exposed '

The health federation had studied cancer rates in the 10 largest fluoridated and 10 largest non-fluoridated counties and concluded that fluoride contributed to higher cancer rates in Baltimore, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York and Philadelphia

The cancer institute last May criticized the federation s statements as containing "factual errors and oversimplified data that ignored other factors associated with cancer, such as population density, industrial concentraion, educational achievement and the per cent of the population that is non white or from foreign countries

To answer the charges more fully, government researchers last August began studying naturally fluoridated counties in Texas and communities elsewhere in the country that began adding fluoride to their water between 1950 and 1969, and compared them with cancer death rate during that 20-year period

After all the demographic variables had been taken into account, the report said, "the presence or absence of fluoride made no statistically significant contribution for any site, other than stomach cancer Stomach cancer is known to have a relationship with specific ethnic groups

"A finding of possible importance, ' the report added, "was the reduced mortality from cancers of the brain and nervous system in communities with high levels of natural fluoride

' This finding may be due to chance because of the multiple comparisons made in this analysis, but additional observations in other areas seem indicated," it said

Thousands of communities across the country have fluoridated their water at the urging of medical and dental groups who say the element can cut dental cavities by two-thirds

By the end of 1972, according to the Public Health Service, virtually every state had natural or added fluoride in its water, led by the District of Columbia with 100% of its population drinking fluoridated water

Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado and Michigan all had fluoridated water reaching more than 90% of their populations

Gunman Calmly Pumps Seven Shots Into Wounded Victim

NEW YORK (AP) — A murder defendant with reputed underworld connections was shot to death on a Brooklyn street Tuesday by a gunman who first wounded the victim and then calmly pumped seven more shots at him as he tried to flee

Police identified the dead man as Mario Panuccioli, 27, of Staten Island, who was to appear in court to start jury selection Tuesday for his trial on charges of killing a bartender in a shootout linked to cigarette smuggling operations

Panuccioli was driving down a quiet, tree-lined block of Bedford Avenue, between Glenwood and Farragut roads, in the Midwood section when two shots were fired through his windshield, police said

Witnesses told police that Panuccioli jumped out of the slowly moving car and began running down the street He had apparently been wounded, for blood was found in the car

The gunman, said to be about 19 years old and wearing a fur hat, went down on one knee, took careful aim and squeezed off the additional shots from his automatic pistol witnesses said He escaped before police arrived

Housing Starts Up In October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported Tuesday that the number of new housing units started in October spurted to the highest level in 15 months, providing evidence that the sluggish housing industry may be ready to make a stronger contribution to the over-all economic recovery

Until now, relatively high interest rates and the depletion of consumer savings during the recession have dampened recovery in the housing industry

But the Commerce Department said starts on new housing hit a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1 458 million in October, up by 15% from the previous month And, at the same time the department revised upward the total of September starts to 1 268. million, only 1 000 less than August The September level of starts as originally reported had shown a 2 2% drop

The October total was 31 8% ahead of the same month last year, when the industry had the lowest level of starts in seven years However, activity remained 12 9% behind two years ago for the same month

Reagan's Column To Cease

San Diego (AP) — Ronald Reagan's weekly commentary column is being discontinued after this week, Copley News Service has informed 260 newspaper subscribers

It was still another hint — along with the chartering of a campaign jet for this coming Thursday and Friday — that Reagan will become a formal candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

The news service started distributing the Reagan column a week after the former governor left office last Jan 6

In a notice attached to this week s column, Copley News Service advised its subscribers

"This is the last of the Ronald Reagan columns Since the governor is expected to announce his presidential candidacy on Nov 20, we are releasing this column for immediate publication "

Tape Record His Bedroom Bedlam

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a beautiful apartment complex. Recently, the apartment directly above us was rented to a young bachelor. This guy brings his girl friends home to spend the night with him. Since his bedroom is directly above ours, we are sometimes jolted wide awake at 2 or 3 a.m. by the sounds of their amorous activities.

We are in our late 20s and are not prudes, but we're tired of being awakened, losing sleep and feeling as though the ceiling will come down on us at any moment.

I say my husband should have a man-to-man talk with the guy. He says the guy probably doesn't care who hears him. We'll go to the manager of the complex only as a last resort. We love our apartment and don't want to move, but we'd like some uninterrupted sleep.

How should we handle this?

TWO SLEEPY PEOPLE

DEAR SLEEPY: Even if your neighbor doesn't care who hears him, he has no right to disturb you. Make a tape recording of the bedroom bedlam and have your husband present it to him as evidence. And if that doesn't work, play it for the manager. Sweet dreams.

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe in kissing on the first date?

It seems to me that any guy who takes out a girl and spends his hard-earned money to show her a good time should be entitled to a goodnight kiss.

DISGUSTED WITH WOMEN

DEAR DISGUSTED: A kiss should not be expected in return for an evening's entertainment or anything else. It's strictly a voluntary show of real affection. And if two people feel like kissing on the first date — I say, why not?

DEAR ABBY: I love to cook and entertain, but it irritates me no end when after going to a lot of trouble to prepare a lovely company meal, a guest just picks at the food or says, "Sorry, I can't eat that," or "No dessert for me, please."

Don't you think calorie-counters should show a little consideration for the hostess, enjoy whatever is served and diet at home.

ANNOYED HOSTESS

DEAR ANNOYED: No! Pressing food on calorie counters is as inexcusable as pressing alcohol on an alcoholic. Many people refuse dinner invitations to avoid the possibility of being forced to eat things they shouldn't just to please the hostess.

Staying at home leads to loneliness and depression, which in turn causes many people to eat out of self-pity.

So here's a plea to well-meaning hostesses: Consider calorie counters when you entertain. Have plenty of fresh fruit and vegatables, and DON'T ever point out that someone is eating very little, should no notice it.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently dating a divorced woman who has a small child. When we go out, am I expected to pay the babysitter?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If she "expects" you to pay the sitter, she's presumptuous. But if you can afford it, it would be generous to offer.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The woman in the Canal Zone keeps referring to the "day we can be together forever."

Abby, my husband has told me repeatedly that he loves me, and he has never indicated that he wants out of this marriage.

Some of those letters were written within the last three months. I can't understand how a grown man would continue to keep three women on the string while still married.

Right now he is overseas, but when he gets home I am going to let him have it.

I neither love nor trust him anymore, but I have three children who need a father. What do you advise?

FED UP

DEAR FED: I agree, children do need a father, but a woman needs a husband she can trust and depend upon. Confront your husband with the evidence and ask him for an explanation.

It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to restore your marriage. If that's what you want, I hope you're up to it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a gravedigger for a funeral home. I've been at this job for three years, and the longer I work at gravedigging, the more I wish I were doing something else. It seems as though I think on death all the time.

What do you suggest I do? Please don't tell me to get another job because all the other jobs require a high school diploma, and I dropped out of school in the ninth grade.

DEPRESSED IN TEXAS

DEAR DEPRESSED: Call your department of public education and ask how a drop-out can "drop in" again and get his high school diploma. It's easier than you think.

Opening lead - two of spades.

The secret of playing the dummy well lies in diagnosing how the defenders' cards are divided. Once declarer knows where the unseen cards are located, he can generally find the best method of play.

Consider this deal where Desmond Deery, Irish star, got to three notrump and West led a spade. East took dummy's king with the ace and returned the five, won by declarer with the jack.

Deery now played the eight of clubs (not the deuce) to dummy's queen and cashed the A-K-Q of diamonds. He next led the ten of clubs and, when West followed low, he also played low from dummy! The finesse succeeding, Deery made four notrump. Had he played for a 3-2 division in clubs — without taking the club finesse — he would have gone down one.

The question is why Deery chose to finesse the ten of clubs. The answer is, first, that he could count East for five spades because, if he had had only four, West would have held five of them and would surely have responded two spades instead of one notrump.

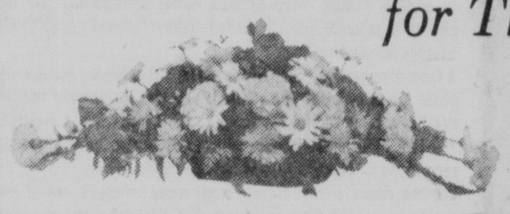

And second, since East had shown up with three diamonds and had to have four hearts for his two heart bid, it followed that East had only one club and the ten finesse was therefore bound to succeed.

It would not have helped West to cover the ten with the jack because, in that case, declarer would have led a diamond to his nine and then finessed dummy's seven of clubs.

Note also that if Deery had carelessly led the deuce of clubs to the queen at trick three, West could later have made it impossible for declarer to score five club tricks with proper defense. The eight of clubs was indeed a farsighted play.

Egg Fancier Worries About Cholesterol

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have this passion for eggs and have enjoyed eating a soft-boiled egg almost every day since I was 19. I am 30 now. I worry because I continue to hear that eggs may create a cholesterol problem.

Presently, I am on a hypoglycemia diet on which there are other high-cholesterol foods. How dangerous is my egg eating? — Mrs. J. C.

Unfortunately, a high-protein diet, which is usually recommended for control of hypoglycemia, may turn out to be one rather high in cholesterol, but there are ways to beat this.

I wouldn't call your egg-a-day habit a "passion." But frying it in fat would boost the already high cholesterol content of your daily egg. As to your other high-protein, cholesterol-rich foods such as meat, there are corners to be cut. With meat, you can cut off those heavy trimmings of fat before cooking. Look for meat that is not heavily marbleized. This will reduce the cholesterol-to-weight ratio, and still give you the good protein value you want for your diet.

I can't tell for sure, but I suspect from your letter that you already have a high cholesterol reading. With hypoglycemia and cholesterol problems existing together, it is well to investigate thyroid function. An underfunctioning thyroid can contribute to each.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 17 years old, and I have developed a mild case of anorexia nervosa. I'm going through psychiatric treatment, and recently had a physical. My cholesterol is high and my thyroid is low. I have gained weight.

I want to know the types of food to avoid, and what foods to eat. The doctor mentioned thyroid medication, then discarded the idea. — Miss L.S.

What you have is loss of appetite caused by emotional states such as anger, fear, anxiety, and so on.

It is encouraging that you have gained weight. This may be why your doctor has decided against use of thyroid medication for you. In anorexia nervosa there is usually a lowered metabolism rate (low thyroid function) and a heightened cholesterol level in the blood. Thyroid medication may be necessary to control these problems. In most cases of anorexia nervosa resumption of proper food intake removes the thyroid problem.

As to your diet, your doctor should prescribe, but generally you want foods high in protein and vitamins.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68. About two years ago I developed overactive salivary glands. I'm uncomfortable and exhausted from constantly chewing and swallowing saliva. At times I choke. I'm active and in good health. Is there anything to be done? — Mrs. A.P.H.

Ptyalism (TY-a-lism) gets its name from ptyalin, an enzyme present in saliva which begins the digestive process in the mouth with chewing. It breaks down starch particles, chiefly. The enzyme is present in the juices secreted into the mouth by three pairs of glands (parotid, submaxillary, and sublingual).

Hypersecretion can stem from drugs or poisons (including tobacco and arsenic), or from local inflammation as in stomatitis. Nervous disorders such as migraine, motion sickness, tic douloureux, and others can be associated with it also. Denture material is often the irritant involved.

There are anti-secretory drugs that can help alleviate the salivation. Atropine is one, but it must be prescribed carefully and the patient supervised so that the opposite problem, undersecretion, does not occur.

An alkaline mouthwash can help, too.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Fires in the home have many causes. When fire strikes, do not risk a life. Call or send for help. Get persons out and away from the danger area immediately.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that smoke and heat are usually the killers, not flames. Develop a home fire drill and escape plan with a prearranged meeting place so you can have a head-count in emergency.

Fires involving combustible materials like wood, paper or hay, should be cooled off. Use water.

Grease, oil, paint or gasoline fires need to be smothered by shutting off the air. Stove-top grease fires can be put out with baking soda.

Electricity or electrical equipment fires must be smothered using dry chemical, dioxide or vaporizing liquid.

Grain Plan Approached Warily

Scottsbluff — Wheat growers continue to approach the subject of grain reserves with extreme caution, and other countries of the world appear to have little interest in establishing an international reserve policy, according to speakers Tuesday at the Nebraska-Wyoming Wheat Growers Association convention here.

Peter Pauli, director of the U.S. Agriculture Department export sales division, explained that a proposed reserve structure has been submitted by the U.S. delegation to the International Wheat Council, which is considering reserve policy as part of a new international wheat agreement.

But, he noted, "Other countries don't seem to attach the same degree of importance to food security as the U.S. does. The European Common Market has already dropped out of the negotiations in London."

The U.S. proposal called for an international reserve of 30 million tons of food grain — 25 million tons of wheat and five million tons of rice — a figure estimated to offset 90% of the year-to-year variations in production.

The U.S. would hold 25%, or about 250 million bushels, of that quantity, possibly through a structure involving private firms and a form of commodity credit agency. Adding normal working reserves, about 10% of production, this country would hold an annual carryover of about 450 million bushels, Pauli estimated.

The world grain reserve concept would require deliberations among cooperating countries on building up and drawing down grain stocks. These nations would determine when a worldwide shortage exists and agree to release reserves to signatory countries needing food grain.

Pauli didn't, however, hold out strong hopes for such an accord. He concluded, "I have never seen an international agreement that didn't fall apart when it was most needed. I don't know if the mind of man can conceive a plan that will work when it's needed."

National Association of Wheat Growers President Don Woodward of Pendleton, Ore., reiterated the position of the organization — an opposition to any reserve system that would have a controlling effect on the market or, if a reserve is established, isolating it from the marketplace.

"Reserves that can be controlled and manipulated always result in lower prices to the producer," said Woodward. He feels the abundant production in this country assures the U.S. of an adequate reserve.

Wheat producers can promise each other to keep reserves under control and isolated from the market, Woodward continued, but as long as growers, and the buyers and sellers, know it is there, a true supply and demand market is not possible.

More Fires Started By Electricity

Nebraska has seen a marked increase in the number of fires started by electric fences, according to Donald E. Westover, fire management coordinator, for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Forestry.

"The dry, windy weather has made the tall grass along fence rows readily combustible. This possesses an obvious threat to not only adjoining fields, but also to livestock and farm buildings," Westover said.

"The Nebraska state forester's office is reminding farmers that some electric fence chargers now on the market may fall below the safety standards set by Underwriters Laboratories. These units have excessive amperage and duration of charge, so their use increases the chance of fires starting from an electric fence," Westover said.

"Farmers interested in purchasing a fence charger are urged to check for the Underwriters Laboratories seal before buying such a unit," he said.

Another prevention measure would be to periodically mow vegetation under the wire to ensure that it doesn't come in contact with the fence, he suggested. Some states have been promoting the maintenance of a disced area two feet wide on each side of the fence whenever an electric fence is used, Westover said.

Joint Vet Science College Cost Estimate Called 'Lie'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit, chairman of the Legislature's Agricultural Committee, said Tuesday that Gov. J. James Exon's claim that Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana could build a joint college of veterinary science for $14 million "is a lie."

The figure came from a news release issued by Exon's office late last week.

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus, chairman of the NU Veterinary Science Department, told the Agricultural Committee the actual cost would probably run from $40 million to $45 million, depending on the type of clinical system used and on whether it would use newly constructed research and diagnostic buildings at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Twiehaus recommended that enrollment in the proposed school be held to 100 students a year for a total student body of 400 with about 80 graduate students.

"Whenever you get over 100 students the quality of the veterinarians produced tends to drop because of a lack of clinical material available," he said.

Several witnesses at the hearing indicated they would prefer the state completed staffing the new facilities at the university before undertaking any new efforts.

Doyle Free, speaking on behalf of the Nebraska Poultry Industries, suggested a separate budget be set up for the veterinary science department to handle the new facilities.

Sen. Loran Schmit

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus

Dr. J.C. Marcum of Spencer, representing the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association, indicated that a sharp increase in funds was needed to staff the new facilities and replace five departed staff members.

"We will have a new facility and nobody to man it when it is completed in December. The research facility is also going to need additional personnel. We may need a college to educate veterinarians, but we need this a lot worse. If we can't fund this, we better forget a college because this is peanuts compared to what that would cost," Marcum said.

Sen. Schmit noted that there was widespread support for a new college to produce veterinarians but little interest in increasing taxes to pay the cost.

"This is the situation we face. It is like a baby — the initial cost is nothing to the total cost. Before we get this baby conceived, we better know what it is going to cost," Schmit said.

Dr. Robert Prokop of the board of regents suggested that a five-state regional school could be financed on the basis of population for the construction costs and have the cost of operation divided according to the number of students attending from the various states contributing to the school.

The promoters of the school cited several advantages of a regional approach to such a school.

Federal funds would be easier to obtain than for a state school. It would attract a lot of veterinarians for post graduate studies. It would have the support of a large number of livestock groups from several states and would offer students a wider variety of experiences than a single state school.

Sen. James Dickenson of Omaha summed up the hearing saying, "It seems to me that this is a good idea but maybe we better concentrate in taking care of the facilities we already have before we proceed to the college."

Confirmation Of ABP Payback Hoped For By Mid-December

Omaha (UPI) — The three major forces in American Beef Packers Inc. bankruptcy proceedings said Tuesday they hoped ABP's plan of arrangement to pay creditors holding some $25 million in debts could be confirmed by mid-December.

The statement was issued following a closed door meeting in Chicago between ABP, its mainline creditor, General Electric Credit Corp., and the executive committee of the creditors committee in ABP's limited bankruptcy proceedings.

General Electric Credit has agreed to finance a $36.5 million new line of credit for ABP, but some creditors have felt GECC was hestiating on the offer. If ABP fails to obtain the GECC money, the meatpacker would be plunged into full bankruptcy.

However, the statement from the Chicago meeting said "based upon the closing of pending sales of the two ABP plants at Fort Morgan, Colo., and Council Bluffs, Iowa, GECC and ABP are proceeding with the drafting of agreements for a loan sufficient to fund the ABP plan of arrangement.

"It is hoped the plan of ABP can be confirmed on or about Dec. 15," the statement read, "and that the initial payment to creditors can be made immediately thereafter."

The plan was to have been presented to Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford in Omaha for approval Monday, but ABP and the creditors committee were granted a continuance until Nov. 26. Several creditors, including the attorney for J. Gordon Roberts, the largest unsecured creditor, objected to the continuances and asked for a full disclosure to the bankruptcy court of negotiations between ABP and GECC.

The participants in the Chicago meeting were to report back to Crawford.

ABP said Monday it had reached a $6.4 million sale agreement with the Kane-Miller Corp., a New York-based diversified food processing firm, for its Beefland International Inc. plant in Council Bluffs.

UPI learned Tuesday an estimated $5-million sales agreement has been reached between ABP and a group of Colorado cattle feeders for the purchase of the Fort Morgan plant.

One of the conditions for ABP to obtain the new credit line from GECC is for ABP to repay some $11 million in long term loans to GECC. The only way that can be done, ABP has said, is to sell the Beefland and Fort Morgan plants.

Teachers Win Back Pay, Jobs By Using New Law

Pender (AP) — Using the state's new "just cause" law, which was passed by the 1975 Legislature, six teachers in the Winnebago School District 17 have won reinstatement with back pay.

The six claimed the school board did not adequately show just cause in not renewing their contracts for the current school year, and Thurston County District Judge Walter Huber agreed. However, Huber announced Tuesday that he will hear motions for a new trial Dec. 5.

The request for the new trial was filed by attorneys for the school board.

In finding in favor of the teachers, Huber also held that the school board failed to comply with the state's new "open meetings" law in taking action on the contract renewals during private meetings.

Winnebago School Supt. Deward Millsap said economic conditions, specifically cutbacks in state and federal aid to the district, dictated the terminations. The six teachers involved are Janice Alexander, Kay Koigh, Carter Leeka, Carlene Marxberry, Helen Thomas and Gary Washington.

North Platte Woman Sentenced For Intent To Commit Murder

Sidney (AP) — A North Platte woman was sentenced Tuesday to serve a 3½- to 7-year term in prison for assault with intent to commit murder.

Cheyenne County District Court Judge John Knapp handed down the sentence in the case of Mrs. Barbara Swayze, 43, formerly of Kimball.

Before pronouncing sentence, Knapp rejected a defense motion for a new trial, but delayed the execution of the sentence for 45 days to allow Mrs. Swayze's attorney to file an appeal with the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Mrs. Swayze was convicted by a jury Oct. 17, in connection with a June 1974, incident in which a newborn infant was wrapped in a plastic bag, and thrown into the pit under a ladies restroom at the Lodgepole State Wayside Area west of Kimball.

The baby's cries were heard by a passerby, and the infant was rescued. The child has since been placed in a foster home.

Dana Teacher, Students Face Drug Charges

Blair (AP) — Thirteen persons, including a Dana College instructor, will be arraigned on drug charges in Washington County Court Friday morning.

All 13 were arrested during drug raids last weekend at five Blair residences and four dormitory rooms on the Dana College campus, officials said.

County Atty. Darvid Quist identified the Dana instructor as Donald G. Warman, 44, an assistant professor of history and political science. He is charged with possession of marijuana and possession of a controlled substance.

The others charged include Warman's son, four Blair residents and seven Dana College students.

All have been released on their own recognizance or in the custody of school officials, their attorneys or their parents.

Blair police said the weekend raids culminated an eight-month investigation.

Police Chief John Hoppe said authorities confiscated about 500 suspected amphetamine tablets, from two to three pounds of marijuana, an undetermined number of barbiturates, along with several shotguns and a pistol.

Prime Witness Called In Start Of Divis Trial

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — Neither side wasted time Tuesday getting to the crux of misdemeanor charges against Saunders County Sheriff Joe Divis for failing to arrest a person he allegedly knew possessed marijuana with intent to sell.

Saunders County Atty. Curtis Bromm called his prime witness, Mrs. Violet Bonow, who told the jury she reported an alleged conspiracy with Divis to sell marijuana after suffering moral misgivings about involvement with drug traffic.

Defense attorney J. William Gallup told the Saunders County Court jury Mrs. Bonow was a "jilted, scorned woman," who was seeking revenge by involving Divis in the alleged conspiracy.

Hearing Waived

Divis earlier waived preliminary hearing on two felony charges of conspiracy to deliver marijuana and converting county property to his own use.

Trial date on the charges has not been set in Saunders County District Court, and Gallup said if the misdemeanor charge is dismissed, he will request dismissal of the felony charges.

Mrs. Bonow also faces charges in the alleged conspiracy, but said she expected leniency from the prosecution.

Although testifying she now considers Divis an enemy, Mrs. Bonow said she had a close relationship with the sheriff.

"It's a long story. It starts 15 years ago and cost me a husband, cost me a home, cost me a stepson and my daugher's love," she testified.

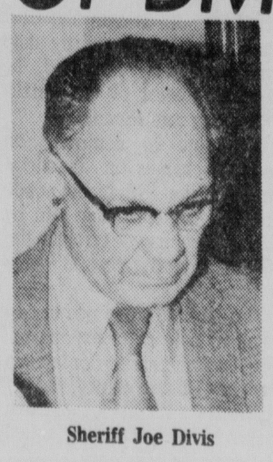

Mrs. Bonow admitted she was an alcoholic, but had reformed after treatment at the Lincoln General Hospital Chemical Dependency Unit about two years ago.

After becoming involved with Divis, Mrs. Bonow said she lost her husband and began drinking heavily.

"I was playing around with him (Divis) and Herman (her ex-husband) knew it," she said.

Booze Caused Problem

Gallup produced a letter from Mrs. Bonow to her sister Opal, which he quoted as stating "the cause of my problems with Herman was booze."

Sheriff Joe Divis

The Valley attorney asked Mrs. Bonow why there was no mention of Divis as cause for the failure of her marriage.

"I covered up fro him," she replied.

Bromm told the four-woman, two man jury that Mrs. Bronow, 52, voluntarily told him Oct. 1 that she had 11 large garbage bags of marijuana in the upstairs of her home.

Mrs. Bonow testified she had misgivings about the alleged conspiracy after seeing a TV show that showed her what drugs could do to her two grandchildren.

After calling the State Patrol into the investigation, Bromm told the jury two conversations between the alleged conspirators were recorded using an electronic transmitter attached to Mrs. Bonow.

He said the first conversation Oct. 15 will show the sheriff had knowledge of the marijuana, and the second involves a transaction carried out with Patrol money, allegedly as payment for the sale of the marijuana.

"She gave him his share of the money, which I believe the evidence will show he took," Bromm said.

Gallup told the jury Divis admitted to authorities at the time of his arrest he had just accepted $150 from Mrs. Bonow.

Loan Repayment

However, he said the sheriff assumed it was repayment on a $1,000 promissory note from Mrs. Bonow, which was introduced as evidence.

Gallup said he took Mrs. Bonow's remarks that it was payment for a marijuana transaction as an idle quip.

"This is a typical case of the sheriff's humoring a crazy, scorned woman," Gallup said.

The defense attorney implied that Mrs. Bonow was jealous of Mrs. Marjorie Novak, who is divorced and succeeded her as matron of Saunders County jail.

Mrs. Bonow testified she took the marijuana from the garage of the sheriff's office with his knowledge, and that he had seen her loading it.

Gallup repeatedly raised the point that the marijuana was not prepared for street sale and that the sheriff would have known that would greatly increase its value.

Allergic To Odor

Mrs. Bonow said she was allergic to the odor of the marijuana and had only processed a little of it in the approximately eight months it was in her home.

"If he was your accomplice, why didn't you ask him to come over and cut the stems off?" Gallup asked.

"I never thought of it," Mrs. Bonow said.

Gallup also said the sheriff could have found a more knowledgeable person than Mrs. Bonow, if he had wished to sell the marijuana.

Mrs. Bonow admitted having a severe temper and taking a shot at Divis with his own weapon and considering doing so another time.

"But his (temper) matches mine," she said.

Mrs. Bonow said she moved to Springfield, Mo., after her last meeting with Divis "to save my life."

The prosecution also called E. Greg Schnasse, investigator for the State Patrol, who testified to an argument he allegedly had with Divis.

Forced From Office

He said Divis forced him to leave his office two years ago, and that he filed a complaint with his superiors on the incident.

"Since that time, there have been not as many drug investigations in this county," he said.

The trial will resume Wednesday, when excerpts of the taped conversations will be played for the jury.

Man Held In Murder At Friend

Wilber (AP) — A man who had been sought more than two months in connection with the death of Anne Scott was being held in the Saline County jail without bond Tuesday.

Donald Eugene Anderson, 36, appeared before County Judge Eugene Zajicek late Monday on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of the 15-year-old Friend girl in August.

At the request of County Atty. Bob Conner, no bond was set. Anderson, accused of killing Miss Scott "in the perpetration of or attempt to perpetrate rape," requested and was granted an attorney at public expense.

The body of the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Scott of Friend, was found in a field three miles southwest of Friend on Aug. 24. She had been missing five days.

Anderson, who comes from Washington State and was a construction worker in the area at the time of the girl's death, was arrested Oct. 11 in St. Petersburg, Fla. He waived extradition.

No date has been set for further court action.

LaVista Youth Killed In Crash

Papillion (UPI) — A LaVista teenager was killed and four Sarpy County teenagers injured, one critically, Tuesday in a one-car crash in suburban Omaha.

Authorities identified the victim as Richard Blevins, 17, who was driving north on 36th St. near Harrison in Sarpy County when his car left the road, went into a ditch, and struck an embankment.

The four passengers were Richard Profitt, Maureen Kirk, Debby Strong and Lance McFarland.

Profitt was hospitalized in critical condition, while the other three teenagers were in fair condition.

Compliance Not Vital

Des Moines (UPI) — An opinion released by the Iowa attorney general's office said new apartment buildings not intended for use by the general public need not comply with access requirements for handicapped persons.

HERITAGE SCHOOL'S SINGLE CLASSROOM . . . Mrs. Patty Russell teaches her fourth-grade class just like in the old days.

The Way It Used To Be

Story by Patty Beutler

Photos by Randy Hampton

DIANE HENRY . . . practices spelling and penmanship.

In this age of ballpoints, they were using quill pens and ink. And instead of recycled paper, they did their sums on slates with chalk.

The fourth-graders from Mrs. Patty Russell's Eastridge School class were spending the day at the one-room Heritage School at the State Fairgrounds.

The old District 113 schoolhouse, also known as Cunningham School, was transported intact from a site west of Wahoo earlier this summer.

The students came prepared for their living lesson in history. Carrying lard lunch buckets (coffee cans with wire handles in disguise) and slate rags, the girls wore long pinafore-type dresses while the boys sported overalls, flannel shirts and jeans.

The day's outing had been much anticipated by the youngsters. Several weeks' preparation in their own classroom gave them an idea of what to expect. And they behaved accordingly.

First came a solemn flag-raising ceremony, complete with the Pledge of Allegiance and singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee" before the students filed into the cloakroom — girls ahead of boys.

Heeding the "Silence is Golden" rule hanging prominently on the front wall, the youngsters stifled the lively chatter of the open classroom atmosphere they'd just left behind.

With folded hands and bowed heads, they reverently listened to a reading from the Scriptures — long since banned in present day schools by a Supreme Court decision.

But this was 1875 and the school-goers were caught up in the ritual of the time.

Judy Lewis, Junior League volunteer school marm for the morning, recited the rules to abide by. Students were to speak only when spoken to. A silence hung in the air.

But a requirement of good posture, in these modern days of slouch and sprawl, sent a shuffle about the room as backs straightened and pairs of feet strained for flatness on the floor.

Penmanship lessons had the 24 youngsters practicing push-pulls and ovals first on their slates and then in their copybooks with quill pens and ink. Smudged pages and ink-stained fingers attested to the newness of the strange writing tools.

McGuffey's Third Eclectic Reader provided the reading lesson for the day. Reading cursive print from the reprinted readers caused several students to pause as they stood up at the recitation bench for the oral lesson.

Each time a student's raised hand was acknowledged, the youngster hopped to his or her feet by the side of the desk to recite the answer.

"What happened in 1867 that's really important to the people of Nebraska?" Mrs. Lewis asked the class at the conclusion of the geography lesson. "The Louisiana Purchase?" one youngster tentatively queried, only to be corrected by an alert classmate.

In order to pass the hygiene check before lunch-time, each of the students had to scrub his hands clean of ink stains and chalk dust. Lye and lard soap and a small wash basin made the job more fun than the perfunctory task at home. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" reminded a well-placed sign in the schoolroom.

Lunch and games were followed by a spelling bee, art and the reading of a story with a moral. Then it was flag-lowering time, and a last song before the youngsters hopped on the bus — a time capsule that would convey them back to modern days.

The day's adventure, however, was hardly taken lightly by the youngsters. The combination of authentic environment and the strict curriculum totally absorbed the kids in a replay of the past.

The unique outing will be experienced by most fourth and seventh-graders in the Lincoln school system, as well as by classes from surrounding areas.

The success of the program has prompted a mini-classroom visit for afterschool youth groups. Arrangements can be made through Tana Warren, schoolroom aide for the year.

Cooperating in the bicentennial venture are the Lincoln Public Schools, State Historical Society, Lincoln Junior League and State Fair Board, as well as the building's owners.

Women Form Volunteer Team

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hastings — The name of the game is volunteering. The names of the volunteers are Josephine Flint (REACT) and her 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Carrie Lee (RSVP).

Both play the game at home, the small but pleasant cottage they share in northwest Hastings. Neither the mother's advanced years nor the daughter's blindness keeps them from the unique giving of themselves to others.

Mrs. Lee, at her sewing machine some 20 hours per week, leads in longevity among some 175 persons in Hastings Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Josephine is on the job 24 hours a day monitoring motorists' distress calls for the Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Teams.

"I know it sounds like Joan of Arc, but we find real satisfaction in helping people in the limited ways we can," said Miss Flint, who lost her eyesight three years ago from complications of a basement fall. "There's nothing like the challenge of bedside nursing, I learned in 16 years at Broken Bow's hospital. But now the best I can do is man this radio . . ."

Her mother also claims to be well paid in satisfaction. For approximately two years she has been sewing for the Hastings Regional Center.

"The RSVP people came around to help me after I'd broken a hip," she reflected with a chuckle. "Next thing I knew I was one of their sewing volunteers. Nothing fancy, though, mostly just mending clothes for those unfortunate kids at the center."

Living together approximately 10 years since Mrs. Lee was widowed, the women complement one another's handicaps. The mother does the reading and lighter household tasks, while Josephine handles any work demanding strong back and legs.

Prior to her accident, the unmarried daughter had been an outdoor sportsman even to the point of big-game hunting. Among her trophies were a caribou, moose, dall sheep and Alaskan Kodiak bear.

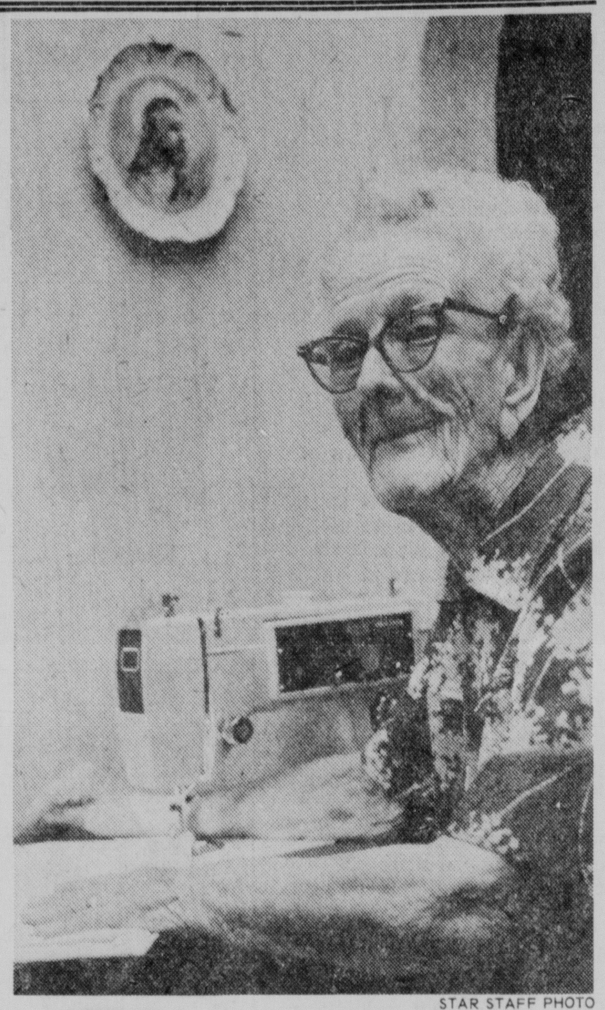

She assumed the unpaid monitor position a year ago, "partly because I was getting in such a rut of staying home and doing nothing." Two CB channels have had her responding to as many as 500 calls a month.

Relatively few are out-and-out emergencies, but she has relayed messages for a good many highway mishaps. Winter storms have been her busiest times.

Mrs. Lee, born in a sod house near Hampton, taught rural school four years and later served 12 years as telephone operator at Berwyn. She and her husband, Jack, spent 25 years in Seattle after moving there in 1939.

Dedicated volunteer that she is, the nonagenarian invested in a new sewing machine last year especially for the mending.

"It doesn't work as well as my old one, but I guess it will do," she said. "One way or the other, I'll sew for those kids as long as I can."

Omaha IRS Director Denies Quota Report

Omaha (AP) — Allegations that Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents are pressured to meet a quota system and treat taxpayers inconsistently and whimsically are unfounded, the district director of the Omaha IRS office said Monday.

Declining to comment on specific charges in a federal study of the IRS made public Sunday, Everett Loury said he thinks there may be errors in the way the study results were reported.

The $216,000 study was undertaken by a team of experts for the Administrative Conference for the United States, which studies government agencies and makes recommendations aimed at improving efficiency.

The study, published by the New York Times, said taxpayers are treated differently, depending on their income, place of residence and the agent's audit quota.

He hasn't seen the study, Loury said, but in more than 20 years of IRS service, he has never encountered an IRS official who evaluated agents according to the number of cases they closed each month.

Loury denied the study's charge that taxpayers are treated differently depending on where they live.

He said various districts enforce tax laws differently but that "there are many circumstances the study didn't show."

"We're not heartless," Loury said. "If we know the money can't be collected because a man is making $150 a month instead of the thousands he was making previously, we're not going to try to collect that money."

The study also found that the larger the government's initial claim against a taxpayer, the smaller the percentage of the assessment ultimately recovered.

Loury said he doesn't know whether that finding is valid.

Growth Of Sales Tax Revenue Reported Off

State sales tax collections during August were 6% higher than for the same month a year ago, but the rate of growth was less, State Tax Commissioner William Peters said Tuesday.

Peters said collections for August totaled $11.3 million, compared to $10.6 million for August 1974. He said the rate of growth from August 1974 to August of this year was 6%, compared to a growth rate of 9.9% from August 1973 to August 1974.

He said for the fiscal year to date, collections totaled $22.8 million, compared to $21.3 million a year ago. He said this represented a growth rate of 6.8% for this year, but was less than the 12.8% growth rate recorded one year ago.

State individual and corporate income tax collections also were higher in August than for the same month a year ago, but the tax rates also increased during the past year.

The individual income tax rate for 1975 was raised from 10% to 12% in June, with the withholding rate increasing to 13% by July 1.

Total individual income tax receipts during August was $5.3 million, compared to $4.9 million in August 1974. Corporate income tax receipts for August were $1.5 million, compared to $1.1 million a year ago.

Peters also said total miscellaneous taxes for August indicated an increase of 7.2% over the same period one year ago. Increases were recorded in liquor, pari-mutuel wagering and corporate occupation taxes, with declines reported in the growth of cigarette taxes and interest on investments.

500 Irish Attend Belfast Service

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — About 500 Protestants and Roman Catholics attended a memorial service at City Hall where more than 1,300 crosses were planted to szmbolize the dead in Northern Ireland's six years of sectarian violence.

Patricia McCulloughn, 2, placed a cross for her brother, Patrick, 17, who was shot to death four months before Patricia was born. "Why can't people stop these senseless killings?" her mother asked.

State Supreme Court Sets Hearing On 'Gag Order'

Omaha (AP) — Attorneys for a coalition of news-gathering organizations challenging a "gag order" imposed in the Erwin Charles Simants murder case have again asked the U.S. Supreme Court to stay the order which has restricted news coverage of the case.

In the meantime, the Nebraska Supreme Court set a hearing next Tuesday on the order, saying the issues indicate that oral arguments are advisable, and that "procedural due process requires that we not act summarily."

Simants, 29, of Sutherland, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in connection with the deaths of six members of a Sutherland family.

Henry Kellie and five members of his family were shot to death in Kellie's Sutherland residence the night of Oct. 18.

On Oct. 22, Lincoln County Judge Ronald Ruff imposed a "gag order" restricting news coverage of the case.

The order was challenged in Lincoln County District Court, where Judge Hugh Stuart dissolved Ruff's order, but imposed one of his own.

Newsmen then took their case to the Nebraska Supreme Court, which accepted jurisdiction. But when the state's highest court failed to act immediately in staying the gag, the coalition took its case to the U.S. Supreme Court, causing the State Supreme Court to say it would delay its action until finding out whether the U.S. Supreme Court would accept jurisdiction.

Late last week, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun remanded the case to the Nebraska Court, temporarily letting the order stand.

But in sending the case back to Nebraska, Blackmun said the State Supreme Court should act promptly.

In an 11-page opinion, Blackmun said Stuart's order "obviously imposes significant prior restraints on media reporting."

However, Blackmun noted that the media may be prohibited from publishing information about trials if the restriction "is necessary to assure a defendant a fair trial." The latter sums up the contentions of both Stuart and Ruff in issuing their orders.

Blackmun said that he would take jurisdiction of the case if the Nebraska Court does not act promptly.

However, early Tuesday morning, before the Nebraska court said it would hold a hearing, Omaha attorney Steve McGill, representing the news coalition, sent a telegram to Washington, again asking the U.S. Supreme Court to take jurisdiction and to stay the order.

McGill cited the Nebraska court's apparent inaction in renewing the stay request.

After learning that a hearing had been set next week, McGill said he sent a second telegram to Washington, informing the high court that the Nebraska court had set a hearing date.

In a later, confirming letter to Francis J. Lorson, deputy clerk of the U.S. Supreme Court, McGill said George Turner, clerk of the Nebraska Supreme Court, advised him Monday afternoon that there were no new developments in the case, and that "he did not know of any action either taken or contemplated."

G. Woodson Howe, vice president of the Omaha World-Herald, who has acted as a spokesman for the media group challenging the gag, had no comment on Tuesday's actions.

Teachers Learn First Aid

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

An epileptic student has an attack. Another wheezes suddenly with bronchitis. A diabetic needs immediate attention — insulin or sugar?

While teachers serve children's "mental needs" every day, Richard C. Treadway believes Lincoln Public School students' physical needs — especially in an emergency — are often overlooked.

The Clinton Elementary teacher pointed out that his fellow professionals may be confronted with more than broken arms, sprains and puncture wounds in any school day.

"There are quite a variety of things, especially in elementary school. that a teacher ought to be prepared to deal with," Treadway said.

They also face youngsters' medical problems that could go unrecognized until a crisis, when quick action could save a life, he said.

Since first aid training is rarely mandatory among teachers colleges, Treadway and Everett Junior High social studies teacher Rex J. Scott decided their Lincoln colleagues might want to get grounded in emergency health care.

Treadway was an Army medic and Scott serves in the Nebraska National Guard 24th Medical company. They surveyed Lincoln school secretaries, teachers and administrators about student injuries and sudden sicknesses.

The poll revealed "very unusual" unamity, Treadway said: 100% felt emergency health care training was "necessary."

He explained that some schools, such as Arnold Elementary in extreme northwest Lincoln, are far away from ambulance services. And nurses aren't always on duty in every school building.

Treadway said his "eventual goal" is to help teachers and staff "fill the void when the nurse is gone." He and Scott worked with Betty Dillon, staff development director, and set up a nine-week emergency health care course that ends Nov. 24.

Twelve staff members completed a basic Red Cross course and Nebraska Heart Association-sponsored CPR training. Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation addresses airway breathing and circulation — to help a choking child, for example.

The staffers got how-to lectures from pediatricians, poison control, epilsepsy, burn and mobile heart team experts.

Health services superviser Helen E. Weber and activities director Virgil Horne will join Heart Association representatives and mental retardation experts next week in a "community sharing session" with the class.

Some of the staffers are even writing health care plans for their schools, Treadway said.

"We want them to know how to treat these things on a basic level," to erase fear of the unknown, he said. Such knowledge "could prevent serious injury later on." He and Scott are stressing prevention as well as basic treatment.

The class may benefit not only kids but adults, Treadway noted, explaining that teachers as well as parents visiting schools could have heart attacks, for instance.

The interest and time that the staff is devoting to emergency health care "does show that teachers care more about children than serving their only learning needs," Treadway said.

Tape Record His Bedroom Bedlam

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live in a beautiful apartment complex. Recently, the apartment directly above us was rented to a young bachelor. This guy brings his girl friends home to spend the night with him. Since his bedroom is directly above ours, we are sometimes jolted wide awake at 2 or 3 a.m. by the sounds of their amorous activities.

We are in our late 20s and are not prudes, but we're tired of being awakened, losing sleep and feeling as though the ceiling will come down on us at any moment.

I say my husband should have a man-to-man talk with the guy. He says the guy probably doesn't care who hears him. We'll go to the manager of the complex only as a last resort. We love our apartment and don't want to move, but we'd like some uninterrupted sleep.

How should we handle this?

TWO SLEEPY PEOPLE

DEAR SLEEPY: Even if your neighbor doesn't care who hears him, he has no right to disturb you. Make a tape recording of the bedroom bedlam and have your husband present it to him as evidence. And if that doesn't work, play it for the manager. Sweet dreams.

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe in kissing on the first date?

It seems to me that any guy who takes out a girl and spends his hard-earned money to show her a good time should be entitled to a goodnight kiss.

DISGUSTED WITH WOMEN

DEAR DISGUSTED: A kiss should not be expected in return for an evening's entertainment or anything else. It's strictly a voluntary show of real affection. And if two people feel like kissing on the first date — I say, why not?

DEAR ABBY: I love to cook and entertain, but it irritates me no end when after going to a lot of trouble to prepare a lovely company meal, a guest just picks at the food or says, "Sorry, I can't eat that," or "No dessert for me, please."

Don't you think calorie-counters should show a little consideration for the hostess, enjoy whatever is served and diet at home.

ANNOYED HOSTESS

DEAR ANNOYED: No! Pressing food on calorie counters is as inexcusable as pressing alcohol on an alcoholic. Many people refuse dinner invitations to avoid the possibility of being forced to eat things they shouldn't just to please the hostess.

Staying at home leads to loneliness and depression, which in turn causes many people to eat out of self-pity.

So here's a plea to well-meaning hostesses: Consider calorie counters when you entertain. Have plenty of fresh fruit and vegatables, and DON'T ever point out that someone is eating very little, should no notice it.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently dating a divorced woman who has a small child. When we go out, am I expected to pay the babysitter?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If she "expects" you to pay the sitter, she's presumptuous. But if you can afford it, it would be generous to offer.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The woman in the Canal Zone keeps refcrring to the "day we can be together forever."

Abby, my husband has told me repeatedly that he loves me, and he has never indicated that he wants out of this marriage.

Some of those letters were written within the last three months. I can't understand how a grown man would continue to keep three women on the string while still married.

Right now he is overseas, but when he gets home I am going to let him have it.

I neither love nor trust him anymore, but I have three children who need a father. What do you advise?

FED UP

DEAR FED: I agree, children do need a father, but a woman needs a husband she can trust and depend upon. Confront your husband with the evidence and ask him for an explanation.

It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to restore your marriage. If that's what you want, I hope you're up to it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a gravedigger for a funeral home. I've been at this job for three years, and the longer I work at gravedigging, the more I wish I were doing something else. It seems as though I think on death all the time.

What do you suggest I do? Please don't tell me to get another job because all the other jobs require a high school diploma, and I dropped out of school in the ninth grade.

DEPRESSED IN TEXAS

DEAR DEPRESSED: Call your department of public education and ask how a drop-out can "drop in" again and get his high school diploma. It's easier than you think.

Opening lead - two of spades.

The secret of playing the dummy well lies in diagnosing how the defenders' cards are divided. Once declarer knows where the unseen cards are located, he can generally find the best method of play.

Consider this deal where Desmond Deery, Irish star, got to three notrump and West led a spade. East took dummy's king with the ace and returned the five, won by declarer with the jack.

Deery now played the eight of clubs (not the deuce) to dummy's queen and cashed the A-K-Q of diamonds. He next led the ten of clubs and, when West followed low, he also played low from dummy! The finesse succeeding, Deery made four notrump. Had he played for a 3-2 division in clubs — without taking the club finesse — he would have gone down one.

The question is why Deery chose to finesse the ten of clubs. The answer is, first, that he could count East for five spades because, if he had had only four, West would have held five of them and would surely have responded two spades instead of one notrump.

And second, since East had shown up with three diamonds and had to have four hearts for his two heart bid, it followed that East had only one club and the ten finesse was therefore bound to succeed.

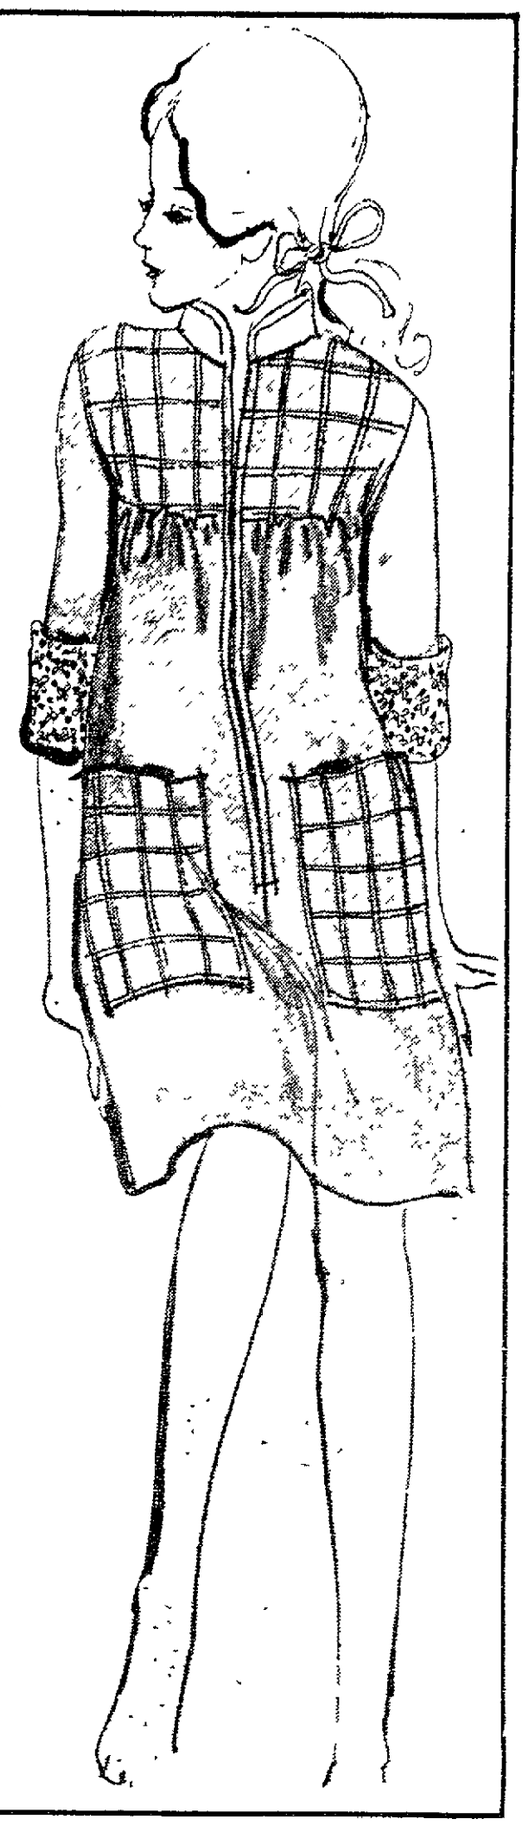

It would not have helped West to cover the ten with the jack because, in that case, declarer would have led a diamond to his nine and then finessed dummy's seven of clubs.

Note also that if Deery had carelessly led the deuce of clubs to the queen at trick three, West could later have made it impossible for declarer to score five club tricks with proper defense. The eight of clubs was indeed a farsighted play.

Nitecap Radio Chat Show A Success

AP

NITECAPS . . . Jepko and wife Pat prepare for broadcast.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — For Herb Jepko, it all started with five hours of unwanted air time on a 50,000-watt radio station. Now his wee-hours telephone chat show has an audience of millions.

Avoiding religion, politics and anything else controversial, Jepko, 45, says he does little to make his program interesting.

But in 12 years on KSL Radio in Salt Lake City and more than a year on his own mini-network of six stations, some callers have waited years to get in on one of his 25 lines, each for a different section of the United States, Canada or Mexico.

Recently the program hooked into nearly 70 additional stations, members of the 661-station Mutual Broadcasting System. Jepko said he hopes to pick up others.

Some people fall asleep trying to reach Jepko. Callers pay the toll. A gentle chime, "tinker bell," signals the end of the five-minute limit. The caller can't phone again for two weeks.

"There's a warmth here," Jepko said. "I'm just a friend to the people, whether they call to read a poem, sing a song, tell about an interesting experience or describe their vegetable garden."

Some don't say much of anything, leaving Jepko to fill the gaps. He recognizes thousands of voices by name, claiming he uses no card file or other memory aide.

Jepko began with KSL as a daytime disc jockey at a time when the station signed off the air at midnight. He convinced station management to allow a six-week experiment with a nighttime talk show. At night, KSL's clear-channel can be picked up sporadically across the country.

Now broadcasting from midnight to 5 a.m. in every time zone, the program has logged more than 200,000 calls.

The Salt Lake City-based Nitecap Radio Network, which uses KSL studios and pays stations for the air time, handles its own advertising accounts and promotes its own products and services, ranging from Nitecap bumper stickers to foreign tours.

A recently introduced product is a $29.95 "Herbie Nite Lite." Herbie, a bearded caricature carrying a candle and wearing a floppy nightcap, is the copyrighted symbol of Nitecaps International Association.

The association, with 250,000 card-carrying members, is non-profit and includes more than 60 chapters in North America.

Jepko's wife, Pat, Nitecap network president, said chapters operate independently but must make regular reports and engage in local service projects.

The network, with a paid staff of 25, publishes a bimonthly magazine, "The Wick," with articles submitted by listeners.

A letter from a new subscriber to "The Wick" advocates changing the program's format to allow controversial topics. "People desperately need outlets for expressing and arguing their fears, misconceptions, prejudices and faith in each other," the writer says.

But six other letters in the issue say "keep the program the same." Jepko said he intends to.

Jepko said the program gets about 1,500 letters a day, and he estimates hundreds of others circulate among Nitecaps.

Although listeners are not allowed to give their telephone numbers or addresses over the phone, he said the program is responsible for more than 500 marriages through the local chapters and other contacts.

Jepko said he once spent more than two hours on the phone with a woman from California who was clicking the chambers of a pistol and threatening to kill herself. Calls from Salt Lake City brought authorities in time, he said.

Roasting a Turkey is as Easy as 1-2-3...

Most turkeys are oven ready when thawed and need only to be rinsed and wiped dry. If stuffing is desired, do so just before cooking, allowing ¾ cup per pound of turkey. Many cooks prefer to bake a dressing, flavored with turkey broth, along side the bird in a separate pan. Unstuffed turkeys require about thirty minutes less cooking time.

A meat thermometer, properly inserted, will climinate guess work about doneness. Insert the thermometer into the thickest part of the thigh, being careful not to touch the bone. When it registers 180-185°, the turkey is done. Cooking times do vary for many reasons, so all suggested times are approximates only.

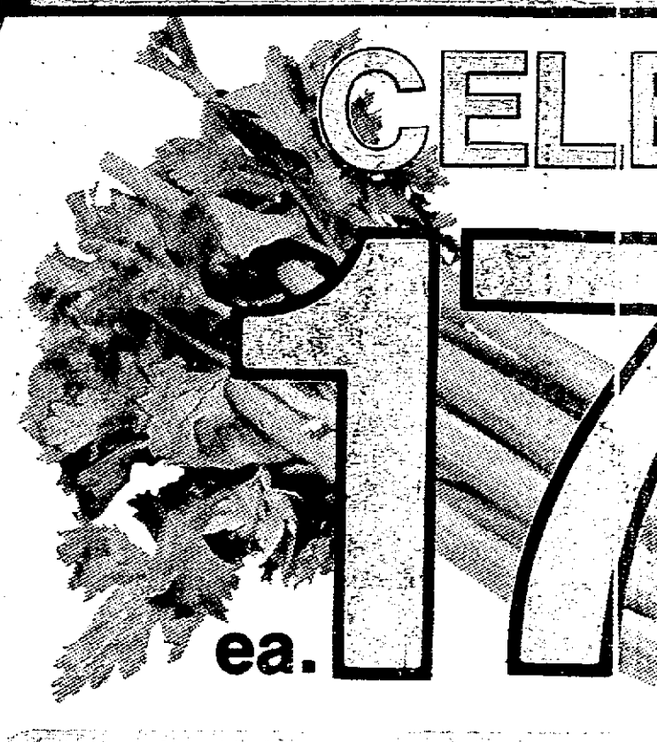

You can choose a fresh frozen, oven ready turkey or one of the newer types which have been processed a bit more to make your cooking easier. The newer self-basted turkeys have cooking oil or butter or a seasoned turkey broth injected into the mat at the time of processing. These turkeys are basted as they cook, providing juicy flavorful meat. Pre-stuffed turkeys have stuffing added before being flash frozen. To cook, remove the packaging coverings and begin roasting while still frozen. Cooking times will be somewhat longer. Some turkeys even have a meat thermometer placed in the thickest part of the thigh before freezing. This thermometer will "pop-out" when the internal temperature reaches 180-185°, indicating the turkey is done.

Charter Revision Unit Juggles Hot Proposals

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Members of the city's Charter Revision Committee apparently concluded Tuesday that two proposals were just too hot to handle and dropped them back into governmental limbo.

The committee said too many "cans of worms" would be opened if the charter were changed to allow the City Council to set the fiscal year.

The committee also agreed that a really big "can of worms" would crawl out of a proposal to hold a charter convention to reorganize the charter, the city's constitution.

The committee delayed action on both proposals.

Mayor Helen Boosalis had proposed the committee consider moving the city election date back from May to March or change the city's fiscal year.

Not Enough Time

The mayor and some council members have remarked that in election years it is extremely difficult for new officials to review and set the city's million dollar budget in the short time allowed between the election and the start of the city's next fiscal year.

For instance, Mayor Boosalis took office May 19. She had about six weeks to prepare the city's budget for the City Council. In off-election years, the mayor usually begins budgetary reviews in January.

Alternatives Listed

Charter Revision Committee member Bob Sittig suggested the committee could recommend:

— changing the fiscal year from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, which would coincide with the federal government's announced change to begin its budgetary year on Oct. 1.

— Reduce the amount of time the council has to review and set the city budget.

— Move the election dates back from May to March.

— Leave the situation as is.

Sittig suggested that the language setting the fiscal year could be erased from the charter. It would then be up to the council to set the budget year after several members voiced concern that the city couldn't be sure the federal government wouldn't change its budgetary year periodically.

Member Erv Peterson theorized that a council could then start "playing politics" with the budget. A devious council could then "slip something over" on the citizens, the former mayor said.

Rewriting Opposed

The group also sidetracked City Atty. Charles Humbles' plan to rewrite the city charter.

Many sections are repetitive, some are contradictory, much of the language is archaic, some of the sections are obsolete. Furthermore, Humble said, a revising of the charter would eliminate many sections which are too detailed and legislative in nature. The city charter, like a constitution, should not be so detailed in its requirements on a variety of subjects, he asserted.

The committee blocked Humble's "Cadillac plan." They didn't buy a "Pinto plan" either.

Members balked at the idea of forming a bunch of task forces to reword the document. So many changes would be recommended, they figured, that a charter convention would be called.

"And we all know what can happen there," members said.

'Dangerous Groups'

Peterson said such a convention would open the charter up "to a lot of dangerous groups" who would wait to "nail something into the charter" the committee didn't want.

Other members suggested it would be unwise to rewrite the charter in view of the potential merger of city and county government, which is being studied.

Concerning the charter housecleaning proposal, Blair said, "We don't have the time and effort to do it. Nobody else does it, why should we?"

The committee also tentatively set Jan. 20 and 21 to hold public hearings on several other proposed charter amendments agreed upon at their last meeting.

Eight-Year Limit

One amendment would restrict the mayor and council to two consecutive terms in office, or eight years in a row. The second amendment would eliminate the Lincoln Electric System's in-lieu-of-tax payments, allowing the council to decide where the money should be spent.

The City Council makes the final determination on whether a charter amendment should be placed on the ballot for voter approval.

Transplants Assessed

Dr. Sharon Hunt, a member of the Stanford University heart transplant team, said in Anaheim, Calif., Tuesday that transplants have proven their worth in prolonging and improving life. "Our results are now roughly comparable to kidney transplant survival rates," she said.

AIM Leader Decries 200 Years Of Deceit

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — A leader in the American Indian Movement said the country's bicentennial ceremonies will celebrate 200 years of deceit and shame.

"We as a people have come to realize that when they talked about independence and justice in writing the Constitution they weren't talking about Indians," Vernon Bellecourt said.

Terms Set For NPPD's Burning High Sulfur Coal

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State Environmental Control Director Dan Drain Tuesday outlined conditions under which the Nebraska Public Power District can continue to burn air-polluting high sulfur coal at its Hallam power plant.

The administrative order will expire Dec. 13 when the case will be considered by the State Environmental Control Council. A public hearing on the issue is scheduled for that day.

Emissions from the coal violate clean air standards.

The violation has been referred to the county attorney, and "charges will be filed rather soon," Drain said.

State law provides for a maximum fine of $500 for each day of violation.

Difficult To Get

NPPD advised Drain that it has had difficulty in obtaining low sulfur coal for its Hallam unit, and is burning high sulfur coal whose emissions violate the state's sulfur dioxide standards, he said.

Indications are that emissions from the plant on a number of days have "exceeded the standards practically 2 to 1," Drain said.

In order to provide needed electrical energy, NPPD "didn't have too much choice," he said.

NPPD has a $4 million inventory of 207,000 tons of coal (both high and low sulfur) at Hallam, Drain noted.

His administrative order provides that NPPD:

—inform his department of "the steps taken to prevent a reoccurrence of the situation."

—burn oil or gas at Sheldon station when available as an alternative fuel.

—take "all steps immediately" to acquire low sulfur coal and blend it with the high sulfur coal in sufficient quantity to achieve compliance with clean air standards.

—keep records of its coal consumption activity at Hallam, available on request by the Lincoln-Lancaster County Air Pollution Control Authority.

Scant Alternative

Violation of the air quality standards "does not allow the department much of an alternative if it is to protect the environment," Drain said.

"The department has to consider the state's power needs, the economics concerned and preserve the integrity of the state's air implementation plan."

During the recent mild weather, Drain said, NPPD has been burning some natural gas, rather than coal, at its power plant.

The department has fielded no complaints thus far from residents of the Hallam area, he said.

Whether continued violation of the sulfur dioxide standards would be injurious to health, Drain replied: "I can't say conclusively."

Relationship Denied

Drain said Hallam's shortage of low sulfur coal does not relate to NPPD's guarantee to use low sulfur coal at the controversial new Gentleman Station under construction near Sutherland.

"Over the longer term the availability of low sulfur coal can be more assured," he said.

Low sulfur coal is available, Drain said. "It's just not available physically at Hallam now."

His order cites specific NPPD violations from Oct. 25 through Oct. 29, but noted that violations continue "whenever high sulfur coal is burned" at the plant.

Self-Reliance Urged

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Federal regulations must be written to encourage other states to develop their own energy resources, rather than relying solely on oil from the Mideast and Texas, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said.

County Engineer Praised For Getting Federal Funds

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger, who has brought more than $2 million in federal money into the county during the past 10 months, received mostly praise during a public hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Nuernberger explained his department's $4.5 million one-year road and bridge improvement plan and a "very conservative" five-year plan during the County Board hearing.

"Our success or failure depends on two variables, time and money," Nuernberger said. "Time can save money and money can buy time.

"We've already suffered a setback in local funding," said Nuernberger, a reiteration of complaints after the County Board cut his budget request by more than $500,000 this year.

"This year's program is the largest in the county's history," Nuernberger pointed out, adding that the impact of reduced local funding will show up next year.

Nuernberger has often explained that the ability to get federal funding is dependent on a constant flow of local funds.

The conservative five-year plan for 1977 through 1981 reflects the possibility that lower local funding will jeopardize federal funding, according to Nuernberger.

But the county engineer is continuing to assure that all local road projects will be eligible for federal funds by meeting all federal requirements in the early planning and right-of-way acquisition stages.

Most of the individuals testifying during the hearing complimented Nuernberger's knowledge of federal funding and his "cooperative" spirit in working with both communities and individuals.

The board received a petition with 208 signatures asking that the paving of portions of Sprague Road be given priority.

In other action, the board appointed Dave McLaughlin, Reid Devoe and Francine Kubacek to the Lancaster Manor Advisory Board.

Two County Officials Taking Some Ribbing

The two county officials charged with the misdemeanor offense of failure to pay sales tax have both been taking some ribbing in court house circles.

County Commissioner Bob Colin and County Assessor Fritz Meyer are both telling contradictory stories about the incident involving a false sales tax report on a car Colin purchased. And both men have said the other is telling "lies."

But Assessor Meyer added a little frosty icing when he said that Colin is "so dumb he wouldn't know enough to pour sand out of boot."

Commissioner Colin took the kidding in stride Tuesday as other county employes offered to bring in a bucket for his sand. Then Colin, who maintains he did not know he was doing anything illegal, offered a rebutal.

"If having sand in your boots is an indication of being honest and truthful and if having sand in your boots will make it possible to have a clear conscience and be able to live with yourself, then I most certainly have sand in my boots, along with a little horse manure on the outside."

Strike At Canada Paper Mills Could Continue Past Christmas

Montreal (AP) — A strike that has shut down 60% of Canada's newsprint producing capacity could continue past Christmas, industry officials have predicted.

"We'll have Christmas trees on the picket lines if necessary," a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers Union said Tuesday.

No negotiations were planned for the immediate future.

Paul Lachance, president of the Quebec Council of Pulp and Paper Producers, also said the strikes, which have touched almost every province, could continue into 1976.

The union spokesman estimated that 24,400 union members were currently on strike in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Another 9,100 union members were part of 13,000 forest industry strikers forced back to work earlier by provincial legislation in British Columbia.

The B.C. workers were the first to walk off their jobs in July. Negotiations in that province may resume next week, he said.

The union spokesman criticized companies for being "interested in keeping the strike going" so they can maintain current price levels and reduce inventories.

Many companies across Canada had shut down newsprint mills in the spring for one- or two-week periods before the strikes started because of excessive inventories.

The union spkoesman said about two weeks ago negotiations had failed with some companies in Ontario because the companies would not exceed the 10% wage increase guidelines of the federal government.

The government has said it will allow some exceptions to this ceiling but has not clearly defined who will be exempt.

The union is demanding a 40% pay boost, a $2-an-hour increase to a base hourly rate of $4.82 and average hourly earnings of $5.70.

However, the union has informally agreed to a 21% wage increase involving 500 workers at Irving Pulp and Paper Ltd. in Saint John, N.B. The increase must still be ratified by a vote.

Robert Andras, federal manpower minister, said last month that the settlement with the Irving workers could prove to be a test case since it must be approved by the Federal anti-inflation review board.

Despite the shutdown of 60% of Canada's newsprint capacity, the American Newspaper Publishers Association issued a statement this week saying their members inventories were large enough to carry them through the heavy Christmas season, when newspapers are traditionally swelled from Christmas advertising.

About 65% of Canada's newsprint production is exported to the United States.

James Buchanan, the union's national secretary, countered with a statement expressing doubt in the association's claim.

"They would do anything to weaken our bargaining position," Buchanan said.

"Some newspapers have advised us the picture is not as bright as the association makes it out to be," he said.

Wife Advises: Go To Church, Fix Up Fights

Racine, Wis. (AP) — Anna Dahnert says she's still happy after 69 years of marriage. Her advice to newlyweds: "Both go to church every Sunday and be nice together.

"If you have an argument, fix it up again," she advised recently on the 69th anniversary of her wedding to Theodore Dahnert.

Dahnert, 90, and his wife, 89, still keep busy around their home. Dahnert mows the lawn, shovels the walk and trims bushes, while his wife does some housework and goes shopping.

"You can't just sit; you got to do something," Mrs. Dahnert says. "If I'm occupied, the time goes faster and I feel better.

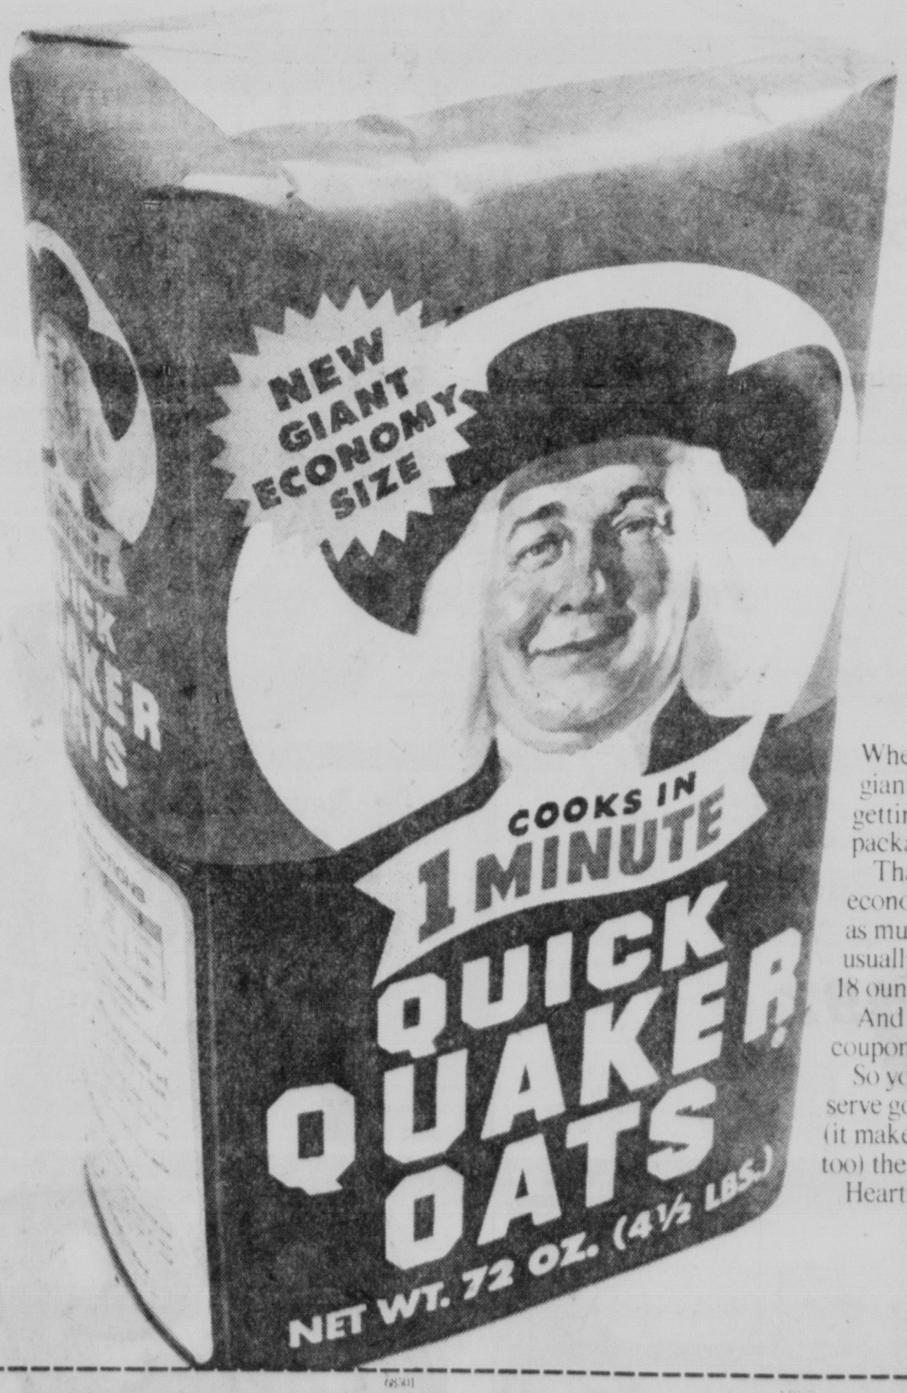

"Every Sunday we go out to have dinner. You only live once."

Tin Prices To Rise

Pittsburgh (AP) — National Steel Corp., the nation's third largest steel firm, announced it will raise prices Jan. 15 on its tin mill products, which are used primarily in beverage containers.

Grain Plan Approached Warily

Scottsbluff — Wheat growers continue to approach the subject of grain reserves with extreme caution, and other countries of the world appear to have little interest in establishing an international reserve policy, according to speakers Tuesday at the Nebraska-Wyoming Wheat Growers Association convention here.

Peter Pauli, director of the U.S. Agriculture Department export sales division, explained that a proposed reserve structure has been submitted by the U.S. delegation to the International Wheat Council, which is considering reserve policy as part of a new international wheat agreement.

But, he noted, "Other countries don't seem to attach the same degree of importance to food security as the U.S. does. The European Common Market has already dropped out of the negotiations in London."

The U.S. proposal called for an international reserve of 30 million tons of food grain — 25 million tons of wheat and five million tons of rice — a figure estimated to offset 90% of the year-to-year variations in production.

The U.S. would hold 25%, or about 250 million bushels, of that quantity, possibly through a structure involving private firms and a form of commodity credit agency. Adding normal working reserves, about 10% of production, this country would hold an annual carryover of about 450 million bushels, Pauli estimated.

The world grain reserve concept would require deliberations among cooperating countries on building up and drawing down grain stocks. These nations would determine when a worldwide shortage exists and agree to release reserves to signatory countries needing food grain.

Pauli didn't, however, hold out strong hopes for such an accord. He concluded, "I have never seen an international agreement that didn't fall apart when it was most needed. I don't know if the mind of man can conceive a plan that will work when it's needed."

National Association of Wheat Growers President Don Woodward of Pendleton, Ore., reiterated the position of the organization — an opposition to any reserve system that would have a controlling effect on the market or, if a reserve is established, isolating it from the marketplace.

"Reserves that can be controlled and manipulated always result in lower prices to the producer," said Woodward. He feels the abundant production in this country assures the U.S. of an adequate reserve.

Wheat producers can promise each other to keep reserves under control and isolated from the market, Woodward continued, but as long as growers, and the buyers and sellers, know it is there, a true supply and demand market is not possible.

More Fires Started By Electricity

Nebraska has seen a marked increase in the number of fires started by electric fences, according to Donald E. Westover, fire management coordinator, for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Forestry.

"The dry, windy weather has made the tall grass along fence rows readily combustible. This possesses an obvious threat to not only adjoining fields, but also to livestock and farm buildings," Westover said.

"The Nebraska state forester's office is reminding farmers that some electric fence chargers now on the market may fall below the safety standards set by Underwriters Laboratories. These units have excessive amperage and duration of charge, so their use increases the chance of fires starting from an electric fence," Westover said.

"Farmers interested in purchasing a fence charger are urged to check for the Underwriters Laboratories seal before buying such a unit," he said.

Another prevention measure would be to periodically mow vegetation under the wire to ensure that it doesn't come in contact with the fence, he suggested. Some states have been promoting the maintenance of a disced area two feet wide on each side of the fence whenever an electric fence is used, Westover said.

Joint Vet Science College Cost Estimate Called 'Lie'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit, chairman of the Legislature's Agricultural Committee, said Tuesday that Gov. J. James Exon's claim that Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana could build a joint college of veterinary science for $14 million "is a lie."

The figure came from a news release issued by Exon's office late last week.

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus, chairman of the NU Veterinary Science Department, told the Agricultural Committee the actual cost would probably run from $40 million to $45 million, depending on the type of clinical system used and on whether it would use newly constructed research and diagnostic buildings at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Twiehaus recommended that enrollment in the proposed school be held to 100 students a year for a total student body of 400 with about 80 graduate students.

"Whenever you get over 100 students the quality of the veterinarians produced tends to drop because of a lack of clinical material available," he said.

Several witnesses at the hearing indicated they would prefer the state completed staffing the new facilities at the university before undertaking any new efforts.

Doyle Free, speaking on behalf of the Nebraska Poultry Industries, suggested a separate budget be set up for the veterinary science department to handle the new facilities.

Sen. Loran Schmit

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus

Dr. J.C. Marcum of Spencer, representing the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association, indicated that a sharp increase in funds was needed to staff the new facilities and replace five departed staff members.

"We will have a new facility and nobody to man it when it is completed in December. The research facility is also going to need additional personnel. We may need a college to educate veterinarians, but we need this a lot worse. If we can't fund this, we better forget a college because this is peanuts compared to what that would cost," Marcum said.

Sen. Schmit noted that there was widespread support for a new college to produce veterinarians but little interest in increasing taxes to pay the cost.

"This is the situation we face. It is like a baby — the initial cost is nothing to the total cost. Before we get this baby conceived, we better know what it is going to cost," Schmit said.

Dr. Robert Prokop of the board of regents suggested that a five-state regional school could be financed on the basis of population for the construction costs and have the cost of operation divided according to the number of students attending from the various states contributing to the school.

The promoters of the school cited several advantages of a regional approach to such a school.

Federal funds would be easier to obtain than for a state school. It would attract a lot of veterinarians for post graduate studies. It would have the support of a large number of livestock groups from several states and would offer students a wider variety of experiences than a single state school.

Sen. James Dickenson of Omaha summed up the hearing saying, "It seems to me that this is a good idea but maybe we better concentrate in taking care of the facilities we already have before we proceed to the college."

Confirmation Of ABP Payback Hoped For By Mid-December

Omaha (UPI) — The three major forces in American Beef Packers Inc. bankruptcy proceedings said Tuesday they hoped ABP's plan of arrangement to pay creditors holding some $25 million in debts could be confirmed by mid-December.

The statement was issued following a closed door meeting in Chicago between ABP, its mainline creditor, General Electric Credit Corp., and the executive committee of the creditors committee in ABP's limited bankruptcy proceedings.

General Electric Credit has agreed to finance a $36.5 million new line of credit for ABP, but some creditors have felt GECC was hestiating on the offer. If ABP fails to obtain the GECC money, the meatpacker would be plunged into full bankruptcy.

However, the statement from the Chicago meeting said "based upon the closing of pending sales of the two ABP plants at Fort Morgan, Colo., and Council Bluffs, Iowa, GECC and ABP are proceeding with the drafting of agreements for a loan sufficient to fund the ABP plan of arrangement.

"It is hoped the plan of ABP can be confirmed on or about Dec. 15," the statement read, "and that the initial payment to creditors can be made immediately thereafter."

The plan was to have been presented to Federal Bankruptcy Judge David Crawford in Omaha for approval Monday, but ABP and the creditors committee were granted a continuance until Nov. 26. Several creditors, including the attorney for J. Gordon Roberts, the largest unsecured creditor, objected to the continuances and asked for a full disclosure to the bankruptcy court of negotiations between ABP and GECC.

The participants in the Chicago meeting were to report back to Crawford.

ABP said Monday it had reached a $6.4 million sale agreement with the Kane-Miller Corp., a New York-based diversified food processing firm, for its Beefland International Inc. plant in Council Bluffs.

UPI learned Tuesday an estimated $5-million sales agreement has been reached between ABP and a group of Colorado cattle feeders for the purchase of the Fort Morgan plant.

One of the conditions for ABP to obtain the new credit line from GECC is for ABP to repay some $11 million in long term loans to GECC. The only way that can be done, ABP has said, is to sell the Beefland and Fort Morgan plants.

Teachers Win Back Pay, Jobs By Using New Law

Pender (AP) — Using the state's new "just cause" law, which was passed by the 1975 Legislature, six teachers in the Winnebago School District 17 have won reinstatement with back pay.

The six claimed the school board did not adequately show just cause in not renewing their contracts for the current school year, and Thurston County District Judge Walter Huber agreed. However, Huber announced Tuesday that he will hear motions for a new trial Dec. 5.

The request for the new trial was filed by attorneys for the school board.

In finding in favor of the teachers, Huber also held that the school board failed to comply with the state's new "open meetings" law in taking action on the contract renewals during private meetings.

Winnebago School Supt. Deward Millsap said economic conditions, specifically cutbacks in state and federal aid to the district, dictated the terminations. The six teachers involved are Janice Alexander, Kay Koigh, Carter Leeka, Carlene Marxberry, Helen Thomas and Gary Washington.

Dana Teacher, Students Face Drug Charges

Blair (AP) — Thirteen persons, including a Dana College instructor, will be arraigned on drug charges in Washington County Court Friday morning.

All 13 were arrested during drug raids last weekend at five Blair residences and four dormitory rooms on the Dana College campus, officials said.

County Atty. Darvid Quist identified the Dana instructor as Donald G. Warman, 44, an assistant professor of history and political science. He is charged with possession of marijuana and possession of a controlled substance.

The others charged include Warman's son, four Blair residents and seven Dana College students.

All have been released on their own recognizance or in the custody of school officials, their attorneys or their parents.

Blair police said the weekend raids culminated an eight-month investigation.

Police Chief John Hoppe said authorities confiscated about 500 suspected amphetamine tablets, from two to three pounds of marijuana, an undetermined number of barbiturates, along with several shotguns and a pistol.

North Platte Woman Sentenced For Intent To Commit Murder

Sidney (AP) — A North Platte woman was sentenced Tuesday to serve a 3½- to 7-year term in prison for assault with intent to commit murder.

Cheyenne County District Court Judge John Knapp handed down the sentence in the case of Mrs. Barbara Swayze, 43, formerly of Kimball.

Before pronouncing sentence, Knapp rejected a defense motion for a new trial, but delayed the execution of the sentence for 45 days to allow Mrs. Swayze's attorney to file an appeal with the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Mrs. Swayze was convicted by a jury Oct. 17, in connection with a June 1974, incident in which a newborn infant was wrapped in a plastic bag, and thrown into the pit under a ladies restroom at the Lodgepole State Wayside Area west of Kimball.

The baby's cries were heard by a passerby, and the infant was rescued. The child has since been placed in a foster home.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Police Officer Of Ralston Is Wounded By Gunman

Omaha (AP) — A 28-year-old Ralston police officer was listed in good condition in an Omaha hospital Tuesday after being shot twice in the back with a .45-caliber pistol.

Meanwhile, area law enforcement authorities were looking for a black man who allegedly pulled the trigger.

Patrolman William White was shot early Tuesday after he stopped a "suspicious car" at a major southwest Omaha intersection.

White underwent exploratory surgery Tuesday morning.

White told fellow officers he believed the car being driven by his assailant bore Nebraska license plates, but that he did not have time to get the license number.

White, who joined the Ralston force 13 months ago, was conscious after the shooting, and told other officers what had happened.

According to Patrolman R. L. Hough and Chief Dale Richardson, White said he observed the suspicious car "prowling" shortly before 5 a.m., and that he followed the car for about four or five blocks.

As the two cars approached the intersection of 84th and Q Sts., White said the driver of the other car swerved, and slammed on his brakes.

White said the driver stepped from the car, and seemed to be hiding something with his hands.

White, according to the reports, then stationed himself behind the open door of his cruiser, and ordered the suspect to keep his hands visible.

White then stepped from behind the door, and the man pulled the gun.

Through Richardson, White quoted the suspect as saying, "Don't move or I'll kill you."

According to Richardson, White felt the suspect was going to shoot anyway, so he attempted to jump between the two parked cars. As he did, the suspect fired, hitting White twice.

In his statement, White said the man then returned to his car, and began driving west. The patrolman said he got off six shots at the car, and that he may have hit the auto as it fled.

Richardson said two shell casings were recovered, and that some residents of the area heard the shots and saw the fleeing car.

The chief asked for help from the public, urging motorists who may have been in the area to call his office.

Tourniquets Make Snake Bites Worse

Miami Beach, Fla. (UPI) — Forget about tourniquets and ice packs when treating snake bites, a University of Louisville surgeon urges.

And as for cutting an X over the fang wound and sucking out the venom, says Dr. Robert E. Arnold, the only result is likely to be infecting the victim with bacteria from the mouth of the would-be angel of mercy.

Arnold told the Southern Medical Association meeting here that the American Red Cross, the Boy Scouts of America and the American College of Surgeons are all recommending the wrong remedies for snake bite. He said he has asked the Boy Scouts to change their first aid manual without success, and has had little or no response from the Red Cross and the College of Surgeons.

The best thing for a snake bite victim is to be kept calm and sped to a physician, Arnold said.

"All (snake) bites cut the circulation and applying a tourniquet makes matters worse," he said. So do ice packs, since they slow blood flow. It is lack of circulation around the gang wound that kills tissue and may make amputation necessary.

"Anyone who has read a surgery text in the last 20 years will tell you that to suck a snake wound is to risk infection from bacteria of the mouth. Finally . . . you cannot get the venom out, but you can treat with anti-venom," Arnold said.

Arnold said approximately 6,000 persons are bitten by snakes in the United States each year, but only about five of them die.

"If you did nothing in all of the cases, probably 99% would recover. Just don't foul up the patient with bad medicine," he said.

Arnold won support from William Haast, director of the Miami Serpentarium, which produces anti-venom for shipment throughout the world. Haast, who has survived 122 snake bites, including several by king cobras, said, "for 10 years that (the Arnold regimen) has been our treatment."

Smith Pleads Guilty, Pays $100 Fine

San Diego (AP) — Financier C. Arnholt Smith has pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and paid a $100 fine.

Smith was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after being administered a breath test Oct. 15. That charge was dropped when Smith's attorney appeared alone and entered the plea to the lesser charge.

Aw, Mom, It Was So Comfy . . .

Sometimes a fella just has to get a little rest.

At least that's what 3-year-old Erin Hatfield of 2421 S. 23rd probably thought when he crawled in among some bags of leaves in his parents front yard late Tuesday afternoon to take a nap.

His nap was disturbed when he was found by Lincoln police after a fruitless search by his parents caused them to call for assistance.

Blair Rejects City Manager

Lincoln Star Special

Blair — By a margin of over three to one, Blair voters Tuesday soundly defeated a proposal to adopt the city manager form of government.

City Clerk L. W. Svendgaard reported the unofficial tally on the issue was a total of 313 for and 1,039 against.

The proposal was turned down in all four wards, the city clerk said.

Woman's Death Ruled Suicide

The death of a 45-year-old Lincoln woman at her home Tuesday morning has been ruled a suicide, according to police.

Mrs. Cleoma Carson of 333 N. 56th was found dead of a gunshot wound on the patio of her home by her son DeWayne, who told police he heard a gunshot and found the body when he went to investigate.

District No. 46 In Sarpy County OKs Bond Issue

Lincoln Star Special

Papillion — A $2,500,000 school bond issue for District No. 46 of Sarpy County (also known as LaPlatte-Platteview-Springfield) won approval Tuesday in a special election.

The Sarpy County clerk's office said the unofficial vote on the proposal was 450 for, 239 against. The total includes six absentee ballots, all favoring the issue.

Funds will be used for purchasing a site and construction of a new elementary school and for additions to and repairs for schools in the district.

School Bonds Nixed Again At Weeping Water

Lincoln Star Special

Weeping Water — Although the vote was closer this time, Weeping Water residents again Tuesday nixed a school bond issue.

The latest proposal — a $884,000 bond issue — narrowly lost by a vote of 213 to 245.

Last year a similar plan failed by a vote of 339-172.

The funds would have been used to add classrooms for art, home economics, business and individual study rooms to the Weeping Water High School.

Another shop area, a medical center, study hall-cafeteria, band room and offices for teachers would also have been included.

Hastings Nixes Manager Plan

Lincoln Star Special

Hastings — A proposal to establish a city manager form of government here was rejected by Hastings voters Tuesday in a special election.

In a small turnout at the polls, the issue drew an unofficial total of 1,501 votes for and 3,585 against, according to the city clerk's office.

There are 13,246 registered voters in Hastings, it was pointed out.

The issue was placed on the ballot via a petition drive.

At the present time, Hastings has a mayor-council form of government.

Rusk Asks Real Stumper

Atlanta (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk stopped by the Dean Rusk Elementary School for a question and answer session with the pupils and stumped with them a question of his own: Who was the first secretary of state?

"Thomas Jefferson," Rusk told the group of 4th-through-7th-grade pupils. "Everybody who visits the monuments to Washington and Jefferson in Washington thinks they're monuments to the first and third presidents. But they're really monuments to the first president and the first secretary of state."

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF INTENT TO File for release of funds

This request relates to the following project: Conduct study to assess feasibility of developing units for handicapped people.

All applicable environmental reviews and clearance for the above project have been completed, as required by HUD. On November 24, 1975, a request and certification for funding of the above project will be filed.

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Lincoln, Nebraska is certifying to HUD that the City of Lincoln, Nebraska and Mayor Helen Boosalis, in her official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, City of Lincoln, Nebraska may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; (b) that the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure and may be addressed to HUD at the Omaha Area Office, 7100 W. Center Road, Omaha, Nebraska, 68106. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after December 15, 1975 will be considered by HUD.

The applicant is the City of Lincoln, Nebraska; Mayor Helen Boosalis.

Prime Witness Called In Start Of Divis Trial

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — Neither side wasted time Tuesday getting to the crux of misdemeanor charges against Saunders County Sheriff Joe Divis for failing to arrest a person he allegedly knew possessed marijuana with intent to sell.

Saunders County Atty. Curtis Bromm called his prime witness, Mrs. Violet Bonow, who told the jury she reported an alleged conspiracy with Divis to sell marijuana after suffering moral misgivings about involvement with drug traffic.

Defense attorney J. William Gallup told the Saunders County Court jury Mrs. Bonow was a "jilted, scorned woman," who was seeking revenge by involving Divis in the alleged conspiracy.

Hearing Waived

Divis earlier waived preliminary hearing on two felony charges of conspiracy to deliver marijuana and converting county property to his own use.

Trial date on the charges has not been set in Saunders County District Court, and Gallup said if the misdemeanor charge is dismissed, he will request dismissal of the felony charges.

Mrs. Bonow also faces charges in the alleged conspiracy, but said she expected leniency from the prosecution.

Although testifying she now considers Divis an enemy, Mrs. Bonow said she had a close relationship with the sheriff.

"It's a long story. It starts 15 years ago and cost me a husband, cost me a home, cost me a stepson and my daugher's love," she testified.

Mrs. Bonow admitted she was an alcoholic, but had reformed after treatment at the Lincoln General Hospital Chemical Dependency Unit about two years ago.

After becoming involved with Divis, Mrs. Bonow said she lost her husband and began drinking heavily.

"I was playing around with him (Divis) and Herman (her ex-husband) knew it," she said.

Booze Caused Problem

Gallup produced a letter from Mrs. Bonow to her sister Opal, which he quoted as stating "the cause of my problems with Herman was booze."

Sheriff Joe Divis

The Valley attorney asked Mrs. Bonow why there was no mention of Divis as cause for the failure of her marriage.

"I covered up fro him," she replied.

Bromm told the four-woman, two man jury that Mrs. Bronow, 52, voluntarily told him Oct. 1 that she had 11 large garbage bags of marijuana in the upstairs of her home.

Mrs. Bonow testified she had misgivings about the alleged conspiracy after seeing a TV show that showed her what drugs could do to her two grandchildren.

After calling the State Patrol into the investigation, Bromm told the jury two conversations between the alleged conspirators were recorded using an electronic transmitter attached to Mrs. Bonow.

He said the first conversation Oct. 15 will show the sheriff had knowledge of the marijuana, and the second involves a transaction carried out with Patrol money, allegedly as payment for the sale of the marijuana.

"She gave him his share of the money, which I believe the evidence will show he took," Bromm said.

Gallup told the jury Divis admitted to authorities at the time of his arrest he had just accepted $150 from Mrs. Bonow.

Loan Repayment

However, he said the sheriff assumed it was repayment on a $1,000 promissory note from Mrs. Bonow, which was introduced as evidence.

Gallup said he took Mrs. Bonow's remarks that it was payment for a marijuana transaction as an idle quip.

"This is a typical case of the sheriff's humoring a crazy, scorned woman," Gallup said.

The defense attorney implied that Mrs. Bonow was jealous of Mrs. Marjorie Novak, who is divorced and succeeded her as matron of Saunders County jail.

Mrs. Bonow testified she took the marijuana from the garage of the sheriff's office with his knowledge, and that he had seen her loading it.

Gallup repeatedly raised the point that the marijuana was not prepared for street sale and that the sheriff would have known that would greatly increase its value.

Allergic To Odor

Mrs. Bonow said she was allergic to the odor of the marijuana and had only processed a little of it in the approximately eight months it was in her home.

"If he was your accomplice, why didn't you ask him to come over and cut the stems off?" Gallup asked.

"I never thought of it," Mrs. Bonow said.

Gallup also said the sheriff could have found a more knowledgeable person than Mrs. Bonow, if he had wished to sell the marijuana.

Mrs. Bonow admitted having a severe temper and taking a shot at Divis with his own weapon and considering doing so another time.

"But his (temper) matches mine," she said.

Mrs. Bonow said she moved to Springfield, Mo., after her last meeting with Divis "to save my life."

The prosecution also called E. Greg Schnasse, investigator for the State Patrol, who testified to an argument he allegedly had with Divis.

Forced From Office

He said Divis forced him to leave his office two years ago, and that he filed a complaint with his superiors on the incident.

"Since that time, there have been not as many drug investigations in this county," he said.

The trial will resume Wednesday, when excerpts of the taped conversations will be played for the jury.

Man Held In Murder At Friend

Wilber (AP) — A man who had been sought more than two months in connection with the death of Anne Scott was being held in the Saline County jail without bond Tuesday.

Donald Eugene Anderson, 36, appeared before County Judge Eugene Zajicek late Monday on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of the 15-year-old Friend girl in August.

At the request of County Atty. Bob Conner, no bond was set. Anderson, accused of killing Miss Scott "in the perpetration of or attempt to perpetrate rape," requested and was granted an attorney at public expense.

The body of the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Scott of Friend, was found in a field three miles southwest of Friend on Aug. 24. She had been missing five days.

Anderson, who comes from Washington State and was a construction worker in the area at the time of the girl's death, was arrested Oct. 11 in St. Petersburg, Fla. He waived extradition.

No date has been set for further court action.

LaVista Youth Killed In Crash

Papillion (UPI) — A LaVista teenager was killed and four Sarpy County teenagers injured, one critically, Tuesday in a one-car crash in suburban Omaha.

Authorities identified the victim as Richard Blevins, 17, who was driving north on 36th St. near Harrison in Sarpy County when his car left the road, went into a ditch, and struck an embankment.

The four passengers were Richard Profitt, Maureen Kirk, Debby Strong and Lance McFarland.

Profitt was hospitalized in critical condition, while the other three teenagers were in fair condition.

Plaintiffs Gain Delay In Suit Over Election

By The Associated Press

The saga of former state Sen. Terry Carpenter will continue, apparently for another three weeks at least.

That was the word Tuesday from the office of U.S. District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom, who is considering a state Justice Department motion to dismiss a class action lawsuit centering on Carpenter's apparent defeat in the last election.

The suit was filed April 2 on behalf of Jesus Jose Porras and Marcella Castaneda, both of Scottsbluff, and Dr. W.F. Mahan, a Mitchell dentist.

Attorneys for the three had asked the court for additional time, Urbom's office said. A month ago Urbom said he thought he could rule within 30 days, and has said on occasions since then that the ruling could come within a few weeks.

The three plaintiffs contend their votes were among 126 originally cast for Carpenter in the 48th District legislative race, but later ruled void by Secretary of State Allen Beermann. That ruling meant that William E. Nichol served as state senator.

The lawsuit asks a three-judge federal panel to issue a declaratory judgment that the state law cited by Beermann is invalid, and Beermann's actions under that law, which was amended by the last legislature, are invalid.

If Urbom denies the dismissal motion, the case would be hard by the three judge panel.

If the suit ultimately succeeds, it would mean Carpenter won the election by three votes. Beermann's action made Carpenter a 68-vote loser to Nichol.

Carpenter had initially taken his challenge of the election to the legislature, but the Unicameral cited a technicality in a failure to post a bond, and decided not to consider the matter.

Carpenter contended Nichol's 68-vote victory should be overturned by the validation of nearly 100 of his write-in votes which were thrown out for misspellings, lack of a first name or initiation, or improper designation of office.

Carpenter, long a dominant force in the Unicameral and the firebrand of Nebraska politics, had resigned the legislatuve seat after losing the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. He later mounted the write-in campaign against Nichol.

State, Local Taxes Found Less Popular

Chicago (UPI) — Taxes never have been popular, but state and local levies are even less popular than before, according to Commerce Clearing House. Quoting a federal government survey, the organization says the percentage of taxpayers who feel state governments use tax dollars as wisely as they should dropped four points between April 1974 and May 1975 while there was a three point slippage in taxpayer attitudes on local government taxes. Popularity of federal government taxes rose slightly.

Mrs. Anne Batchelder

Exon Said Trying To Duck Blame

Omaha (AP) — State Republican party Chairman Anne Batchelder says Gov. J. J. Exon is trying to duck the blame for increasing next year's tax rates.

Mrs. Batchelder, in a news release, said Exon is attempting to blame the increases on the legislature or "if need be, the State Board of Equalization."

Mrs. Batchelder claims Exon has "played politics with the tax rates through his first term to build his image of a fiscal conservative."

She said the governor has "carefully orchestrated a believe . . . that he is a holding-the-line advocate."

However, Mrs. Batchelder, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for lieutenant governor last year, noted that the state spent $300.2 million in general fund money during 1974-75, compared with $163.6 million during the last fiscal year in the administration of the state's last Republican governor, Norbert Tiemann.

Even allowing for an estimated 32.6 per cent hike in costs attributed to inflation, Mrs. Batchelder said the state, under Exon, spent more than $92 million more last year than during Tiemann's last year in office.

"Governor Exon is the only governor in the history of Nebraska to have general fund expenditures in excess of $200 million in a fiscal year," said Mrs. Batchelder, adding, "The governor controls almost all spending."

She said the governor is not obligated to spend all of the money appropriated by the legislature, and can make further reductions in spending by the departments in the executive branch of the state government.

Common Spends $20,000 More On Garbage Study

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Local leaders made up their minds Tuesday and decided to spend $20,000 more to study two proposals to convert Lincoln's garbage into fuel.

Members of the City County Common directed the Ralph Parsons consulting firm to look into the conversion of solid waste into electricity and the construction of a plant to produce steam heat for downtown Lincoln and the University of Nebraska.

That action came only after the elected city and county officials authorized one action, rescinded that action and decided on the expenditure of an additional $20,000. The City Council, County Board and mayor already are paying $120,000 for the solid waste report. However, since the officials already had budgeted an extra $11,000, the group will have to shell out only another $9,000.

The common has delayed making a decision on the garbage question for several weeks.

Initially, the common ordered the consultant to study the steam plant option. Under that plan, the consultant also would have reported on the production of electricity at a generating plant.

Councilman Bob Jeambey said that proposal would "just be a way we can get the most of our money."

However, consultant Bob Mitchell recommended the common forgo the steam plant study if the group really was not interested in that option.

Council members have voiced concern that it won't pay to convert solid waste into steam because there is no guarantee there will be customers to buy the product.

It is also questionable whether the University of Nebraska could buy steam since some legal questions need to be answered first.

Under the first alternative, the consultants had recommended the city ship the garbage to the Nebraska Public Power District's (NPPD) Sheldon Station at Hallam for conversion into electricity.

NPPD has not committed itself to such an arrangement, although NPPD officials have indicated a williness to discuss the matter.

Lincoln Electric System (LES) power supply manager Phil Michaels suggested officials consider building a generating plant near Lincoln.

LES Administrator Walt Canney reminded common members that LES thinks the steam heat plant is not the way to go.

Canney said, "I've seen it (steam) studied six times," and, he said, he's seen nothing which would indicate that steam generation would be a money maker.

Nevertheless, the officials directed the consulting firm to develop a plan for a steam heat-chilled water system to serve the downtown and the university.

The consultants also will develp a plan for shredding the refuse and transporting it either to the Sheldon Station or to another site.

Jembey cast the lone vote against those instructions.

Philadelphia Papers OK Union Contract

Philadelphia (UPI) — Editorial, advertising and circulation employes of the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Daily News ratified a new 15-month contract Tuesday night.

A union spokesman said the pact provided for wage increases averaging 9% and for a pension plan and job security program "among the best in the country."

The weekly salary for top wage scale reporters, photographers and advertising salesmen was increased from $342.94 to $373.94.

Women Form Volunteer Team

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Hastings — The name of the game is volunteering. The names of the volunteers are Josephine Flint (REACT) and her 94-year-old mother, Mrs. Carrie Lee (RSVP).

Both play the game at home, the small but pleasant cottage they share in northwest Hastings. Neither the mother's advanced years nor the daughter's blindness keeps them from the unique giving of themselves to others.

Mrs. Lee, at her sewing machine some 20 hours per week, leads in longevity among some 175 persons in Hastings Retired Senior Volunteer Program. Josephine is on the job 24 hours a day monitoring motorists' distress calls for the Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Teams.

"I know it sounds like Joan of Arc, but we find real satisfaction in helping people in the limited ways we can," said Miss Flint, who lost her eyesight three years ago from complications of a basement fall. "There's nothing like the challenge of bedside nursing, I learned in 16 years at Broken Bow's hospital. But now the best I can do is man this radio . . ."

DAUGHTER . . . her job is monitoring CB broadcasts.

Her mother also claims to be well paid in satisfaction. For approximately two years she has been sewing for the Hastings Regional Center.

"The RSVP people came around to help me after I'd broken a hip," she reflected with a chuckle. "Next thing I knew I was one of their sewing volunteers. Nothing fancy, though, mostly just mending clothes for those unfortunate kids at the center."

Living together approximately 10 years since Mrs. Lee was widowed, the women complement one another's handicaps. The mother does the reading and lighter household tasks, while Josephine handles any work demanding strong back and legs.

Prior to her accident, the unmarried daughter had been an outdoor sportsman even to the point of big-game hunting. Among her trophies were a caribou, moose, dall sheep and Alaskan Kodiak bear.

She assumed the unpaid monitor position a year ago, "partly because I was getting in such a rut of staying home and doing nothing." Two CB channels have had her responding to as many as 500 calls a month.

Relatively few are out-and-out emergencies, but she has relayed messages for a good many highway mishaps. Winter storms have been her busiest times.

Mrs. Lee, born in a sod house near Hampton, taught rural school four years and later served 12 years as telephone operator at Berwyn. She and her husband, Jack, spent 25 years in Seattle after moving there in 1939.

Dedicated volunteer that she is, the nonagenarian invested in a new sewing machine last year especially for the mending.

"It doesn't work as well as my old one, but I guess it will do," she said. "One way or the other, I'll sew for those kids as long as I can."

Omaha IRS Director Denies Quota Report

Omaha (AP) — Allegations that Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents are pressured to meet a quota system and treat taxpayers inconsistently and whimsically are unfounded, the district director of the Omaha IRS office said Monday.

Declining to comment on specific charges in a federal study of the IRS made public Sunday, Everett Loury said he thinks there may be errors in the way the study results were reported.

The $216,000 study was undertaken by a team of experts for the Administrative Conference for the United States, which studies government agencies and makes recommendations aimed at improving efficiency.

The study, published by the New York Times, said taxpayers are treated differently, depending on their income, place of residence and the agent's audit quota.

He hasn't seen the study, Loury said, but in more than 20 years of IRS service, he has never encountered an IRS official who evaluated agents according to the number of cases they closed each month.

Loury denied the study's charge that taxpayers are treated differently depending on where they live.

He said various districts enforce tax laws differently but that "there are many circumstances the study didn't show."

"We're not heartless," Loury said. "If we know the money can't be collected because a man is making $150 a month instead of the thousands he was making previously, we're not going to try to collect that money."

The study also found that the larger the government's initial claim against a taxpayer, the smaller the percentage of the assessment ultimately recovered.

Loury said he doesn't know whether that finding is valid.

Growth Of Sales Tax Revenue Reported Off

State sales tax collections during August were 6% higher than for the same month a year ago, but the rate of growth was less, State Tax Commissioner William Peters said Tuesday.

Peters said collections for August totaled $11.3 million, compared to $10.6 million for August 1974. He said the rate of growth from August 1974 to August of this year was 6%, compared to a growth rate of 9.9% from August 1973 to August 1974.

He said for the fiscal year to date, collections totaled $22.8 million, compared to $21.3 million a year ago. He said this represented a growth rate of 6.8% for this year, but was less than the 12.8% growth rate recorded one year ago.

State individual and corporate income tax collections also were higher in August than for the same month a year ago, but the tax rates also increased during the past year.

The individual income tax rate for 1975 was raised from 10% to 12% in June, with the withholding rate increasing to 13% by July 1.

Total individual income tax receipts during August was $5.3 million, compared to $4.9 million in August 1974. Corporate income tax receipts for August were $1.5 million, compared to $1.1 million a year ago.

Peters also said total miscellaneous taxes for August indicated an increase of 7.2% over the same period one year ago. Increases were recorded in liquor, pari-mutuel wagering and corporate occupation taxes, with declines reported in the growth of cigarette taxes and interest on investments.

500 Irish Attend Belfast Service

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — About 500 Protestants and Roman Catholics attended a memorial service at City Hall where more than 1,300 crosses were planted to symbolize the dead in Northern Ireland's six years of sectarian violence.

Patricia McCullough, 2, placed a cross for her brother, Patrick, 17, who was shot to death four months before Patricia was born. "Why can't people stop these senseless killings?" her mother asked.

State Supreme Court Sets Hearing On 'Gag Order'

Omaha (AP) — Attorneys for a coalition of news-gathering organizations challenging a "gag order" imposed in the Erwin Charles Simants murder case have again asked the U.S. Supreme Court to stay the order which has restricted news coverage of the case.

In the meantime, the Nebraska Supreme Court set a hearing next Tuesday on the order, saying the issues indicate that oral arguments are advisable, and that "procedural due process requires that we not act summarily."

Simants, 29, of Sutherland, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in connection with the deaths of six members of a Sutherland family.

Henry Kellie and five members of his family were shot to death in Kellie's Sutherland residence the night of Oct. 18.

On Oct. 22, Lincoln County Judge Ronald Ruff imposed a "gag order" restricting news coverage of the case.

The order was challenged in Lincoln County District Court, where Judge Hugh Stuart dissolved Ruff's order, but imposed one of his own.

Newsmen then took their case to the Nebraska Supreme Court, which accepted jurisdiction. But when the state's highest court failed to act immediately in staying the gag, the coalition took its case to the U.S. Supreme Court, causing the State Supreme Court to say it would delay its action until finding out whether the U S Supreme Court would accept jurisdiction.

Late last week, U S Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun remanded the case to the Nebraska Court, temporarily letting the order stand.

But in sending the case back to Nebraska, Blackmun said the State Supreme Court should act promptly.

In an 11-page opinion, Blackmun said Stuart's order "obviously imposes significant prior restraints on media reporting."

However, Blackmun noted that the media may be prohibited from publishing information about trials if the restriction "is necessary to assure a defendant a fair trial." The latter sums up the contentions of both Stuart and Ruff in issuing their orders.

Blackmun said that he would take jurisdiction of the case if the Nebraska Court does not act promptly.

However, early Tuesday morning, before the Nebraska court said it would hold a hearing, Omaha attorney Steve McGill, representing the news coalition, sent a telegram to Washington, again asking the U.S. Supreme Court to take jurisdiction and to stay the order.

McGill cited the Nebraska court's apparent inaction in renewing the stay request.

After learning that a hearing had been set next week, McGill said he sent a second telegram to Washington, informing the high court that the Nebraska court had set a hearing date.

In a later, confirming letter to Francis J. Lorson, deputy clerk of the U.S. Supreme Court, McGill said George Turner, clerk of the Nebraska Supreme Court, advised him Monday afternoon that there were no new developments in the case, and that "he did not know of any action either taken or contemplated."

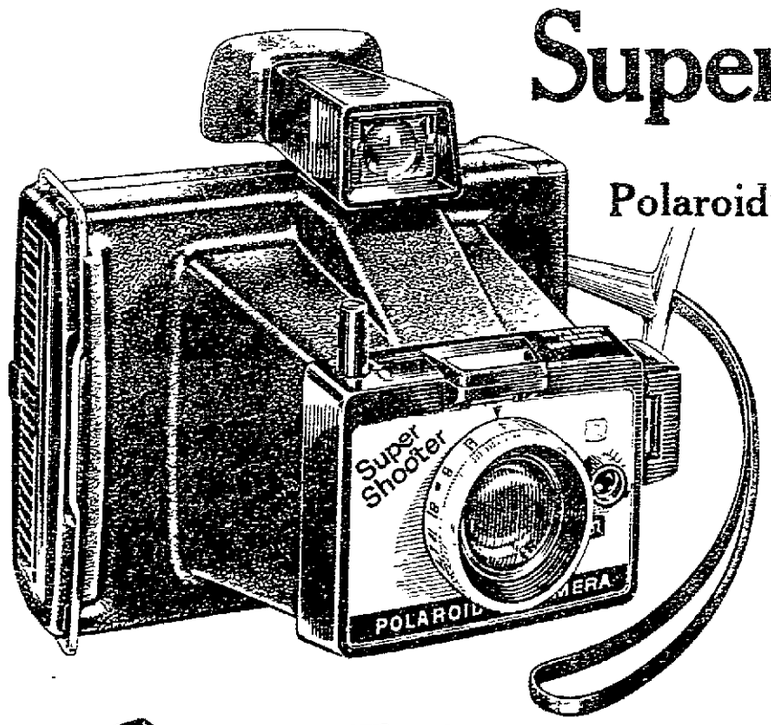

G. Woodson Howe, vice president of the Omaha World-Herald, who has acted as a spokesman for the media group challenging the gag, had no comment on Tuesday's actions.

Cleaver Ends Seven Years In Exile; Denounced By Panthers

NEW YORK (AP) — Renouncing his revolutionary past, Eldridge Cleaver flew home from Paris Tuesday, ending seven years on the run. The former Black Panther leader, depicted as resigned to imprisonment, was immediately taken into custody by the FBI.

Cleaver's transatlantic flight, on which he had been accompanied by three FBI agents, landed in early evening at Kennedy Airport, where three more agents met the plane. In addition, U.S. Customs agents joined in forming a human barrier as some 75 reporters sought to interview the one-time black revolutionary.

Already in custody, Cleaver was placed under formal arrest after he left the plane.

In a letter to the New York Times, written before he left Paris and published Tuesday, Cleaver said:

"With all its faults, the American political system is the freest and most democratic in the world. The system needs to be improved, with democracy spread to all areas of life, particularly the economic.

"All these changes must be conducted through our established institutions and people with grievances must find political methods for obtaining redress."

Meanwhile, Cleaver's onetime Black Panther comrades disassociated themselves from him. David DuBois, editor of the party's weekly newspaper, said Cleaver no longer is a Black Panther.

"We don't want our party to be associated with Eldridge Cleaver and we don't want the work of the party to be associated with Eldridge Cleaver," DuBois added in a statement in Washington to National Public Radio.

"His return to the country is not of concern to us beyond the fact that we are interested in guaranteeing ... that he receives a fair trial."

The 39-year-old Cleaver was relaxed and good natured before taking off from Paris for home.

Cleaver joked and shook hands with one of the agents flying with him before kissing his wife, Kathleen, goodby. Laughing, he said he had received a telegram from a friend saying, "Stay away from my house."

At San Quentin Prison in California, Philip Guthrie, a spokesman for the state's parole board, said the board has a warrant out for Cleaver's arrest.

"We would have no other course than to put him into custody," Guthrie said. "There is also a federal fugitive warrant. My understanding is the feds will put him in custody. Then we will work out how to get him back to California."

His wife, who plans to come to the United States in December, was cheerful, but talked in graver tones to reporters. She said that since Cleaver fled the United States in 1968, he had hoped to return without going to prison.

"He sees that's not going to happen," she said. "He made up his mind that he'll go to prison. He feels that the situation in which he is returning is one in which he'll be clearly understood."

Cleaver himself had told reporters that his decision to return grew out of what he believes is a change in mood in the United States that will assure him a fair trial. He violated parole and has a grand jury indictment pending on assault charges growing out of an Oakland, Calif., shootout in 1966 in which he and two policemen were wounded.

Cleaver's French lawyer, Roland Dumas, who was the attorney of Pablo Picasso, said the black leader "believes he can get a fair trial. We have been in contact with the American authorities and all our dealings with them were correct and very straightforward."

At the airport Cleaver was handed a ticket by a U.S. government representative. He greeted a number of friends, and then walked to the passport control area. He was carrying a typewriter case and wore a blue French fisherman's cap.

Members Of Minorities Must Scrimp, Study Finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study released Tuesday indicates that minority Americans scrimp on medical care, personal automobiles, recreation and education because they must spend a greater percentage of income than their white counterparts on food and shelter.

The findings were contained in a Commerce Department analysis performed to help businessmen cater to what the report called the minority market.

The department described the market as composed of 24.1 million blacks and 3.2 million other non-white Americans who spent an estimated $64 billion for personal consumption in 1973, making them "the ninth largest consumer market in the world."

Noting the lower income of non-whites as a group, the report showed that although they made up 11.5% of the nation's population in 1973, they accounted for a smaller share of personal spending, 8.5%.

Census Bureau figures for 1973 showed median income for white families of $12,600, compared to $7,270 for blacks. The most recent survey showed black median income of $7,800 in 1974 compared with $13,400 for whites.

The study of spending habits showed that non-whites generally spend a bigger share of their income than do whites on the general categories of food, including alcohol and tobacco; clothing, including accessories and jewelry; housing and personal care, such as toilet articles and grooming.

Food, for example, accounted for 22.4% of white personal consumption and 25.8% for non-whites. Whites devoted 29.6% of their personal expenditures to their housing and household expenses, while the percentage for non-whites was 31.1%.

Non-white spending, again expressed as a share of personal consumption expenditures, was lower than whites for transportation, medical care, personal business, recreation and private education.

Non-white spending on medical care, for example, was 6.2%, compared with 8.1% for whites. For recreation, the comparative figures were 6% for non-whites and 6.7% for whites.

The report said rising incomes of minorities has been accompanied by changing spending patterns but it's impossible to tell how much of current patterns can be explained by differing tastes among whites and non-whites.

"Although comparisons of spending between whites and minorities can be made, there is as yet no way to make current comparisons of spending of the two groups according to income," the report said.

Graceful, Grotesque Combined; 'Tango' Is A Remarkable Dance

By BILL WALLIS

The "Tango" is a remarkable dance. Its movement patterns include the graceful and grotesque combined.

Slowomir Mrozek has chosen this dance to symbolize modern man's attempts to understand and control his physical and intellectual being.

"Tango," now showing at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Experimental Theatre, is a complex allegory and a political satire in which no solution to chaos is found but surrender to brute authoritarianism.

It is dark in forecast, but not without generous touches of black humor which delight the audience while mocking mankind. Further, it is a study of political revolution.

The family becomes the microcosm for modern society. Each member offers a different guide for action and a different solution to the philosophical problems of existence.

Arthur, played by Jeff Otte, is a young medical student who is disturbed by the chaos of the world around him. His father, Stomil, led the revolution which led to society and his own family's dissolution.

Stomil's wife is unfaithful. He now spends his middle age writing puppet morality plays.

In the course of the action, Arthur's revolution to again impose order on political and moral chaos forces him to assume a Bismark-like power stance.

Betrayed by his bride-to-be, his governing power crumbles, and a Hitler or Stalin-like figure of opportunism embraces the idea of the tango as form of entertainment. It appears all those remaining — after Arthur's assassination — will follow Eddie, who has "no principles and is proud of it."

Stomil, whose purpose in life was to "shatter existing forms," is played by Paul Baker with strength and definition. His performance is matched by Jeff Otte.

Eric Sorensen is a strong Eddie, verbally and in movement. He could have been more sinister in his final moments, however.

It was, however, Jim Sudik who created the most memorable character of the evening. Aided by superb movement and make-up, his understanding of the old idealist Eugene was a touching delight. Only his character is fully grounded in reality in this production. This character is very well written, and Sudik is impressive.

Charly D. Miller, as the ambivalent matron, had good moments but did not sustain the believability of her character in all situations. Becci Dawson did not have the variety to contain the very difficult shallow selfishness and destructiveness which is seminal to her character. Susan Guthrie was irregular in her understanding of motivation. As a result, her character seemed out of place at times.

Scenically the show appeared to be too big for the experimental theatre. Sightlines were poor for several interior scenes. I felt the lighting lacked badly-needed variety and brightness, and was shadowed stage right.

Like most abusrdist drama, "Tango" does not embrace emptiness. Man goes on seeking new forms to shape reality. But the final image of the play is the grotesque-graceful tango.

It is not an easy dance, but its painful positions offer enough variety to allow the dancers to continue movement.

Thank Goodness He Didn't Try Anything Really hard

A young Lincoln father learned the hard way this week that it's probably better to leave some things alone.

The proud parents were watching their 4-year-old son practice his gymnastics, which included learning to do handstands by balancing against a wall.

The father challenged the mother, "Can you do that?"

"Of course," she replied. "Can you?"

Naturally, they had to prove it.

So, Mom jumped down on the floor and executed a graceful handstand. She waved Dad on.

Father, apparently in worse shape than he thought, lost his balance and crashed through the wall.

Surveying the rubble, the young son told his dad, "Oh-oh, that's going to cost."

The mother's immediate comments were not available.

Huskers Not Trying To Put Down Fiesta Bowl

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Not Vote Against Fiesta

Everything done at Nebraska's football practice Tuesday afternoon was geared to preparing for Oklahoma Saturday in Norman. Coach Tom Osborne, however, took a brief moment after the workout to comment on Monday's decision by the Cornhuskers to turn down an opportunity to play in the Fiesta Bowl.

"I'd like to have our fans know and the Fiesta Bowl people know that the vote certainly was not addressed to the Fiesta as being a minor bowl or that we were too good to go," he said.

"It was quite the opposite. This is a very competitive squad and they looked at a vote for the Fiesta Bowl as an admission that they might lose to Oklahoma, or that they weren't confident."

Osborne said that if going to the Fiesta Bowl had meant defeating Oklahoma he is sure the team would have been all for it. "The fact you had to lose to go somehow had a negative connotation," he said.

"They think they're going to win and they're putting all thier eggs in one basket and gambling they're going to win," he added.

Osborne said he was surprised at first with the vote, but now that he has thought about it he thinks they made a good choice. "Their reasons were good and at least they didn't turn it down for the wrong reasons," he said.

Fiesta Might Be Best Deal

Except for the money involved, which doesn't match the major bowls (but pays $70,000 more than the Sun Bowl), Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer believes the Fiesta might be a better deal than all the bowls. Of course, he'd just as soon not play there — or, rather he'd prefer the Orange Bowl for what it stands for — a Big Eight Conference championship.

"I've been told the Fiesta does the best job of accommodating and hosting a team than any other bowl," Switzer said. "It's a first class operation in every way and we might have a better deal than all of them."

Bill Shover, a Fiesta committee member, watched Nebraska defeat Colorado here several weeks ago and told of future plans for the bowl, which will have its fifth game this year.

"We have two enlargement projects on the drawing board for the stadium and within four years we'll have over 70,000 seats," he said. "Right now, if we could get Nebraska, we'd be able to give them just a little over 9,000 tickets. In a few years, that will be considerably higher."

With such expansion in the future, it might behoove the Big Eight Conference to attempt to work out a deal to send its runnerup to Phoenix every year — or even its champion. Phoenix is just as nice a wintertime resort as Miami.

The 1975 Fiesta game will be the richest since the first game back in 1971, mainly because of a CBS television contract. When expansion comes, it most certainly will rank right up there with the Orange, Cotton and Bryant bowls.

Orange Is A Sellout

Under NCAA rules, the Orange Bowl Committee has to set aside one-third of tickets printed for the two teams selected. That means each competing school is allotted about 12,500 tickets.

Those 25,000 tickets are the only ones remaining for the 42nd Orange Bowl classic on New Year's night. Orange Bowl ticket director Lee Hutcheson said back on Oct. 13 he had more orders from the public than can be processed. It's one of the earliest sellouts in OB history.

By contract, fans of the Big Eight champion will sit on the north side of the stadium and will receive north side tickets for the next four years.

All tickets not sold and returned to the Orange Bowl committee will be offered on a first refusal basis to the other school.

The 1976 game will generate between $675,000 and $700,000 for each team. That's triple the amount of money paid by the Orange Bowl ten years ago.

All told, eleven bowls paid the 22 competing teams in excess of $8,250,000 last season.

NU Game Plan Set; Matter Of Execution

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

What is the key to a Nebraska victory over Oklaoma? Tom Osborne, Cornhusker coach, says he doesn't know for sure, but that the game plan has been completed.

"There are some things I think we can do against them and our game plan is pretty well set," he said Tuesday. "I think we can do a good job, but it's a matter of execution. We need a couple more days practice to get ready.

"We'll just have to move the ball and put it in the end zone. We'll do it any way we can. We may run a lot, or again we may throw a lot. I'm sure the players are going to come off the ball and run hard."

Osborne said practices so far this week have been the same as always and added, "I'm glad that they have been. It's hard to hold all of that enthusiasm. A lot of it fades anyway after the first four or five minutes of the game and pretty soon we're just playing football."

The Husker injury situation was described as "just so-so" and Osborne said he probably wouldn't know whether some of the key injured players will be available until Friday.

Starters suffering from injuries include offensive tackle Steve Hoins, sprained ankle; defensive end Bob Martin, sprained wrist; middle guard John Lee, sprained ankle; and wingback Tom Heiser, pulled hamstring.

Osborne said monsterman Wonder Monds also isn't at full-speed, but his condition is improved. No. 2 offensive tackle Rich Costanzo has a strained knee. A lot of other players are "bumped up," Osborne said.

"A lot of weeks most of them wouldn't be out here, but they're pretty interested in playing in the game," the coach added. "But we can't afford the luxury of taking anybody who is only 90 per cent ready because of the 48-man travel limit."

Commenting on Oklahoma, Osborne said the Sooners play awfully well in big games, and it goes without saying this will be a big game Saturday.

The Huskers haven't beaten the Sooners since the 1971 "game of the century" in Norman.

"Two years ago they had possibly the best defensive team I've seen in a long time and we probably didn't play very good offensively," Osborne remarked of the 27-0 loss in Norman.

"Last year, we moved the ball quite well, about 370 yards (actually 366), but we didn't have the ball enough," he said. "We averaged 5½ yards a carry and they averaged 5½ yards, but they had the ball 20 more plays than we had it."

Osborne, asked if he was surprised the way Missouri moved the ball on the ground against the Sooners last week, said most of it was because of Curtis Brown, who gained 153 yards on 20 carries, mostly in the second half.

"Brown probably ran as well as any back I've seen in this conference," Osborne said. "Tony Galbreath has had some good series, but not for 60 minutes. Brown did a tremendous job, a lot of his runs coming against Oklahoma's goalline defense out in the field. He just broke a lot of tackles.

"Actually, Missouri's passing game was in some ways sort of inadequate. Steve Pisarkiewicz completed only nine of 27 attempts, but he hit some big ones to their split receiver Henry Marshall.

Pisarkiewicz' completions gained 269 yards, including six to Marshall for 199 yards.

Oklahoma has been made a four-point favorite over the Huskers by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Racebook, according to a United Press International dispatch from Reno.

In other Big Eight games, Missouri and Kansas are listed even, Oklahoma State is 8 over Iowa State and Colorado is 24 over Kansas State.

In the Big Ten Conference title game to determine both the Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl teams, Ohio State is listed 7 over Michigan.

NU Praised By Switzer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners continued to prepare Tuesday for Saturday's Big Eight showdown with the Cornhuskers of Nebraska in Norman.

"Nebraska is so quick and so strong, it's hard to believe," said coach Barry Switzer. "They're the most physical team we've faced in a long time. They're probably the most physical team we've faced since the last Nebraska team we played."

Switzer attributed the Cornhusker success to great individual players and an outstanding coaching staff.

"They put so much pressure on you, both offensively and defensively, and their backs try to run over you," Switzer said. "They don't try to juke you. They run kind of like Steve Owens."

Switzer emphasized the kicking game to his squad at the end of Tuesday's workout.

"In any close ballgame where either team has to kick a lot, the kicking game is always important," he explained. "Field position is the most important thing in a tight contest.

"It can be gained by one of two ways—either by sustaining a long drive or by kicking it farther than they do."

Fullback Jim Littrell is expected to start against the Cornhuskers Saturday. But second team fullback Horace Ivory, who missed the Missouri game, is also expected to see some action.

The Sooners worked behind closed doors Tuesday and will continue to do so throughout the week.

Huskers' Offense Efficient

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — The nation's top offensive producers — Ohio State, Nebraska and California — are involved in make-or-break games Saturday.

The Buckeyes, which tied Texas for the national scoring lead at 35.3 points a game in this week's NCAA Statistics Service rankings, are near the top of the heap in several categories.

Ohio State has lost only 13 turnovers all season. In addition, coach Woody Hayes' team leads the country in yards per attempted pass at 10.0, ranks third in pass completion percentage at .604 and is tops in net punting with a remarkable 44.6 yards per punt.

Ohio State meets Michigan for the Big 10 championship Saturday, while Nebraska plays Oklahoma for the Big Eight title and California tackles Stanford for a possible Rose Bowl berth, depending on the outcome of the UCLA-Southern Cal game.

Nebraska's offensive efficiency is impressive, too. The Cornhuskers have a .582 passing percentage and only three interceptions in 196 attempts. Their 18 touchdown passes is only one behind the national leaders, Stanford and New Mexico, and they are scoring at a 34.3 clip.

California, the national total offense leader, is rolling along with an average of 455.6 yards a game. The Golden Bears are averaging 225.4 yards a game rushing and 230.2 passing, representing the most balanced attack in the nation.

Hayes 'Likes' Michigan Fans

From News Wires

Columbus, Ohio — Woody Hayes, the crusty, old football coach of top-ranked Ohio State, says he enjoys the intense dislike Michigan fans show for him.

"It doesn't hurt my feelings at all. It's the greatest compliment I could have," Hayes told newsmen as Ohio State retained its No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press poll with 46 first place votes to 11 for runnerup Nebraska.

"They (the Wolverines) couldn't beat me with two Michigan coaches. So they had to come down here and take a coach (Bo Schembechler) I trained.

"And they haven't beaten me with him yet. He was my first graduate assistant at Ohio State and later a fine line coach for me," Hayes said of Schembechler.

Hayes holds a 3-2-1 edge over his former assistant going into their summit meeting Saturday for the Big Ten title and accompanying Rose Bowl berth.

Overall, Hayes is 15-8-1 against the Wolverines, who are ranked No. 4.

Hayes has won all three games in Columbus, 20-9 in 1970, 14-11 in 1972 and 12-10 last year.

Schembechler's triumphs were 24-12 in his first Michigan season in 1969 and 10-7 in 1971. The 1973 contest ended in a 10-10 tie.

Someone asked Hayes if he would play for another deadlock since that is all his team needs to go the Rose Bowl for a fourth straight season and fifth in the last six years.

"I've tried to think about everything that might come up in the game. But I won't talk about it until after the game," responded Hayes.

The Ohio State coach refused to discuss any strengths or weaknesses of the Wolverines, saying only "They're an extremely tralented team. That's the only comment I'm going to make."

Hayes did concede it's a problem preforming before the more than 100,000 fans at Ann Arbor.

"It's a disadvantage to play away from home," he said. "We'll try to overcome that."

Following tradition, Hayes drilled the 10-0-0 Buckeyes behind the locked gates of Ohio Stadium, saying, "I'm bitter. I'll stay that way."

The short-fused Ohio State coach recalled he let a writer view practice when he was at Miami Ohio, worked on a new offense for Cincinnati rival Xavier. The writer revealed the strategy. Miami lost 7-0.

"Another year we got all we needed about a fine Wisconsin team from their student newspaper. Without that information, we could not have won," contended Hayes.

The Ohio State coach was in a good, low-key mood Monday. But that may have been a front.

"I am never happy as long as a football game is coming up," he said. "Contentment is for cows. They stand there with that dumb look on their faces."

The only team other than Ohio State or Nebraska to get first place support in the AP poll was No. 3 Texas A&M, which received one No. 1 vote. Following the Aggies and No. 4 Michigan was Alabama, Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona State, Colorado and Penn State.

Arizona heads the second 10, followed by Florida, California, UCLa, Georgia, Miami of Ohio, Pittsburgh, Missouri, Arkansas and Maryland.

Ohio State, still No. 1 in the United Press International board of coaches football ratings, collected 32 first place votes this week and led second-place Nebraska, 392 points to 322.

The Cornhuskers, who meet sixth rated Oklahoma Saturday, garnered eight-first place choices.

Texas A&M held on to third, while Alabama moved up a notch to fourth.

Michigan, which challenges Ohio State for the Big Ten title Saturday, was in fifth place.

Reds' Morgan NL's MVP

New York (UPI) — Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds, a little guy who beats you in a lot of big ways, Tuesday was a landslide winner of the National League's Most Valuable Player Award and said he felt winning the trophy was good for baseball because it proved there is more to the game than just being able to swing a bat.

The 5-foot-7, 155-pound second baseman, whose brilliant all-around play sparked the Reds to the National League pennant and the World Series, received 21½ first place votes and 321½ points from the 24-member committee—two from each NL city—of the Baseball Writers Association of America to easily beat out outfielder Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Luzinski, the major league leader in runs batted in with 120, did not receive aky first place votes and was far behind with 154 points. Morgan's 167½ point margin over Luzinski is the greatest plurality in MVP history in either league. Morgan was the only player named on all 24 ballots and he's the first second baseman to gain NL MVP honors since Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn in 1949.

Outfielder Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates was third with 120 pounts and two of Morgan's teammates, catcher Johnny Bench and third baseman Pete Rose, finished fourth with fifth respectively. Bench, who won MVP awards in 1970 and 1972, had 117 points while Rose, the 1973 winner, had 114. Rose received the other two and a half first place votes as one writer split his vote between Rose and Morgan.

"I knew it would be a landslide," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson over the telephone, saying it loud enough so that Morgan, who was in the room with him, would hear it.

Joe Morgan
NL's MVP

"Aw, man," said Morgan. "I think the thing that separated me from fellows like Luzinski and (Ted) Simmons and some of the other fellas is that I can do more things than just hit. This is certainly not a knock at Luzinski, who had a great season, but I think I've shown that I can hit, run the bases and do the job in the field.

"Personally, I'm happy for baseball that I won. What I mean by that is kids should strive to be complete players. With the designated hitter rule they have now (in the American League), I hear some of the kids saying, 'well, I can hit so I guess I can be a designated hitter. But, there's more to baseball than doing just one thing."

Morgan, who has earned the reputation as baseball's most "complete player," was outstanding in every phase of the game during the past season. He batted .300 for the first time in his career, finishing fourth in the league with .327 average. He also scored 107 runs, led the league in walks with 132, hit 17 homers, drove in 94 runs, stole 67 bases and was the fielding leader among second baseman, making only 11 errors.

His style of play was so outstanding that his biggest booster was Rose, whose own aggressive style has had a lot to do with the Reds' success over the years.

"I'm a baseball fan und Joe Morgan is my favorite player," says Rose. "When you talk about the 'Big Red Machine' this year, you are talking about Joe Morgan and Johnny Bench. Joe did an unbelievable job for us, both on offense and defense, and he's in scoring position so often that I kept telling Bench that the only time he shouldn't get a run batted in is when he strikes out."

Luzinski, who missed most of the 1974 season with an injury, bounced back to become one of the most fearsome sluggers in the league. He batted .300, clubbed 34 homers and 35 doubles and finished second in the league in slugging percentage with .540 in addition to his major league-leading RBI total.

Parker, at 24 one of the bright young stars on the NL horizon, led the league in slugging percentage (.541) while batting .308. He hit 25 homers and 35 doubles, knocked in 101 runs anf was a standout defensively in right field for the NL East Division cvampions.

Bench, despite playing much of the season with an injured shoulder, drove in 110 runs and hit 28 homers to lead the Reds in both departments. Rose batted .317, scored 112 runs and had 210 hits.

Ted Simmons of St. Louis finished sixth in the voting with 103 points and Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh was seventh was 69. Reliever Al Hrabosky of St. Louis was eighth—the highest ranked pitcher in the voting—followed by Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver of the New York Mets and Cy Young runnerup, Randy Jones of Cy Young, in ninth and 10th place respectively.

Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, last year's winner, finished 11th.

AP

NITECAPS . . . Jepko and wife Pat prepare for broadcast.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — For Herb Jepko, it all started with five hours of unwanted air time on a 50,000-watt radio station. Now his wee-hours telephone chat show has an audience of millions.

Avoiding religion, politics and anything else controversial, Jepko, 45, says he does little to make his program interesting.

But in 12 years on KSL Radio in Salt Lake City and more than a year on his own mini-network of six stations, some callers have waited years to get in on one of his 25 lines, each for a different section of the United States, Canada or Mexico.

Recently the program hooked into nearly 70 additional stations, members of the 661-station Mutual Broadcasting System. Jepko said he hopes to pick up others.

Some people fall asleep trying to reach Jepko. Callers pay the toll. A gentle chime, "tinker bell," signals the end of the five-minute limit. The caller can't phone again for two weeks.

"There's a warmth here," Jepko said. "I'm just a friend to the people, whether they call to read a poem, sing a song, tell about an interesting experience or describe their vegetable garden."

Some don't say much of anything, leaving Jepko to fill the gaps. He recognizes thousands of voices by name, claiming he uses no card file or other memory aide.

Jepko began with KSL as a daytime disc jockey at a time when the station signed off the air at midnight. He convinced station management to allow a six-week experiment with a nighttime talk show. At night, KSL's clear-channel can be picked up sporadically across the country.

Now broadcasting from midnight to 5 a.m. in every time zone, the program has logged more than 200,000 calls.

The Salt Lake City-based Nitecap Radio Network, which uses KSL studios and pays stations for the air time, handles its own advertising accounts and promotes its own products and services, ranging from Nitecap bumper stickers to foreign tours.

A recently introduced product is a $29.95 "Herbie Nite Lite." Herbie, a bearded caricature carrying a candle and wearing a floppy nightcap, is the copyrighted symbol of Nitecaps International Association.

The association, with 250,000 card-carrying members, is non-profit and includes more than 60 chapters in North America.

Jepko's wife, Pat, Nitecap network president, said chapters operate independently but must make regular reports and engage in local service projects.

The network, with a paid staff of 25, publishes a bimonthly magazine, "The Wick," with articles submitted by listeners.

A letter from a new subscriber to "The Wick" advocates changing the program's format to allow controversial topics. "People desperately need outlets for expressing and arguing their fears, misconceptions, prejudices and faith in each other," the writer says.

But six other letters in the issue say "keep the program the same." Jepko said he intends to.

Jepko said the program gets about 1,500 letters a day, and he estimates hundreds of others circulate among Nitecaps.

Although listeners are not allowed to give their telephone numbers or addresses over the phone, he said the program is responsible for more than 500 marriages through the local chapters and other contacts.

Jepko said he once spent more than two hours on the phone with a woman from California who was clicking the chambers of a pistol and threatening to kill herself. Calls from Salt Lake City brought authorities in time, he said.

New Thriller Found

Los Angeles (AP) — Roman Polanski has found a new thriller, "The Tenant," about a young man who rents a Paris apartment and becomes possessed by the soul of the previous tenant. Polanski will film the movie in Paris for Paramount Pictures.

Driver's License Office Moved Next to Baker Hardware at Gateway North.

Remember that room in the County-City Building where you renewed your driver's license last time?

Well, forget it.

From now on, all driver's license renewals and testing will be handled at a newly remodeled facility in the Gateway North Area.

The new office is right next to Baker Hardware and Home Center, and will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. There's plenty of free parking and many people will be able to renew their license on a shopping trip to Gateway.

To find the office easily, just look for the big Baker Hardware sign and follow it.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Washington Star columnist David Israel reported Tuesday that Notre Dame was invited to the Cotton Bowl despite losing to Pittsburgh last Saturday, but the players rejected the offer because of dissatisfaction with coach Dan Devine.

Field Scovill, selection committee chairman of the Cotton Bowl, said Tuesday Notre Dame was not invited to play in the New Year's Day classic "before or after the Pittsburgh game."

Ed Bauer, captain of the Fighting Irish, Tuesday said there is no truth to the story that the team rejected an invitation because of its dissatisfaction with Devine. Devine said the story "is a lie."

Penn State was a unanimous choice as the East's leading college football team in Division One balloting by the Lambert Trophy voting board. Pittsburgh was second with West Virginia third.

The Tangerine Bowl committee hopes to make an announcement Thursday of an opponent for Miami of Ohio. The list of possible teams includes Arkansas State (10-0), East Carolina (7-3), Tulsa (7-3), Virginia Tech (7-3), South Carlina (6-4), and Navy (6-4).

New England Patriots quarterback Jim Plunkett is back on the injured list, not because of his separated shoulder, but because of a sprained right knee, coach Chuck Fairbanks said.

Representatives of the 26 NFL teams will meet Wednesday to try and resolve the sticky question of how to stock the league's new Tampa and Seattle Franchises.

Quarterback Dan Fouts will probably be lost to the winless San Diego Chargers with a sore right shoulder when they face the unbeaten Minnesota Vikings in Minnesota Sunday.

The St. Louis Cardinals said that veteran running back Eddie Moss, tight end Jackie Smith and defensive end Ron Yankowski are doubtful for Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

The Arlington Heights, Ill., village board has denied a special-use zoning permit to Madison Square Garden Corp. to build a 76,000-seat stadium next to Arlington Park race track for use by the Chicago Bears.

Houston Oilers coach Bum Phillips says Duane Thomas' hopes of joining the team aren't likely to be fulfilled because the running back still belongs to the Washington Redskins.

Carroll Rosenbloom, 67, underwent a five-hour coronary bypass operation in Inglewood, Calif., Monday and a son of the Los Angeles Rams' owner reported "the surgery went fine."

Carl Garrigus, a former University of Miami quarterback and Canadian Football League player, died Monday of injuries suffered in an automobile accident two weeks ago.

Bond for Elmore Stephens, a member of last year's University of Kentucky football team, John Bishop, 22, and Robert Channels, 22, all being held on kidnaping and murder charges, was reduced from $200,000 to $50,000 each.

BASKETBALL

Utah Stars' owner Bill Daniels said he has $3 million on the line and is working around the clock to keep the ABA club in Salt Lake City.

The Chicago Bulls of the NBA, charging they were not paid for exhibition games last month in Utah and Virginia, have filed suits against The Utah Stars and the Virginia Squires of the ABA.

A group of black businessmen rescued the financially troubled Virginia Squires Tuesday, saving them from collapse.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien of the NBA said NBA team owners don't seem interested in a merger with the ABA.

A further check on Washington Bullets guard Dave Bing revelaed that his knee cap, believed fractured in a game Saturday against Philadelphia, is merely bruised and he will be out for only five games instead of two months, a club spokesman said.

Boston Celtics center Dave Cowens, in traction for three days to relieve back spasms, has left the hospital and was expected to resume practicing.

BASEBALL

Four Baltimore Orioles players — third baseman Brooks Robinson, Second baseman Bobby Grich, Shortstop Mark Belanger and centerfielder Paul Blair — have received Golden Glove awards for outstanding defensive play, the third consecutive year each has won the prize.

New Boston Red Sox pitcher Ferguson Jenkins said he felt "like a checker" after being traded for the second time in three years.

Minnesota Twins' president Calvin Griffith said he plans to name a new manager in about a week and Gene Mauch is among three ex-major league field bosses he is considering for the job.

The Milwaukee Brewers announced they have signed Hal Smith as bullpen coach and Harvey Kuenn as batting coach for the 1976 season.

Third baseman Pete Rose, who played a key role in the Cincinnati Reds' World Series victory, was a landslide winner in the October voting for the Hickok Award.

TENNIS

Romania's Ilie Nastase beat Jimmy Connors 7-6, 3-6, 7-5 in an exhibition match in Bucharest, Romania.

Second-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India rallied to a 4-6, 7-6, 6-4 comeback victory over Australia's Ray Ruffles in first-round play in the Indian Grand Prix tennis championships in Calcutta.

New Zealand's Onny Parun defeated unseeded Billy Freer of Johannesburg, 6-4, 6-4 in the first round of the South African Open tennis championsips.

OTHER SPORTS

Muahmmad Ali's next fight appears headed for the Dominican Republic in January or February, followed by a "big-money" bout against Ken Norton July 4 in the United States.

Three European athletes have become the first track and field competitors to be banned for life for using muscle-building anabolic steroid drugs. The names were not disclosed.

Bryant's Toughness Symbol Softened

By JOE McGUFF
Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY — Well, so much for the legend of Bear Bryant. Not too many years ago the Bear was equated with John Wayne and the U.S. Marines as a symbol of toughness.

We could envision him destroying the Barbary Pirates, defending the Alamo and damning the torpedoes to go full steam ahead. He was tall, tough-jawed and mean-eyed, the kind of man who could buckle a 250-pound lineman's knees with a hostile glance.

The Bear, we assumed, drank his whiskey straight and his football teams feared no opponent. Now the passing years, affluence and eight straight non-winning bowl appearances have softened Bryant and set him out looking for lesser opponents to conquer.

Fresh from a victory over Southern Mississippi, the Bear scored another triumph of matchmaking by adroitly avoiding a Big Eight opponent in the Sugar Bowl and lining up an engagement with Penn State, which has lost two games and has a chance to make it three Saturday against Pitt.

"I recommended it," Bryant said of the Penn State selection at a time when his defenders were claiming that he was not the sort to duck an opponent.

It was like hearing Arnold Palmer announce that he was going to start lagging up on the long putts or listening to Pete Rose explain that he wasn't going to break up double plays any more because he had his wife and kids to think of.

Commenting on the accusation that he ducked the Big Eight, Bryant said, "I've been called a lot worse than that. They are all fine people out there, but it would take those young guys 15 or 20 years before they can wear their spurs regular. We have no apologies to make to anyone. I recommended it (playing Penn State) and I want those young coaches out there to know it."

Despite saying that he had no apologies to make, Bryant attempted to justify his action by saying, "If they (the Big Eight) wanted us, why didn't they invite us to the Orange Bowl."

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer answered that point earlier when he said that the Orange Bowl officials approached him at the time the Sooners played in Miami and asked him his opinion about possible opponents for the Big Eight champion.

"I told them to go out and get the best team in the country," Switzer said. Alabama did not want to play the best available opponent and so Penn State got the call over Oklahoma or Nebraska. Joe Paterno of Penn State declared, "Alabama has one of the greatest football traditions in the country and the greatest football coach in the country." Paterno has reason to speak well of the Bear since Bryant made a $450,000 pay day available to Penn State.

In New Orleans, the reaction to the selection of Penn State has been negative. Peter Finney, sports editor of the New Orleans States-Item, said the people calling the paper have expressed a strong preference for the Big Eight runner-up.

While Bryant's decision to avoid a Big Eight opponent is out of character, it is understandable. The Tide's inability to win a bowl game is becoming a source of embarrassment. This year's Alabama team does not appear to be as strong as usual and by playing Oklahoma or Nebraska, the Tide would have run the risk of a one-sided loss.

Missouri is the only strong opponent Alabama ha met this season and the Tide lost to the Tigers, 20-7, in a game that was more one-sided than the final score indicates. Since losing to Missouri, Alabama has defeated Clemson, Vanderbilt, Mississippi, Washington, Tennessee, T.C.U., Mississippi State, L.S.U. and Southern Mississippi.

Alabama's unpleasant experiences with Big Eight opposition date back to 1968 when Missouri routed the heavily-favored Tide, 35-10 in the Gator Bowl. Colorado defeated Alabama, 47-33, the following year. Then came a 24-24 tie with Oklahoma and a 38-6 loss to Nebraska. Over the last three seasons Alabama suffered bowl losses to Texas, 17-13, and to Notre Dame by scores of 24-23 and 13-11. This year's season opener with Missouri was an unhappy reminder of the risk involved in playing the top Big Eight teams.

What Bryant needed was a bowl opponent with a big name that would not be too formidable. Penn State proved to be just the sort of team he had in mind, although a 15-14 loss to North Carolina State Nov. 8 made Penn State less attractive. If Penn State loses to Pitt Saturday the criticism of the Sugar Bowl will be even stronger.

Bryant's search for a weaker opponent is much more understandable than the Sugar Bowl's willingness to let him arrange its game. The possibility also exists that the Sugar Bowl was resentful because of the tie-up whereby the Big Eight sends its championship team to the Orange Bowl. Cliff Kern, president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association which controls the Sugar Bowl, is believed to be the man responsible for giving in to Alabama.

"He's very pliable and he was afraid of losing Alabama," a source close to the Sugar Bowl executive committee said. Kern defended the decision by saying that New Orleans would get more Eastern publicity and was able to obtain the leading team in the East. "We would have come up with a loser in the Big Eight," he said. "Which is it better to have, a winner or a runner-up?"

Despite Kern's claims, an Alabama-Penn State game is not likely to attract as much national attention as a pairing with a Big Eight team and the game does not appear to be especially attractive from a television standpoint. Except for the Orange, the major bowl schedule is not particularly good. Ohio State could be rematched with UCLA in the Rose Bowl and Georgia ranks as a mediocre attraction for the Cotton Bowl.

From the Big Eight's standpoint the most disturbing thing about the situation is that the Sugar Bowl did nothing to indicate that a conference team would not be acceptable, thereby eliminating the Big Eight's chances of making a better deal for itself.

Kern lost credibility by first denying that Bryant had influenced the selection of Penn State. He was then refuted by Bryant.

"Obviously the Sugar Bowl doesn't use the same formula that the Orange Bowl does by taking the highest rated team," Switzer declared. "It's a disappointing thing because even if Oklahoma and Nebraska had both been 10-0 coming into Saturday's game the same thing would have happened."

BIG 8 REPORT

Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State drilled for two hours early Tuesday afternoon preparing for its season finale here Saturday against Oklahoma State.

The Cyclones not only face the Cowboys while in the throes of a five-game losing streak, but also must devote considerable attention to final quarter exam week.

Coach Earle Bruce, minus starting quarterback Buddy Hardeman with a dislocated thumb, said the Cyclones will regain fullback Mike Williams, who was held out of last week's Nebraska game with a thigh bruise.

Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)— Oklahoma State concentrated on Iowa State's passing game during what Jim Stanley described as an "enthusiastic" practice session Tuesday.

"We have some older guys—seniors—who were practicing with the enthusiasm of freshmen," Stanley said. "Even though there's only one game left for them, they're giving good effort and trying to get better.

Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Three more Kansas football players were sidelined Tuesday with injuries.

Nose guard Dennis Balagna reinjured an ankle. Lloyd Sobek, a backup tight end, strained a leg muscle. And No.2 tight end Gregg Hosack suffered a leg cut in a nonfootball related accident and the wound required stitches.

Nine other Jayhawks were suffering with the flu but only two — offensive tackle Dave Scott and defensive tackle Paul Margheim — missed practice. Place kicker Dennis Kerbel and punter John O'Rear have not done any kicking this week because of injuries and coach Bud Moore lists them as doubtful for the Missouri game Saturday. Another in the doubtful category is safety Kurt Knoff, held out of contact again because of a pulled hamstring muscle.

Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State devoted much of Tuesday's 90-minute football practice to tactics designed to stop the plunges of Colorado's fullback, Tery Kunz, and the option-play wizardry of quarterback David Williams.

Coach Ellis Rainsberger expressed a hope that the 19 K-State seniors can close out their college football careers Saturday with a creditable performance against Colorado, which is ninth ranked in the nation and bound for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It's important that our players find some catalyst for ending the season on a positive note," Rainsberger said. "Hopefully it will be the seniors who provide that catalyst. We asked them to do it against Nebraska, and I hope they can do it again."

Nebraska, the nation's No. 2 team, managed only a 12-0 victory over Kansas State two Saturdays ago.

Quarterback Joe Hatcher, who missed last week's game because of some bone chips in his ankle, was moving around much better Tuesday. But Rainsberger still listed Tom Merrifield, a junior, as the No. 1 quarterback.

Trinidad Tips McCook Juco

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP)— Trinidad Junior College handed McCook its first loss in college basketball Tuesday as Mark Taylor led the Trojans to a 93-78 victory.

Taylor scored 23 points as did McCook's Lee Johnson. Bill Wilbon of McCook had 19. Trinidad led at the half 41-35.

Charter Revision Unit Juggles Hot Proposals

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Members of the city's Charter Revision Committee apparently concluded Tuesday that two proposals were just too hot to handle and dropped them back into governmental limbo.

The committee said too many "cans of worms" would be opened if the charter were changed to allow the City Council to set the fiscal year.

The committee also agreed that a really big "can of worms" would crawl out of a proposal to hold a charter convention to reorganize the charter, the city's constitution.

The committee delayed action on both proposals.

Mayor Helen Boosalis had proposed the committee consider moving the city election date back from May to March or change the city's fiscal year.

Not Enough Time

The mayor and some council members have remarked that in election years it is extremely difficult for new officials to review and set the city's million dollar budget in the short time allowed between the election and the start of the city's next fiscal year.

For instance, Mayor Boosalis took office May 19. She had about six weeks to prepare the city's budget for the City Council. In off-election years, the mayor usually begins budgetary reviews in January.

Alternatives Listed

Charter Revision Committee member Bob Sittig suggested the committee could recommend:

— changing the fiscal year from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, which would coincide with the federal government's announced change to begin its budgetary year on Oct. 1.

— Reduce the amount of time the council has to review and set the city budget.

— Move the election dates back from May to March.

— Leave the situation as is.

Sittig suggested that the language setting the fiscal year could be erased from the charter. It would then be up to the council to set the budget year after several members voiced concern that the city couldn't be sure the federal government wouldn't change its budgetary year periodically.

Member Erv Peterson theorized that a council could then start "playing politics" with the budget. A devious council could then "slip something over" on the citizens, the former mayor said.

Rewriting Opposed

The group also sidetracked City Atty. Charles Humbles' plan to rewrite the city charter.

Many sections are repetitive, some are contradictory, much of the language is archaic, some of the sections are obsolete. Furthermore, Humble said, a revising of the charter would eliminate many sections which are too detailed and legislative in nature. The city charter, like a constitution, should not be so detailed in its requirements on a variety of subjects, he asserted.

The committee blocked Humble's "Cadillac plan." They didn't buy a "Pinto plan" either.

Members balked at the idea of forming a bunch of task forces to reword the document. So many changes would be recommended, they figured, that a charter convention would be called.

"And we all know what can happen there," members said.

'Dangerous Groups'

Peterson said such a convention would open the charter up "to a lot of dangerous groups" who would wait to "nail something into the charter" the committee didn't want.

Other members suggested it would be unwise to rewrite the charter in view of the potential merger of city and county government, which is being studied.

Concerning the charter housecleaning proposal, Blair said, "We don't have the time and effort to do it. Nobody else does it, why should we?"

The committee also tentatively set Jan. 20 and 21 to hold public hearings on several other proposed charter amendments agreed upon at their last meeting.

Eight-Year Limit

One amendment would restrict the mayor and council to two consecutive terms in office, or eight years in a row. The second amendment would eliminate the Lincoln Electric System's in-lieu-of-tax payments, allowing the council to decide where the money should be spent.

The City Council makes the final determination on whether a charter amendment should be placed on the ballot for voter approval.

Terms Set For NPPD's Burning High Sulfur Coal

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State Environmental Control Director Dan Drain Tuesday outlined conditions under which the Nebraska Public Power District can continue to burn air-polluting high sulfur coal at its Hallam power plant.

The administrative order will expire Dec. 13 when the case will be considered by the State Environmental Control Council. A public hearing on the issue is scheduled for that day.

Emissions from the coal violate clean air standards.

The violation has been referred to the county attorney, and "charges will be filed rather soon," Drain said.

State law provides for a maximum fine of $500 for each day of violation.

Difficult To Get

NPPD advised Drain that it has had difficulty in obtaining low sulfur coal for its Hallam unit, and is burning high sulfur coal whose emissions violate the state's sulfur dioxide standards, he said.

Indications are that emissions from the plant on a number of days have "exceeded the standards practically 2 to 1," Drain said.

In order to provide needed electrical energy, NPPD "didn't have too much choice," he said.

NPPD has a $4 million inventory of 207,000 tons of coal (both high and low sulfur) at Hallam, Drain noted.

His administrative order provides that NPPD:

—inform his department of "the steps taken to prevent a reoccurrence of the situation."

—burn oil or gas at Sheldon station when available as an alternative fuel.

—take "all steps immediately" to acquire low sulfur coal and blend it with the high sulfur coal in sufficient quantity to achieve compliance with clean air standards.

—keep records of its coal consumption activity at Hallam, available on request by the Lincoln-Lancaster County Air Pollution Control Authority.

Scant Alternative

Violation of the air quality standards "does not allow the department much of an alternative if it is to protect the environment," Drain said.

"The department has to consider the state's power needs the economics concerned and preserve the integrity of the state's air implementation plan."

During the recent mild weather, Drain said, NPPD has been burning some natural gas, rather than coal, at its power plant.

The department has fielded no complaints thus far from residents of the Hallam area, he said.

Whether continued violation of the sulfur dioxide standards would be injurious to health, Drain replied: "I can't say conclusively."

Relationship Denied

Drain said Hallam's shortage of low sulfur coal does not relate to NPPD's guarantee to use low sulfur coal at the controversial new Gentleman Station under construction near Sutherland.

"Over the longer term the availability of low sulfur coal can be more assured," he said.

Low sulfur coal is available, Drain said. "It's just not available physically at Hallam now."

His order cites specific NPPD violations from Oct. 25 through Oct. 29, but noted that violations continue "whenever high sulfur coal is burned" at the plant.

Self-Reliance Urged

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Federal regulations must be written to encourage other states to develop their own energy resources, rather than relying solely on oil from the Mideast and Texas, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said.

County Engineer Praised For Getting Federal Funds

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger, who has brought more than $2 million in federal money into the county during the past 10 months, received mostly praise during a public hearing Tuesday afternoon.

Nuernberger explained his department's $4 5 million one-year road and bridge improvement plan and a "very conservative" five-year plan during the County Board hearing.

"Our success or failure depends on two variables, time and money," Nuernberger said. "Time can save money and money can buy time.

"We've already suffered a setback in local funding," said Nuernberger, a reiteration of complaints after the County Board cut his budget request by more than $500,000 this year.

"This year's program is the largest in the county's history," Nuernberger pointed out, adding that the impact of reduced local funding will show up next year.

Nuernberger has often explained that the ability to get federal funding is dependent on a constant flow of local funds.

The conservative five-year plan for 1977 through 1981 reflects the possibility that lower local funding will jeopardize federal funding, according to Nuernberger.

But the county engineer is continuing to assure that all local road projects will be eligible for federal funds by meeting all federal requirements in the early planning and right-of-way acquisition stages.

Most of the individuals testifying during the hearing complimented Nuernberger's knowledge of federal funding and his "cooperative" spirit in working with both communities and individuals.

The board received a petition with 208 signatures asking that the paving of portions of Sprague Road be given priority.

In other action, the board appointed Dave McLaughlin, Reid Devoe and Francine Kubacek to the Lancaster Manor Advisory Board.

Two County Officials Taking Some Ribbing

The two county officials charged with the misdemeanor offense of failure to pay sales tax have both been taking some ribbing in court house circles.

County Commissioner Bob Colin and County Assessor Fritz Meyer are both telling contradictory stories about the incident involving a false sales tax report on a car Colin purchased. And both men have said the other is telling "lies."

But Assessor Meyer added a little frosty icing when he said that Colin is "so dumb he wouldn't know enough to pour sand out of boot."

Commissioner Colin took the kidding in stride Tuesday as other county employes offered to bring in a bucket for his sand. Then Colin, who maintains he did not know he was doing anything illegal, offered a rebutal.

"If having sand in your boots is an indication of being honest and truthful and if having sand in your boots will make it possible to have a clear conscience and be able to live with yourself, then I most certainly have sand in my boots, along with a little horse manure on the outside."

Strike At Canada Paper Mills Could Continue Past Christmas

Montreal (AP) — A strike that has shut down 60% of Canada's newsprint producing capacity could continue past Christmas, industry officials have predicted.

"We'll have Christmas trees on the picket lines if necessary," a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers Union said Tuesday.

No negotiations were planned for the immediate future.

Paul Lachance, president of the Quebec Council of Pulp and Paper Producers, also said the strikes, which have touched almost every province, could continue into 1976.

The union spokesman estimated that 24,400 union members were currently on strike in Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces.

Another 9,100 union members were part of 13,000 forest industry strikers forced back to work earlier by provincial legislation in British Columbia.

The B.C. workers were the first to walk off their jobs in July. Negotiations in that province may resume next week, he said.

The union spokesman criticized companies for being "interested in keeping the strike going" so they can maintain current price levels and reduce inventories.

Many companies across Canada had shut down newsprint mills in the spring for one- or two-week periods before the strikes started because of excessive inventories.

The union spkoesman said about two weeks ago negotiations had failed with some companies in Ontario because the companies would not exceed the 10% wage increase guidelines of the federal government.

The government has said it will allow some exceptions to this ceiling but has not clearly defined who will be exempt.

The union is demanding a 40% pay boost, a $2-an-hour increase to a base hourly rate of $4 82 and average hourly earnings of $5.70.

However, the union has informally agreed to a 21% wage increase involving 500 workers at Irving Pulp and Paper Ltd. in Saint John, N.B. The increase must still be ratified by a vote.

Robert Andras, federal manpower minister, said last month that the settlement with the Irving workers could prove to be a test case since it must be approved by the Federal anti-inflation review board.

Despite the shutdown of 60% of Canada's newsprint capacity, the American Newspaper Publishers Association issued a statement this week saying their members inventories were large enough to carry them through the heavy Christmas season, when newspapers are traditionally swelled from Christmas advertising.

About 55% of Canada's newsprint production is exported to the United States.

James Buchanan, the union's national secretary, countered with a statement expressing doubt in the association's claim.

"They would do anything to weaken our bargaining position," Buchanan said.

"Some newspapers have advised us the picture is not as bright as the association makes it out to be," he said.

Wife Advises: Go To Church, Fix Up Fights

Racine, Wis. (AP) — Anna Dahnert says she's still happy after 69 years of marriage. Her advice to newlyweds: "Both go to church every Sunday and be nice together.

"If you have an argument, fix it up again," she advised recently on the 69th anniversary of her wedding to Theodore Dahnert.

Dahnert, 90, and his wife, 89, still keep busy around their home. Dahnert mows the lawn, shovels the walk and trims bushes, while his wife does some housework and goes shopping.

"You can't just sit; you got to do something," Mrs. Dahnert says. "If I'm occupied, the time goes faster and I feel better.

"Every Sunday we go out to have dinner. You only live once."

NU's Ross Changing Duties

By VIRGIL PARKER

Jim Ross is likely to be much busier now that he's retiring.

The veteran Nebraska football aide, who has coached the Husker freshmen the past seven years, ended his coaching duties last Friday when his 1975 NU yearlings ended the season with a perfect 5-0 record.

But Ross, who also carries the title of assistant athletic director to Bob Devaney, will take on the responsibility of managing the new Fieldhouse complex.

"The biggest question about my new duties is when they will start," Ross says, observing that the completion date on the fieldhouse has been ever-changing.

"They keep insisting that we'll get in there for some of the basketball season. And I hope they're right. A lot has been done in recent weeks, but there's still a lot left to be completed before the building can be opened."

Open In January

Ross says the projected date is "at the start of the second semester in mid-January. That, of course, is for basketball. That's the only part of the building we have a chance to finish this school year."

Swimming, gymnastics, wrestling and indoor track will also be housed in the building.

Ross is a Michigan native who first became acquainted with Devaney when both coached at Alpena, Mich., High School following World War II.

"I was born in Grosse Ile, Mich.," Ross relates. "It's a resort island in the Detroit river. My dad was the greenskeeper of the golf course. That's what I was always going to be. I helped him at the club as a youth."

But Ross went off to college (Eastern Michigan) and got a coaching job at little Newaygo High upon graduation in 1939.

His first football team rolled to a 7-1 record.

Meets His Wife

"That's where I met my wife Maurine," Jim recalls. "I was also teaching history and she was the Latin teacher in the school. I always went to see her after school to have her teach me how to pronounce the Greek and Roman names so I could prepare for my classes."

More sports, Pages 38 & 39

The Rosses have three married daughters and four grandchildren. Sharon is married to Maynard Smidt, who was on Nebraska's first Cotton Bowl team. He is in the insurance business in North Platte.

Middle daughter Peggy teaches at Clinton grade school in Lincoln. Her husband, Larry Honeycutt, is associated with the National Guard.

Youngest daughter Kathy is also a teacher — at East Junior High. Husband Jim Mischnick is an architect in Lincoln.

After his first three years of high school coaching, Ross went into the army. While serving with the 33rd Infantry Division in the South Pacific he was awarded the Bronze Star for gallantry in the Phillippines.

Returns From Service

"When I got out of the service in 1946," Ross remembers, "I was hired as the basketball coach at Alpena High and Devaney was named the football coach. We were together there eight years.

"Devaney was hired as an assistant at Michigan State when Duffy (Daugherty) got that job," Ross continues. "He told me that if he ever got a head coaching job he wanted me to go with him."

That opportunity came three years later when Devaney was named the head coach at Wyoming.

Devaney assembled an all-new staff at Wyoming. Ross and three others — Mike Corgan, John Melton and Carl Selmer — also made the move with Devaney from Wyoming to Nebraska.

"My first impression of Lincoln was our facilities," Ross admits, "We had better offices in Wyoming than in the old place (Coliseum)."

"I was also impressed with the size of the kids we inherited," Ross says. "We never had kids the size of Bob Brown, Lloyd Voss and Bill Thornton at Wyoming."

With a five-man staff in those one-platoon days, Ross coached the offensive and defensive ends plus the defensive backs.

Ross was named assistant athletic director five years later. Two more seasons went by before he took the less demanding head freshman job.

His seven frosh teams lost just two games — one the first year in 1969 and the other in '73 — with the other five clubs going unbeaten.

Players Win Games

"Coaching doesn't win the games, the kids do," Ross claims.

He laughingly says his poorest freshman coaching job was his first.

"I had Johnny Rodgers, John Dutton, Monte Johnson, Daryl White, Rich Glover, Bill Olds — and probably some other great ones I can't recall this moment — and we lost to McCook Junior College," Ross recalls.

"I think the varsity record in the past seven years shows the kind of talent I had. The main job at the freshman level is to improve their techniques and help them with the adjustment to major college football.

"One big advantage we have is that we keep the freshman program separate. They're not out there knocking heads with the varsity every day. They get a chance to mature a little before that happens."

The guiding hand of Jim Ross will be missed in directing that maturing process. But fortunately, the open door of his office won't be far away.

Stanford's Nickname Still In Controversy

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The "Big Game" against the University of California may not be the only contest on Stanford University's gridiron this Saturday.

Another battle is shaping up between the antic-filled Stanford Band and the university administration.

The dispute is over whether the band should eliminate the last remaining vestiges associated with the university's former mascot, the Indian, which was changed in 1972 after protests from Indian students.

It was learned that the Band, which performs at Stanford football games, has been urged by Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Alan Strain to eliminate its traditional fanfare because Indian students object to its tom-tom beat, and also the band's traditional "ax" formation, a part of Stanford spirit for as long as anyone can remember.

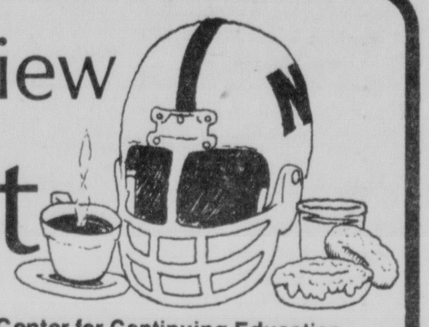

In addition, Strain said the Indian students object to the Stanford "dollies," the band's pom-pom girls, wearing feathers in their hair and using a zigzag Navajo design on the skirts of one of their uniforms.

The request from Strain to the band, which lies outside the university's control, came following Stanford's game with Washington State Oct. 25. The dollies have removed the feathers, but band leader Bill Wick said the tom-tom fanfare and "ax" formation will be part of its Big Game show, as usual.

"The band isn't going to change under pressure from the university, and we are also not going to be bought by the alumni," Wick said. And he said the band would have an additional comment on the situation during its performance Saturday.

The campus is scheduled to vote early in December on whether to change the mascot from the current "Cardinals," perhaps back to Indians. An "underground" movement selling the once-popular Indian decals has sprung up in recent weeks, and Lowell Berry, a spokesman for an alumni group, the New Founders League, says "the Indian is alive and in the hearts of a lot of alumni."

Devine, Players Deny 'Cotton' Bid Refused

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine and his players branded as "a lie" a published report that the Fighting Irish voted not to play in the Cotton Bowl because the players were upset with Devine's leadership.

The furor began Tuesday morning when David Israel, a columnist for the Washington, D.C., Star, quoted sources as saying that Notre Dame players had been offered a bid to the bowl even after losing to Pittsburgh last Saturday and that they turned it down because they were disturbed with Devine.

Cotton Bowl officials denied that a bid had ever been offered, although Notre Dame players said they voted on two different occasions concerning the bowl.

Notre Dame officials said the school was approached twice by the Cotton Bowl, once before the Pitt game and once after. Each time, they said, bowl officials wanted to learn the team's sentiment if a bid were extended.

The results of the first vote could not be learned, but the players did vote against playing the second time. Meanwhile, players and coaches reacted angrily to Israel's story which quoted the sources as saying the players voiced dissatisfaction with Devine in a closed team meeting.

"It's a lie," said Devine of the story. He said he told the squad last week there would be no meeting or talk of any bowl games.

"By Thursday it became apparent that the Cotton Bowl wanted some kind of indication as to how the players felt," Devine said. "We had a meeting which Moose Krause (athletic director) attended and the players took a vote. I do not know what the vote was. The votes were sealed and sent to Father Joyce (Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, head of the athletic board)."

But here there were also differing versions of the story. Field Scovell, selection committee chairman for the Cotton Bowl, said Notre Dame was not invited to play in the New Year's Day game "before or after the Pittsburgh game."

"We made no proposition to Notre Dame," said Scovell. "We told them that they were one of four teams we were considering and that no decision would be made until 6 p.m. (Saturday)."

Scovell watched the Pitt-Notre Dame game and then on Sunday, the Cotton Bowl selected Georgia to face the Southwest Conference champion. Had Notre Dame been invited after the loss?

"Absolutely not," said Scovell.

But, Devine said, "Even after we lost, there still appeared to be interest by the Cotton Bowl. I don't know how big, but enough so that another vote was taken.

"As far as I'm concerned, I considered it a great compliment to the coaching staff, the team and myself that the Cotton Bowl people thought I could make a bowl representative out of our club even after losing to Pittsburgh."

Ed Bauer, captain of the Irish, denied that the team had rejected any bowl bid because of Devine.

"Speaking for myself only," he said, "it was the overwhelming fact of Saturday's game that had to be the major factor in the decision we made Sunday afternoon. Taking a poll was merely to get the sentiment of the team."

Asked about reported team feelings against Coach Devine, Bauer said: "No, there's no truth to that. There's nothing to it at all. We're going to be there Saturday (for the Miami, Fla. game) and we're going to be playing in our 11th game the same way we played in our first."

Karras Says Pro Football Popular As Sunday School

By TOM FITZPATRICK
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Cincinnati — In just a little while Alex Karras, who was sitting there now bare to his ample belly, would be putting on a shirt and tie and a yellow blazer with an ABC emblem on the pocket.

Karras would leave his room on the ninth floor of the Stouffer Inn and take a five-minute taxi ride to Riverfront Stadium.

Walking through the crowded lobby, there would be hundreds of eyes turned in Karras' direction. Chances are, the cab driver would recognize him, too.

As he entered the stadium through the press gate, fans who never saw Karras play as an all-pro defensive tackle for the Detroit Lions would wave and shout "Good luck, tonight, Alex. Say hello to Howard and Frank."

That's the way it is, now wherever the ABC Monday Night Football team travels.

Alex Karras, Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford are better known than almost any of the players whose performances they dissect. It is the age of the critic as star.

Alex Karras, the one-time toughneck from Gary, Ind., snorted as he thought about what his life has become in the past few years and what pro football has come to mean in this country.

"People have lost their minds and their souls trying to play this game or even follow it," Karras said in a loud voice.

He never talks softly. He carries a big stick, but Alex Karras does not talk softly.

"It's now on a parallel to going to Sunday School. Yeah, it's reached that status in our country. It really is interesting where our heads are.

"It's weird. It's like the old Roman Empire. To be President of the United States is no longer great, but if you could be the quarterback of the St. Louis Cardinals? That would be what your daddy really would want."

A phone rang. Karras snatched it off the cradle and shouted into the receiver.

It turned out it was a man with a business proposition. Karras listened politely. He gets a lot of business propositions these days.

He listens to them all. He knows much more about money and how it works than you might expect.

Karras hung up the phone.

"No, I don't think I'd want my boys to grow up to be defensive tackles like I was. I'd rather have them be doctors (Karras' father was one) or lawyers or anything they could have fun with physically without violence."

It's a popular misconception that Karras suddenly emerged as a full-blown character one night a couple of years ago in the ABC booth on Monday Night Football.

"I was up in Canada five years ago doing color on TV and even some play-by-play," Karras said. "I wanted to get the experience I needed."

"Then when Don Meredith went to NBC and the job with ABC was open, I called Roone Arledge (the ABC sports producer). I took Roone out to lunch.

"I wined and dined the hell out of him. I think the lunch cost $68 and I paid the tab. I thought I had the job tied up.

"But there was a problem. I had been running a little betting sheet. At least Pete Rozelle and the owners thought it was a betting sheet. I called it "Alex Karras: Pro in the Know."

"So they told Roone I was too controversial and that I had a very bad image with the public. So Rozelle told ABC, or at least suggested, that they lay off me.

"'We want NFL football to have as high a caliber as possible and we just don't think a man like Karras fits in,' they said."

Karras recalled the story without apparent bitterness. "So they gave the job to Fred Williamson, another guy from Gary who I've known all my life. I never knew how he did.

"I never watched the show because I was doing some other things, but when Fred got fired they brought me in for a shot as a guest.

"Hell, I'd been talking in front of people since 1958. I'd been acting since 1966. I did two movies. I did the Daniel Boone series. I did maybe 20 shots on the Johnny Carson show. I had learned my business."

Karras was as close to being an instant success as anyone could expect. He was funny. He was irreverent. He knew how to handle Howard Cosell without growing surly as Williamson had done.

He didn't possess the homespun Western charm on Dandy Don, but he had something else that was equally important.

He talked tough and funny and sometimes a little poignantly. He was a student of the human condition. And even more; Karras displayed a brilliant football mind.

"What do I do before a game?" Karras said now, restating the question. He laughed out loud.

"I don't do anything. I know the rosters of the teams. I just figure out who should win and why and for the rest I play it loose and hope I can come up with some fun. Hopefully, I can always have some funny things to say.

"Our cameramen will get some great visual shots for us along the sidelines. Remember, this is a game that lends itself to comedy . . . or tragedy and most times both of them.

"There's no clash up there in that booth among Howard and Frank and me. Howard has a great ego. But so does Frank. And so do I.

"If we didn't, we wouldn't be in this business. Hell, we all love notoriety."

On a table near Karras' bed there was one of those football flip cards made of hard cardboard which Karras had apparently been using to learn the numbers of the players in the coming game.

It would be the Buffalo Bills against the Cincinnati Bengals and Karras had already figured out the probable result before leaving his hotel room.

"The way it looks," Karras said, "Cincinnati will run all over Buffalo. Better yet, they'll pass all over them.

"Buffalo is hurting. They have no defense. They had to depend on O. J. Simpson and Joe Ferguson. They have to control the ball.

"But it will be a good game for the fans to watch. Hell, O. J. is as good a back as I've seen. I don't think he's any better than Jimmy Brown or Hugh McElhenny or Joe Perry were. But he's terrific."

Karras halted and then he said one of those things that always gets him into hot water with the NFL establishment.

"There are so many more teams now," Karras said. "The damn talent's depleted. I don't give a (expletive) what anybody says. The teams aren't as good as they used to be when I was playing."

Ex-ISU Standout Hoppmann Killed

Stuart, Fla. (UPI) — Dave Hoppmann, an all-America running back at Iowa State in the early 1960s, was killed in a traffic accident Monday near this southern Florida community, authorities reported Tuesday.

Investigators said Hoppmann's car was hit from behind by a semi-trailer truck on the Florida turnpike about 3½ miles south of Stuart in Martin County. Hoppmann, 35, was dead at the scene, authorities said.

Hoppmann had been living in Winter Park.

The report on the accident said Hoppmann's southbound car crashed into a school bus parked along the highway.

(Ten persons on the bus, carrying students from the Indian River Academy in Fort Pierce, were injured but only one required hospitalization.

Bus driver James S. Pembleton said he parked the vehicle so he could adjust the windshield wipers.

The truck driver — Willie M. Jones of Greenville, S.C. — was charged with reckless driving and other charges were pending, authorities said.

Hoppmann played tailback at Iowa State under coach Clay Stapleton from 1960-62 and set several ISU offensive records.

He was an all-Big Eight Conference selection in 1961 and 1962 and was named to numerous all-American teams in those two seasons.

Hoppmann, the key man in Stapleton's single-wing offense, played in three all-star games after the 1962 season — the Blue-Gray game, the Senior Bowl and the All-American game.

He led the nation in total offense in 1961.

When Hoppmann left Iowa State in 1962 he had established records for most rushes in one game (271), total offense in one game (32), rushing yards in one season (920) and career rushing yards (2,562).

The 271 yards rushing in one game, set in a 31-7 victory over Kansas State in 1961, is still an Iowa State record.

Hoppmann, a 6-1, 195-pounder, played in the Canadian Football League for two years after leaving Iowa State and then spent one season with the New York Giants of the National Football League.

He also played for Orlando in the Continental League.

In high school, Hoppmann starred in football and basketball in Madison, Wis.

Survivors include his widow, Arlene; a son, Brad, 2, and his mother, Doris Hoppmann of Madison, Wis.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in Winter Park.

Bruce To Fight For Job

"You always hear rumors when a team is in trouble," Bruce said after his club fell 52-0 to second-rated Nebraska.

"But I'll say right now, I'm going to fight to keep my job."

Bruce was questioned about rumors that he may be on shaky ground because of the Cyclones' late tailspin — five straight losses after a 4-1 start.

"I'm a football coach. I've worked damn hard here.

"We are trying to build a solid program and have a lot of young kids — there aren't many seniors on this squad.

"I've worked too hard to give it up without a fight."

Bruce is on the third year of a five-year contract.

Iowa State closes its season Saturday at home against Oklahoma State and needs a victory to escape a third straight 4-7 season under Bruce.

"As far as I know, there is no pressure to remove Earle," said ISU athletic director Lou McCullough.

"That would have to come from our president W. Robert Parks and the athletic council.

"The are the powers that be at Iowa State. I've just got one of the 16 votes on the athletic council."

Bruce came to Iowa State in 1973 from Tampa and replaced Johnny Majors, who took the head job at Pittsburgh.

If Bruce is fired, it will cost the school about $50,000 to pay off the remaining two years of his contract.

Injuries, especially to quarterback Buddy Hardeman, have hurt the Cyclones since Big Eight Conference play opened six weeks ago.

Hayes Brushes Off Newsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State coach Woody Hayes might have set a record for brevity Tuesday night after practice when he brushed off waiting newsmen in one minute and 37 seconds.

That's all it took Hayes to tell a small group of writers, including one who came from Chicago, what the top-rated Buckeyes worked on Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten title clash with No. 5 Michigan.

Hayes, who has held shorter conferences following infrequent losses, usually is more talkative at the prearranged meetings during Michigan week.

"Defensively, we worked on almost every phase," Hayes said. He then ran down those specific phases: running, passing, goal line and punt return. "Everything but kickoff returns," he said.

Woody then routinely went over what the offense had worked on, no big surprises there either, adding that he kept the No. 1 offensive unit a little longer than usual to practice field goals.

Tom Klaban booted four field goals in last year's 12-10 Bucks victory over the Wolverines.

"We'll work about an hour and a half tomorrow," said Hayes, who then turned and walked away, leaving the small gathering standing in the dimly lit hallway outside the Buckeyes training quarters.

Although Hayes had little or nothing to say in person, he did comment on the magnitude of the nationally televised game on Ohio State's telephone "sports line."

"This is the ultimate for the entire season," Hayes told interviewer Steve Snapp, OSU assistant sports information director. "The game we need to set the whole thing off. It means an extreme amount to each one of the players and for the team, it means everything."

For the second consecutive day, the Buckeyes practiced under sunny skies with temperatures in the mid 60s.

The fence at the open end of the giant horseshoe Ohio Stadium was covered with canvas and extra university police were on duty to keep out spectators.

Michigan Intensity Different

Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan adhered to its normal practice schedule Tuesday, holding a heavy two-hour workout in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten showdown with Ohio State. But the players admitted a difference in intensity.

Junior fullback Rob Lytle explained "it's a week where everybody is really psyched. Players are psyched. Coaches are psyched. It actually makes it a lot of fun because everything seems to come together."

The game, which will decide the league championship for the seventh time in eight years, is definitely emotional but coach Bo Schmebechler discounts the need for added incentive.

"You don't need any extra incentive for this game," he said, "because it's Michigan and Ohio State and that's all you really need."

Schembechler even played down the home field advantage, which has been a factor since 1968, the year before he took over.

"Neither team has been able to win on the road," he said, "but we have played two pretty good games down there and they have played well up here. So I'm not sure the home field is much of an advantage in a game this big."

He did say, however, the home field would mean something for the Michigan seniors, since it would be their last home game.

Barnes On Trial

Providence, R.I. (AP) — Lawrence Ketvirtis took the stand in U.S. District Court Tuesday and told his story of being struck with a tire iron by Marvin Barnes, a Providence College All-American who is now with the American Basketball Association Spirits of St. Louis.

UNO AD Agrees To Coach

Omaha (UPI) — The boss-employe relationship between Nebraska-Omaha athletic director Don Leahy and head football coach Bill Danenhauer will be reversed next year, at least on the football field.

Danenhauer said Tuesday Leahy has agreed to be an assistant coach coordinating the offensive unit starting with spring practice. Leahy will retain his position as athletic director.

"We don't have the money in the budget to hire somebody else, and it definitely looks like we're not going to get any money for this," Danenhauer said.

"We've asked for the money many times, but have always been turned down."

Danenhauer said "every body we're playing has at least one more full time assistant than we do, so we're undermanned to begin with."

Leahy, a former standout quarterback at Marquette University, was head football coach at Creighton Prep in Omaha for 17 years. At one time, he also was an assistant coach with the Omaha Mustangs.

"It's really great we have a man who is qualified as he is to give time to football coaching," Danenhauer said. "Mr. Leahy has been highly successful as a football coach."

Danenhauer said his budget allows for four full time assistant coaches, two graduate assistants and himself.

"We are all teachers as well," Danenhauer said. "We have our classroom duties as well as our coaching duties. Our problem is the money type of thing."

UNO chancellor Ronald Roskens approved the placing of Leahy as a football assistant.

The Mavericks closed their 1975 campaign Saturday, losing to Jackson State University, 31-13. It was the ninth straight loss for UNO and game them a 2-9 season record.

Napoles To Fight

Mexico City (UPI) — World welterweight champion Jose "Mantequilla' Napoles will defend his title against Britain's John Stracey on Dec. 6, a spokesman for promoter Jaime De Haro announced Tuesday.

OU's Washington Wins Big 8 Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joe Washington's magic moves paid off again.

The Oklahoma flash turned them on Saturday, breaking loose on a fourth-and-one situation for a 71-yard run for a touchdown that gave him a chance for a two-point conversion.

Washington, with a tremendous effort, fell over the goal line after he was hit for the tying and winning points, and Oklahoma nipped Missouri 28-27.

Washington's big effort, coming with four minutes, 20 seconds left in the game, also was good for Big Eight Conference offensive football player of the week honors Monday. The vote by a panel of sports writers was unanimous.

"Washington's run was the difference," sighed Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "That's why he is a great back. He can break a game anytime."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said of Washington:

"Joe might not have the greatest statistics of the year but there isn't a greater back in football this year. He produced a great play in a clutch situation."

Switzer gave the game ball to Washington.

Also nominated were Charlie Weatherbie of Oklahoma State, Jim Wingender of Iowa State, Curtis Craig of Nebraska, Nolan Cromwell of Kansas, David Williams of Colorado and Curtis Brown and Henry Marshall, both of Missouri.

K-State Varsity Rips Alumni

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State basketball fans got a preview of coming attractions Monday night when the varsity defeated an alumni contingent 105-70 in their second annual pre-season game.

The game was close the first 13 minutes, but the varsity then hit 10 straight points to take a 38-21 lead with 5:13 remaining in the first half.

Varsity guards Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans scored 12 points each and center Carl Gerlach had 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Forward Ernie Kusnyer of Manhattan led the alumni with 17 points.

A favorite with the crowd was 68-year-old Kermit Silverwood of Tampa, Fla., who played for the Wildcats in 1928-30.

He entered the game in the second half and hit two straight two-hand set shots from 20 feet out.

Alliance Parents Pleased

Alliance (AP) — A group of parents said they were satisfied with explanations by Alliance coaches Monday night of how they determine playing time for athletes on athletic teams.

Brad Smith, head football coach at Alliance High, told the parents it was the opinion of the coaches for whom he spoke that winning is the important aspect, followed closely by participation.

The session was called by the Alliance Board of Education after about 20 parents signed a petition last week urging the board to look into the matter.

Some of the parents wanted to know why their children weren't getting in games.

Smith said the coaches rate players on talent, desire, hustle and attendance at practice sessions.

The discussion centered primarily on lower level teams, such as junior high, freshmen, reserve squads and junior varsity.

Kings Begin Omaha Slate

Omaha — Civic Auditorium will be the battleground on Friday for the first meeting between the Kansas City Kings and Chicago Bulls this season.

After being eliminated by Chicago in the first round of last year's playoffs in six games, Kansas City is looking for revenge.

Although the Kings won the nine game series five to four, Chicago proved the stronger team in post season play.

Police Officer Of Ralston Is Wounded By Gunman

Omaha (AP) — A 28-year-old Ralston police officer was listed in good condition in an Omaha hospital Tuesday after being shot twice in the back with a .45-caliber pistol.

Meanwhile, area law enforcement authorities were looking for a black man who allegedly pulled the trigger.

Patrolman William White was shot early Tuesday after he stopped a "suspicious car" at a major southwest Omaha intersection.

White underwent exploratory surgery Tuesday morning.

White told fellow officers he believed the car being driven by his assailant bore Nebraska license plates, but that he did not have time to get the license number.

White, who joined the Ralston force 13 months ago, was conscious after the shooting, and told other officers what had happened.

According to Patrolman R. L. Hough and Chief Dale Richardson, White said he observed the suspicious car "prowling" shortly before 5 a.m., and that he followed the car for about four or five blocks.

As the two cars approached the intersection of 84th and Q Sts., White said the driver of the other car swerved, and slammed on his brakes.

White said the driver stepped from the car, and seemed to be hiding something with his hands.

White, according to the reports, then stationed himself behind the open door of his cruiser, and ordered the suspect to keep his hands visible.

White then stepped from behind the door, and the man pulled the gun.

Through Richardson, White quoted the suspect as saying, "Don't move or I'll kill you."

According to Richardson, White felt the suspect was going to shoot anyway, so he attempted to jump between the two parked cars. As he did, the suspect fired, hitting White twice.

In his statement, White said the man then returned to his car, and began driving west. The patrolman said he got off six shots at the car, and that he may have hit the auto as it fled.

Richardson said two shell casings were recovered, and that some residents of the area heard the shots and saw the fleeing car.

The chief asked for help from the public, urging motorists who may have been in the area to call his office.

Tourniquets Make Snake Bites Worse

Miami Beach, Fla. (UPI) — Forget about tourniquets and ice packs when treating snake bites, a University of Louisville surgeon urges.

And as for cutting an X over the fang wound and sucking out the venom, says Dr. Robert E. Arnold, the only result is likely to be infecting the victim with bacteria from the mouth of the would-be angel of mercy.

Arnold told the Southern Medical Association meeting here that the American Red Cross, the Boy Scouts of America and the American College of Surgeons are all recommending the wrong remedies for snake bite. He said he has asked the Boy Scouts to change their first aid manual without success, and has had little or no response from the Red Cross and the College of Surgeons.

The best thing for a snake bite victim is to be kept calm and sped to a physician, Arnold said.

"All (snake) bites cut the circulation and applying a tourniquet makes matters worse," he said. So do ice packs, since they slow blood flow. It is lack of circulation around the gang wound that kills tissue and may make amputation necessary.

"Anyone who has read a surgery text in the last 20 years will tell you that to suck a snake wound is to risk infection from bacteria of the mouth. Finally . . . you cannot get the venom out, but you can treat with anti-venom," Arnold said.

Arnold said approximately 6,000 persons are bitten by snakes in the United States each year, but only about five of them die.

"If you did nothing in all of the cases, probably 99% would recover. Just don't foul up the patient with bad medicine," he said.

Arnold won support from William Haast, director of the Miami Serpentarium, which produces anti-venom for shipment throughout the world. Haast, who has survived 122 snake bites, including several by king cobras, said, "for 10 years that (the Arnold regimen) has been our treatment."

Smith Pleads Guilty, Pays $100 Fine

San Diego (AP) — Financier C. Arnholt Smith has pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge and paid a $100 fine.

Smith was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol after being administered a breath test Oct. 15. That charge was dropped when Smith's attorney appeared alone and entered the plea to the lesser charge.

Aw, Mom, It Was So Comfy . . .

Sometimes a fella just has to get a little rest.

At least that's what 3-year-old Erin Hatfield of 2421 S. 23rd probably thought when he crawled in among some bags of leaves in his parents front yard late Tuesday afternoon to take a nap.

His nap was disturbed when he was found by Lincoln police after a fruitless search by his parents caused them to call for assistance.

Blair Rejects City Manager

Lincoln Star Special

Blair — By a margin of over three to one, Blair voters Tuesday soundly defeated a proposal to adopt the city manager form of government.

City Clerk L. W. Svendgaard reported the unofficial tally on the issue was a total of 313 for and 1,039 against.

The proposal was turned down in all four wards, the city clerk said.

Woman's Death Ruled Suicide

The death of a 45-year-old Lincoln woman at her home Tuesday morning has been ruled a suicide, according to police.

Mrs. Cleoma Carson of 333 N. 56th was found dead of a gunshot wound on the patio of her home by her son DeWayne, who told police he heard a gunshot and found the body when he went to investigate.

District No. 46 In Sarpy County OKs Bond Issue

Lincoln Star Special

Papillion — A $2,500,000 school bond issue for District No. 46 of Sarpy County (also known as LaPlatte-Platteview-Springfield) won approval Tuesday in a special election.

The Sarpy County clerk's office said the unofficial vote on the proposal was 450 for, 239 against. The total includes six absentee ballots, all favoring the issue.

Funds will be used for purchasing a site and construction of a new elementary school and for additions to and repairs for schools in the district.

School Bonds Nixed Again At Weeping Water

Lincoln Star Special

Weeping Water — Although the vote was closer this time, Weeping Water residents again Tuesday nixed a school bond issue.

The latest proposal — a $884,000 bond issue — narrowly lost by a vote of 213 to 245.

Last year a similar plan failed by a vote of 339-172.

The funds would have been used to add classrooms for art, home economics, business and individual study rooms to the Weeping Water High School.

Another shop area, a medical center, study hall-cafeteria, band room and offices for teachers would also have been included.

Hastings Nixes Manager Plan

Lincoln Star Special

Hastings — A proposal to establish a city manager form of government here was rejected by Hastings voters Tuesday in a special election.

In a small turnout at the polls, the issue drew an unofficial total of 1,501 votes for and 3,585 against, according to the city clerk's office.

There are 13,246 registered voters in Hastings, it was pointed out.

The issue was placed on the ballot via a petition drive.

At the present time, Hastings has a mayor-council form of government.

Rusk Asks Real Stumper

Atlanta (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk stopped by the Dean Rusk Elementary School for a question and answer session with the pupils and stumped with them a question of his own: Who was the first secretary of state?

"Thomas Jefferson," Rusk told the group of 4th-through-7th-grade pupils. "Everybody who visits the monuments to Washington and Jefferson in Washington thinks they're monuments to the first and third presidents. But they're really monuments to the first president and the first secretary of state."

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF INTENT TO File for release of funds

This request relates to the following project. Conduct study to assess feasibility of developing units for handicapped people.

All applicable environmental reviews and clearance for the above project have been completed, as required by HUD. On November 24, 1975, a request and certification for funding of the above project will be filed.

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Lincoln, Nebraska is certifying to HUD that the City of Lincoln, Nebraska and Mayor Helen Boosalis, in her official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, City of Lincoln, Nebraska may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; (b) that the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure and may be addressed to HUD at the Omaha Area Office, 7100 W. Center Road, Omaha, Nebraska, 68106. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after December 15, 1975 will be considered by HUD.

The applicant is the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, Mayor Helen Boosalis.

Plaintiffs Gain Delay In Suit Over Election

By The Associated Press

The saga of former state Sen. Terry Carpenter will continue, apparently for another three weeks at least.

That was the word Tuesday from the office of U.S. District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom, who is considering a state Justice Department motion to dismiss a class action lawsuit centering on Carpenter's apparent defeat in the last election.

The suit was filed April 2 on behalf of Jesus Jose Porras and Marcella Castaneda, both of Scottsbluff, and Dr. W.F. Mahan, a Mitchell dentist.

Attorneys for the three had asked the court for additional time, Urbom's office said. A month ago Urbom said he thought he could rule within 30 days, and has said on occasions since then that the ruling could come within a few weeks.

The three plaintiffs contend their votes were among 126 originally cast for Carpenter in the 48th District legislative race, but later ruled void by Secretary of State Allen Beermann. That ruling meant that William E. Nichol served as state senator.

The lawsuit asks a three-judge federal panel to issue a declaratory judgment that the state law cited by Beermann is invalid, and Beermann's actions under that law, which was amended by the last legislature, are invalid.

If Urbom denies the dismissal motion, the case would be hard by the three judge panel.

If the suit ultimately succeeds, it would mean Carpenter won the election by three votes. Beermann's action made Carpenter a 68-vote loser to Nichol.

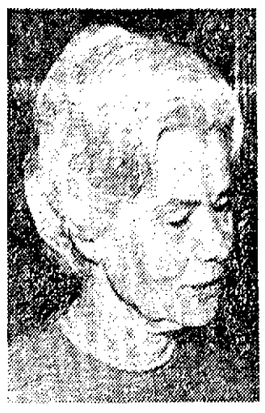

Carpenter had initially taken his challenge of the election to the legislature, but the Unicameral cited a technicality in a failure to post a bond; and decided not to consider the matter.

Carpenter contended Nichol's 68-vote victory should be overturned by the validation of nearly 100 of his write-in votes which were thrown out for misspellings, lack of a first name or initiation, or improper designation of office.

Carpenter, long a dominant force in the Unicameral and the firebrand of Nebraska politics, had resigned the legislatuve seat after losing the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. He later mounted the write-in campaign against Nichol.

State, Local Taxes Found Less Popular

Chicago (UPI) — Taxes never have been popular, but state and local levies are even less popular than before, according to Commerce Clearing House. Quoting a federal government survey, the organization says the percentage of taxpayers who feel state governments use tax dollars as wisely as they should dropped four points between April 1974 and May 1975 while there was a three point slippage in taxpayer attitudes on local government taxes. Popularity of federal government taxes rose slightly.

Mrs. Anne Batchelder

Exon Said Trying To Duck Blame

Omaha (AP) — State Republican party Chairman Anne Batchelder says Gov. J. J. Exon is trying to duck the blame for increasing next year's tax rates.

Mrs. Batchelder, in a news release, said Exon is attempting to blame the increases on the legislature or "if need be, the State Board of Equalization."

Mrs. Batchelder claims Exon has "played politics with the tax rates through his first term to build his image of a fiscal conservative."

She said the governor has "carefully orchestrated a believe . . . that he is a holding-the-line advocate."

However, Mrs. Batchelder, the unsuccessful GOP candidate for lieutenant governor last year, noted that the state spent $300.2 million in general fund money during 1974-75, compared with $163.6 million during the last fiscal year in the administration of the state's last Republican governor, Norbert Tiemann.

Even allowing for an estimated 32.6 per cent hike in costs attributed to inflation, Mrs. Batchelder said the state, under Exon, spent more than $92 million more last year than during Tiemann's last year in office.

"Governor Exon is the only governor in the history of Nebraska to have general fund expenditures in excess of $200 million in a fiscal year," said Mrs. Batchelder, adding, "The governor controls almost all spending."

She said the governor is not obligated to spend all of the money appropriated by the legislature, and can make further reductions in spending by the departments in the executive branch of the state government.

Common Spends $20,000 More On Garbage Study

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Local leaders made up their minds Tuesday and decided to spend $20,000 more to study two proposals to convert Lincoln's garbage into fuel.

Members of the City County Common directed the Ralph Parsons consulting firm to look into the conversion of solid waste into electricity and the construction of a plant to produce steam heat for downtown Lincoln and the University of Nebraska.

That action came only after the elected city and county officials authorized one action, rescinded that action and decided on the expenditure of an additional $20,000. The City Council, County Board and mayor already are paying $120,000 for the solid waste report. However, since the officials already had budgeted an extra $11,000, the group will have to shell out only another $9,000.

The common has delayed making a decision on the garbage question for several weeks.

Initially, the common ordered the consultant to study the steam plant option. Under that plan, the consultant also would have reported on the production of electricity at a generating plant.

Councilman Bob Jeambey said that proposal would "just be a way we can get the most of our money."

However, consultant Bob Mitchell recommended the common forgo the steam plant study if the group really was not interested in that option.

Council members have voiced concern that it won't pay to convert solid waste into steam because there is no guarantee there will be customers to buy the product.

It is also questionable whether the University of Nebraska could buy steam since some legal questions need to be answered first.

Under the first alternative, the consultants had recommended the city ship the garbage to the Nebraska Public Power District's (NPPD) Sheldon Station at Hallam for conversion into electricity.

NPPD has not committed itself to such an arrangement, although NPPD officials have indicated a willingness to discuss the matter.

Lincoln Electric System (LES) power supply manager Phil Michaels suggested officials consider building a generating plant near Lincoln.

LES Administrator Walt Canney reminded common members that LES thinks the steam heat plant is not the way to go.

Canney said, "I've seen it (steam) studied six times," and, he said, he's seen nothing which would indicate that steam generation would be a money maker.

Nevertheless, the officials directed the consulting firm to develop a plan for a steam heat-chilled water system to serve the downtown and the university.

The consultants also will develp a plan for shredding the refuse and transporting it either to the Sheldon Station or to another site.

Jembey cast the lone vote against those instructions.

Philadelphia Papers OK Union Contract

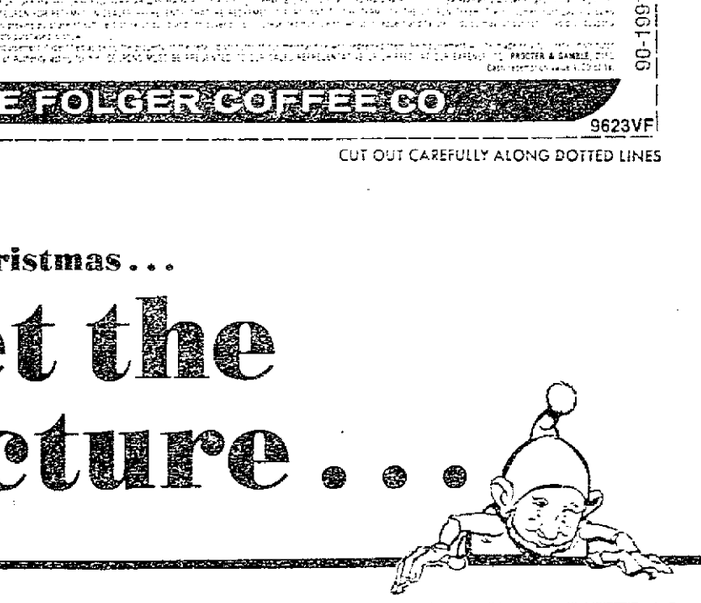

Philadelphia (UPI) — Editorial, advertising and circulation employes of the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Daily News ratified a new 15-month contract Tuesday night.

A union spokesman said the pact provided for wage increases averaging 9% and for a pension plan and job security program "among the best in the country."

The weekly salary for top wage scale reporters, photographers and advertising salesmen was increased from $342.94 to $373.94.

Inventory Of Possessions Helps Support Loss Claim

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If someone breaks into your house and steals the silverware, will your insurance policy pay you what it's worth? The answer depends on your policy — and on your proof of what the silver cost.

Jane Bryant Quinn

Let's start with proof, since that's what people most often neglect. Not many families keep lists of what their homes contain, even though they read over and over again that it's a good idea. Should they suffer a loss (from theft, fire or vandalism), they have to construct their possessions from memory, guess when they were bought, and how much was paid.

If the insurance company thinks your estimates are too high, and refuses to accept them, you have little recourse. Without proof, you pretty much have to go along with what the insurer thinks.

To make sure you get your money's worth out of your fire-and-theft insurance, back up the policy with an inventory of your possessions. Take pad and pencil, and an afternoon. Go through every room in the house, writing down precisely what's in it (including make and model), when you bought it and about what it cost. Don't forget the closets and cupboards.

Keep the list in a fireproof strongbox.

If you have a loss, this inventory list shows the insurance company that you aren't suddenly coming up with inflated estimates of what your things were worth. But don't try to steal a march on the company by jacking the price of everything up 10%. If the insurer thinks your estimates are too high for a person of your means he'll knock them down, regardless of your list.

Sales Slips Helpful

For this reason, it's helpful to have sales slips (and snapshots) for items of particular value, like furniture and appliances. Any heirlooms or purchases of unusual worth must be separately appraised if you hope to recover anything approaching their value. A store in town will likely do appraisals, or at least be able to tell you where to get them done. Keep the sales slips and appraisals along with your inventory list.

If anything is stolen, report it immediately to the police, and put the same value on it that you'll report to the insurance company (they'll likely check the report). Small losses you'll have to cover yourself. You policy probably carries at least a $50 deductible and perhaps one that's much higher.

Even when the loss is fully covered you generally won't get the full replacement value of the stolen goods. The insurance company estimates what the stolen item would cost today, and reduces that amount for every year you owned it. To replace it, you'll have to ante up more money of your own. Some companies sell policies with full-replacement clauses for fairly new items, but they're more expensive than regular policies.

You usually don't buy a theft policy all by itself. It comes as part of your homeowner's, renter's, or condominium-owner's policy. You're covered up to a specific ceiling mentioned in the policy; more coverage costs more money.

Policies typically cover you for all losses from your home and garage, including the theft of rented items; the losses of your guests; losses away from home up to a specific ceiling, and thefts from a locked car. Typical limits on recovery are $500 for furs, $500 for jewelry, $100 for cash and $50 for securities. Each policy has its own special wrinkles, however, and you should read yours to see if it's really what you want.

Higher Deductibles

You can lower the cost of a policy by taking higher deductibles. A $100 deductible may save you 10% in premiums, and a $500 deductible, 20%. You may also be able to lower costs — and perhaps improve coverage — by switching insurance companies. Ask your neighbors about their coverage, to see if it's better than yours. If your policy turns out to be the best on the block, make sure people know about it. You find good insurance companies mainly by word of mouth.

If you want more insurance for special items, the company will write it for you. Expensive furs and jewelry, for example, are typically covered by a "floater" policy. Tell your insurance agent what possessions or collections you have of special value, to find out whether they're covered or not. No sense letting yourself in for a nasty surprise.

If you live in a high-crime area and can't get private insurance, investigate federal coverage. Write to Federal Crime Insurance, P.O. Box 41033, Washington, D.C. 20014, or call toll-free 800-638-8780, to find out if your state is part of the crime-insurance program, and if so who sells it.

You can get residential coverage up to $10,000. If it's any consolation, you're also covered if you're mugged. The government requires a deadbolt lock on your door, but won't cancel your insurance or raise your rates if you're robbed again and again. Rates are higher than normal, but for the protection it's a small price to pay.

Gas Rate Hikes Told By Cengas

By United Press International

Natural gas rates will increase beginning Dec. 27 for 37 Cengas-served Nebraska communities supplied by Northern Natural Gas Co., Cengas announced Tuesday.

C. L. Wilcox, Lincoln division manager of Cengas, a division of Central Telephone & Utilities Corp., Lincoln, said the increase will amount to about 40 cents per month for the average residential heating customer.

He said Northern Natural filed evidence with the Federal Power Commission permitting it to increase rates to recovery the higher field cost of gas.

Pending before the commission is another Northern Natural rate application which resulted in an increase, subject to reduction and refund, on Oct. 27, 1974. The initial hearing will be Feb. 3, Wilcox said.

In addition to Lincoln, other communities affected by the Northern Natural rate increase are Adams, Arlington, Beatrice, Lee, Beemer, Blair, Clatonia, Columbus, Cortland, Craig, Crete, David City, DeWitt, Dorchester, Friend, Garrison, Greenwood, Hallam, Mead, Milford, Mynard, Nickerson, Oakland, Osceola, Plattsmouth, Plymouth, Rising City, Seward, Shelby, Staplehurst, Tekamah, Ulysses, Wahoo, Waverly, West Point and Wilber.

New Retirement, Nursing Facility Slated At York

York (AP) — The York General Manor will become a new, $1½ million retirement and nursing home complex under a plan approved Monday night by the trustees of York General Yospital, Inc.

The hospital now owns and operates the "manor."

The new facility will include the addition of 60 private rooms and will offer a complete range of attendant services, officials said.

The combination of the current facility with the new structure will be called "The Hearthstone."

The current building will be refurbished to conform with the new addition.

No federal funds will be used in the project, instead, backers plan to finance the construction with voluntary contributions and loans.

Barge Traffic Closing Set On Missouri

St. Louis (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has announced that it will begin closing the Missouri River to barge traffic Nov. 28, the day after Thanksgiving.

On that day, the Coast Guard cutter Gasconade gets into position behind the last commercial barge at Sioux City, Iowa, and begins removing buoys.

Two more river tenders will take up the job as work progresses down river 732 miles to St. Louis.

Dec. 10 the river will be closed at St. Louis, after removal of more than 1,000 buoys and electrical equipment from nearly half as many shore lights.

During the winter months the Coast Guard maintains its navagational aids, painting the buoys, checking batteries and bulbs and overhauling the ships.

Dec. 1 the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will limit the flow of water into the river over the spillway at Gavins Point Dam, in Yankton, S.D. to the minimum level required for generation of electricity.

From then until mid-March, when the river is reopened to commercial traffic, four lakes will store enough water to insure an 8½-foot channel and plenty of hydro-electric power for the coming summer.

Early Rally Cut Short; Prices Slip

NEW YORK (AP) —Profit takers cut short an early advance in the stock market Tuesday and pushed prices down a bit from Monday's four-month closing peak.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up more than five points in the early going, wound up with a 1.42 loss at 855.24.

Losers outnumbered gainers 779 to 665 among the 1,875 issues changing hands on the NYSE.

Big Board volume rose to 20.76 million shares from 17.66 million Monday.

The session's strong opening was ascribed to continuing hopes for an agreement between New York and Washington leaders on plans to stave off a financial collapse of New York City.

The market seemed to turn cautious, however, at about the time reports reached Wall Street that the White House was expected to make an announcement later in the day relating to the city's situation.

President Ford, back from an economic summit conference in France, conferred with advisers and some members of Congress about the city's money problems.

The market's recent gains had been attributed in large part to the belief that the President's position against federal help for the city was softening.

But it was evident that traders were taking some profits Tuesday as a precaution against a possible disappointment for the market on that score.

Analysts said signs of an upturn in some key short term intrest rates also contributed to the selling.

Gulf Oil was the day's most active issue, down ½ at 21¼. A 201,800-share block traded at 21.

Xerox, also active, fell 2¾ to 49⅞, touching a new low for the year of 49⅝ along the way. The stock, widely held by investing institutions, has been under pressure lately since the company announced reductions on the rental prices of four of its copiers.

In addition, IBM filed suit recently charging Xerox with infringement on some IBM photocopier patents.

IBM, which has had a sharp runup in recent weeks, dropped 4⅝ to 220⅜.

Hogs Erase Most Losses

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Tuesday was a flip-flop of Monday's trade on the Omaha livestock market, as hogs gained back most of Monday's losses, while cattle reversed Monday's upward trend.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 5,000 head.

The trade on barrows and gilts was called moderately active, and the trend was unevenly $1.00-to-$1.25 higher, with some sales as much as $1.50 higher.

The cattle run was estimated at about 4,500 head. Steers and heifers saw only moderate activity, with steers trending weak to mostly 25-to-50 cents lower, and heifers trading unevenly 25-cents to as much as $1.00 lower.

Cows trended 25-to-50 cents lower.

There were only about 300 sheep on offer. The trend on the small supply of slaughter lambs was called steady to strong, while ewes were scarce.

Cleaver Ends Seven Years In Exile; Denounced By Panthers

NEW YORK (AP) — Renouncing his revolutionary past, Eldridge Cleaver flew home from Paris Tuesday, ending seven years on the run. The former Black Panther leader, depicted as resigned to imprisonment, was immediately taken into custody by the FBI.

Cleaver's transatlantic flight, on which he had been accompanied by three FBI agents, landed in early evening at Kennedy Airport, where three more agents met the plane. In addition, U.S. Customs agents joined in forming a human barrier as some 75 reporters sought to interview the one-time black revolutionary.

Already in custody, Cleaver was placed under formal arrest after he left the plane.

In a letter to the New York Times, written before he left Paris and published Tuesday, Cleaver said:

"With all its faults, the American political system is the freest and most democratic in the world. The system needs to be improved, with democracy spread to all areas of life, particularly the economic.

"All these changes must be conducted through our established institutions and people with grievances must find political methods for obtaining redress."

Meanwhile, Cleaver's onetime Black Panther comrades disassociated themselves from him. David DuBois, editor of the party's weekly newspaper, said Cleaver no longer is a Black Panther.

"We don't want our party to be associated with Eldridge Cleaver and we don't want the work of the party to be associated with Eldridge Cleaver," DuBois added in a statement in Washington to National Public Radio.

"His return to the country is not of concern to us beyond the fact that we are interested in guaranteeing ... that he receives a fair trial."

The 39-year-old Cleaver was relaxed and good natured before taking off from Paris for home.

Cleaver joked and shook hands with one of the agents flying with him before kissing his wife, Kathleen, goodby. Laughing, he said he had received a telegram from a friend saying, "Stay away from my house."

At San Quentin Prison in California, Philip Guthrie, a spokesman for the state's parole board, said the board has a warrant out for Cleaver's arrest.

"We would have no other course than to put him into custody," Guthrie said. "There is also a federal fugitive warrant. My understanding is the feds will put him in custody. Then we will work out how to get him back to California."

His wife, who plans to come to the United States in December, was cheerful, but talked in graver tones to reporters. She said that since Cleaver fled the United States in 1968, he had hoped to return without going to prison.

"He sees that's not going to happen," she said. "He made up his mind that he'll go to prison. He feels that the situation in which he is returning is one in which he'll be clearly understood."

Cleaver himself had told reporters that his decision to return grew out of what he believes is a change in mood in the United States that will assure him a fair trial. He violated parole and has a grand jury indictment pending on assault charges growing out of an Oakland, Calif., shootout in 1966 in which he and two policemen were wounded.

Cleaver's French lawyer, Roland Dumas, who was the attorney of Pablo Picasso, said the black leader "believes he can get a fair trial. We have been in contact with the American authorities and all our dealings with them were correct and very straightforward."

At the airport Cleaver was handed a ticket by a U.S. government representative. He greeted a number of friends, and then walked to the passport control area. He was carrying a typewriter case and wore a blue French fisherman's cap.

Members Of Minorities Must Scrimp, Study Finds

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government study released Tuesday indicates that minority Americans scrimp on medical care, personal automobiles, recreation and education because they must spend a greater percentage of income than their white counterparts on food and shelter.

The findings were contained in a Commerce Department analysis performed to help businessmen cater to what the report called the minority market.

The department described the market as composed of 24.1 million blacks and 3.2 million other non-white Americans who spent an estimated $64 billion for personal consumption in 1973, making them "the ninth largest consumer market in the world."

Noting the lower income of non-whites as a group, the report showed that although they made up 11.5% of the nation's population in 1973, they accounted for a smaller share of personal spending, 8.5%.

Census Bureau figures for 1973 showed median income for white families of $12,600, compared to $7,270 for blacks. The most recent survey showed black median income of $7,800 in 1974 compared with $13,400 for whites.

The study of spending habits showed that non-whites generally spend a bigger share of their income than do whites on the general categories of food, including alcohol and tobacco; clothing, including accessories and jewelry; housing and personal care, such as toilet articles and grooming.

Food, for example, accounted for 22.4% of white personal consumption and 25.8% for non-whites. Whites devoted 29.6% of their personal expenditures to their housing and household expenses, while the percentage for non-whites was 31.1%.

Non-white spending, again expressed as a share of personal consumption expenditures, was lower than whites for transportation, medical care, personal business, recreation and private education.

Non-white spending on medical care, for example, was 6.2%, compared with 8.1% for whites. For recreation, the comparative figures were 6% for non-whites and 6.7% for whites.

The report said rising incomes of minorities has been accompanied by changing spending patterns but it's impossible to tell how much of current patterns can be explained by differing tastes among whites and non-whites.

"Although comparisons of spending between whites and minorities can be made, there is as yet no way to make current comparisons of spending of the two groups according to income," the report said.

Graceful, Grotesque Combined; 'Tango' Is A Remarkable Dance

By BILL WALLIS

The "Tango" is a remarkable dance. Its movement patterns include the graceful and grotesque combined.

Slowomir Mrozek has chosen this dance to symbolize modern man's attempts to understand and control his physical and intellectual being.

"Tango," now showing at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Experimental Theatre, is a complex allegory and a political satire in which no solution to chaos is found but surrender to brute authoritarianism.

It is dark in forecast, but not without generous touches of black humor which delight the audience while mocking mankind. Further, it is a study of political revolution.

The family becomes the microcosm for modern society. Each member offers a different guide for action and a different solution to the philosophical problems of existence.

Arthur, played by Jeff Otte, is a young medical student who is disturbed by the chaos of the world around him. His father, Stomil, led the revolution which led to society and his own family's dissolution.

Stomil's wife is unfaithful. He now spends his middle age writing puppet morality plays.

In the course of the action, Arthur's revolution to again impose order on political and moral chaos forces him to assume a Bismark-like power stance.

Betrayed by his bride-to-be, his governing power crumbles, and a Hitler or Stalin-like figure of opportunism embraces the idea of the tango as form of entertainment. It appears all those remaining — after Arthur's assassination — will follow Eddie, who has "no principles and is proud of it."

Stomil, whose purpose in life was to "shatter existing forms," is played by Paul Baker with strength and definition. His performance is matched by Jeff Otte.

Eric Sorensen is a strong Eddie, verbally and in movement. He could have been more sinister in his final moments, however.

It was, however, Jim Sudik who created the most memorable character of the evening. Aided by superb movement and make-up, his understanding of the old idealist Eugene was a touching delight. Only his character is fully grounded in reality in this production. This character is very well written, and Sudik is impressive.

Charly D. Miller, as the ambivalent matron, had good moments but did not sustain the believability of her character in all situations. Becci Dawson did not have the variety to contain the very difficult shallow selfishness and destructiveness which is seminal to her character. Susan Guthrie was irregular in her understanding of motivation. As a result, her character seemed out of place at times.

Scenically the show appeared to be too big for the experimental theatre. Sightlines were poor for several interior scenes. I felt the lighting lacked badly-needed variety and brightness, and was shadowed stage right.

Like most abusrdist drama, "Tango" does not embrace emptiness. Man goes on seeking new forms to shape reality. But the final image of the play is the grotesque-graceful tango.

It is not an easy dance, but its painful positions offer enough variety to allow the dancers to continue movement.

Thank Goodness He Didn't Try Anything Really hard

A young Lincoln father learned the hard way this week that it's probably better to leave some things alone.

The proud parents were watching their 4-year-old son practice his gymnastics, which included learning to do handstands by balancing against a wall.

The father challenged the mother, "Can you do that?"

"Of course," she replied. "Can you?"

Naturally, they had to prove it.

So, Mom jumped down on the floor and executed a graceful handstand. She waved Dad on.

Father, apparently in worse shape than he thought, lost his balance and crashed through the wall.

Surveying the rubble, the young son told his dad, "Oh-oh, that's going to cost."

The mother's immediate comments were not available.

Parts Supplier Sees Good Year

Southfield, Mich (AP) — Bendix Corp., a key supplier to the auto industry, said it expects record sales and earnings in the first quarter and full fiscal year of 1976 in the wake of a strong 1975 fiscal report.

Bendix said net income for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 was $79.8 million or $4.89 a share on revenues of $2.61 billion.

Nelson Heads Lincoln School Of Commerce

Dr. Sam Nelson, a Lincoln Public Schools employe for 18 years, is the new president of the Lincoln School of Commerce, a locally-owned business and vocational school.

Nelson was director of fedearl programs for the school system until his resignation earlier this year. He succeeds Carl Privitt who left to take a position in Texas.

Enrollment at the 92-year-old school has risen to 419 students, Nelson said, a 20% increase from last year.

Huskers Not Trying To Put Down Fiesta Bowl

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Not Vote Against Fiesta

Everything done at Nebraska's football practice Tuesday afternoon was geared to preparing for Oklahoma Saturday in Norman. Coach Tom Osborne, however, took a brief moment after the workout to comment on Monday's decision by the Cornhuskers to turn down an opportunity to play in the Fiesta Bowl.

"I'd like to have our fans know and the Fiesta Bowl people know that the vote certainly was not addressed to the Fiesta as being a minor bowl or that we were too good to go," he said.

"It was quite the opposite. This is a very competitive squad and they looked at a vote for the Fiesta Bowl as an admission that they might lose to Oklahoma, or that they weren't confident."

Osborne said that if going to the Fiesta Bowl had meant defeating Oklahoma he is sure the team would have been all for it. "The fact you had to lose to go somehow had a negative connotation," he said.

"They think they're going to win and they're putting all thier eggs in one basket and gambling they're going to win," he added.

Osborne said he was surprised at first with the vote, but now that he has thought about it he thinks they made a good choice. "Their reasons were good and at least they didn't turn it down for the wrong reasons," he said.

Fiesta Might Be Best Deal

Except for the money involved, which doesn't match the major bowls (but pays $70,000 more than the Sun Bowl), Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer believes the Fiesta might be a better deal than all the bowls. Of course, he'd just as soon not play there — or, rather he'd prefer the Orange Bowl for what it stands for — a Big Eight Conference championship.

"I've been told the Fiesta does the best job of accommodating and hosting a team than any other bowl," Switzer said. "It's a first class operation in every way and we might have a better deal than all of them."

Bill Shover, a Fiesta committee member, watched Nebraska defeat Colorado here several weeks ago and told of future plans for the bowl, which will have its fifth game this year.

"We have two enlargement projects on the drawing board for the stadium and within four years we'll have over 70,000 seats," he said. "Right now, if we could get Nebraska, we'd be able to give them just a little over 9,000 tickets. In a few years, that will be considerably higher."

With such expansion in the future, it might behoove the Big Eight Conference to attempt to work out a deal to send its runnerup to Phoenix every year — or even its champion. Phoenix is just as nice a wintertime resort as Miami.

The 1975 Fiesta game will be the richest since the first game back in 1971, mainly because of a CBS television contract. When expansion comes, it most certainly will rank right up there with the Orange, Cotton and Bryant bowls.

Orange Is A Sellout

Under NCAA rules, the Orange Bowl Committee has to set aside one-third of tickets printed for the two teams selected. That means each competing school is allotted about 12,500 tickets.

Those 25,000 tickets are the only ones remaining for the 42nd Orange Bowl classic on New Year's night. Orange Bowl ticket director Lee Hutcheson said back on Oct. 13 he had more orders from the public than can be processed. It's one of the earliest sellouts in OB history.

By contract, fans of the Big Eight champion will sit on the north side of the stadium and will receive north side tickets for the next four years.

All tickets not sold and returned to the Orange Bowl committee will be offered on a first refusal basis to the other school.

The 1976 game will generate between $675,000 and $700,000 for each team. That's triple the amount of money paid by the Orange Bowl ten years ago.

All told, eleven bowls paid the 22 competing teams in excess of $8,250,000 last season.

East has won three state championships and shared another in the last five years. Pius X has won four state titles in the last six years.

NU Game Plan Set; Matter Of Execution

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

What is the key to a Nebraska victory over Oklaoma? Tom Osborne, Cornhusker coach, says he doesn't know for sure, but that the game plan has been completed.

"There are some things I think we can do against them and our game plan is pretty well set," he said Tuesday. "I think we can do a good job, but it's a matter of execution. We need a couple more days practice to get ready.

"We'll just have to move the ball and put it in the end zone. We'll do it any way we can. We may run a lot, or again we may throw a lot. I'm sure the players are going to come off the ball and run hard."

Osborne said practices so far this week have been the same as always and added, "I'm glad that they have been. It's hard to hold all of that enthusiasm. A lot of it fades anyway after the first four or five minutes of the game and pretty soon we're just playing football."

The Husker injury situation was described as "just so-so" and Osborne said he probably wouldn't know whether some of the key injured players will be available until Friday.

Starters suffering from injuries include offensive tackle Steve Hoins, sprained ankle; defensive end Bob Martin, sprained wrist; middle guard John Lee, sprained ankle; and wingback Tom Heiser, pulled hamstring.

Osborne said monsterman Wonder Monds also isn't at full-speed, but his condition is improved. No. 2 offensive tackle Rich Costanzo has a strained knee. A lot of other players are "bumped up," Osborne said.

"A lot of weeks most of them wouldn't be out here, but they're pretty interested in playing in the game," the coach added.

"But we can't afford the luxury of taking anybody who is only 90 per cent ready because of the 48-man travel limit."

Commenting on Oklahoma, Osborne said the Sooners play awfully well in big games, and it goes without saying this will be a big game Saturday.

The Huskers haven't beaten the Sooners since the 1971 "game of the century" in Norman.

"Two years ago they had possibly the best defensive team I've seen in a long time and we probably didn't play very good offensively," Osborne remarked of the 27-0 loss in Norman.

"Last year, we moved the ball quite well, about 370 yards (actually 366), but we didn't have the ball enough," he said. "We averaged 5½ yards a carry and they averaged 5½ yards, but they had the ball 20 more plays than we had it."

Osborne, asked if he was surprised the way Missouri moved the ball on the ground against the Sooners last week, said most of it was because of Curtis Brown, who gained 153 yards on 20 carries, mostly in the second half.

"Brown probably ran as well as any back I've seen in this conference," Osborne said. "Tony Galbreath has had some good series, but not for 60 minutes. Brown did a tremendous job, a lot of his runs coming against Oklahoma's goalline defense out in the field. He just broke a lot of tackles.

"Actually, Missouri's passing game was in some ways sort of inadequate. Steve Pisarkiewicz completed only nine of 27 attempts, but he hit some big ones to their split receiver Henry Marshall.

Pisarkiewicz' completions gained 269 yards, including six to Marshall for 199 yards.

Oklahoma has been made a four-point favorite over the Huskers by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Racebook, according to a United Press International dispatch from Reno.

In other Big Eight games, Missouri and Kansas are listed even, Oklahoma State is 8 over Iowa State and Colorado is 24 over Kansas State.

In the Big Ten Conference title game to determine both the Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl teams, Ohio State is listed 7 over Michigan.

NU Praised By Switzer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Sooners continued to prepare Tuesday for Saturday's Big Eight showdown with the Cornhuskers of Nebraska in Norman.

"Nebraska is so quick and so strong, it's hard to believe," said coach Barry Switzer. "They're the most physical team we've faced in a long time. They're probably the most physical team we've faced since the last Nebraska team we played."

Switzer attributed the Cornhusker success to great individual players and an outstanding coaching staff.

"They put so much pressure on you, both offensively and defensively, and their backs try to run over you," Switzer said. "They don't try to juke you. They run kind of like Steve Owens."

Switzer emphasized the kicking game to his squad at the end of Tuesday's workout.

"In any close ballgame where either team has to kick a lot, the kicking game is always important," he explained. "Field position is the most important thing in a tight contest.

"It can be gained by one of two ways—either by sustaining a long drive or by kicking it farther than they do."

Fullback Jim Littrell is expected to start against the Cornhuskers Saturday. But second team fullback Horace Ivory, who missed the Missouri game, is also expected to see some action.

The Sooners worked behind closed doors Tuesday and will continue to do so throughout the week.

Huskers' Offense Efficient

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — The nation's top offensive producers — Ohio State, Nebraska and California — are involved in make-or-break games Saturday.

The Buckeyes, which tied Texas for the national scoring lead at 35.3 points a game in this week's NCAA Statistics Service rankings, are near the top of the heap in several categories.

Ohio State has lost only 13 turnovers all season. In addition, coach Woody Hayes' team leads the country in yards per attempted pass at 10.0, ranks third in pass completion percentage at 604 and is tops in net punting with a remarkable 44.6 yards per punt.

Ohio State meets Michigan for the Big 10 championship Saturday, while Nebraska plays Oklahoma for the Big Eight title and California tackles Stanford for a possible Rose Bowl berth, depending on the outcome of the UCLA-Southern Cal game.

Nebraska's offensive efficiency is impressive, too. The Cornhuskers have a .582 passing percentage and only three interceptions in 196 attempts. Their 18 touchdown passes is only one behind the national leaders, Stanford and New Mexico, and they are scoring at a 34.3 clip.

California, the national total offense leader, is rolling along with an average of 455.6 yards a game. The Golden Bears are averaging 225.4 yards a game rushing and 230.2 passing, representing the most balanced attack in the nation.

Hayes 'Likes' Michigan Fans

From News Wires

Columbus, Ohio — Woody Hayes, the crusty, old football coach of top-ranked Ohio State, says he enjoys the intense dislike Michigan fans show for him.

"It doesn't hurt my feelings at all. It's the greatest compliment I could have," Hayes told newsmen as Ohio State retained its No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press poll with 46 first place votes to 11 for runnerup Nebraska.

"They (the Wolverines) couldn't beat me with two Michigan coaches. So they had to come down here and take a coach (Bo Schembechler) I trained.

"And they haven't beaten me with him yet. He was my first graduate assistant at Ohio State and later a fine line coach for me," Hayes said of Schembechler.

Hayes holds a 3-2-1 edge over his former assistant going into their summit meeting Saturday for the Big Ten title and accompanying Rose Bowl berth.

Overall, Hayes is 15-8-1 against the Wolverines, who are ranked No. 4.

Hayes has won all three games in Columbus, 20-9 in 1970, 14-11 in 1972 and 12-10 last year.

Schembechler's triumphs were 24-12 in his first Michigan season in 1969 and 10-7 in 1971. The 1973 contest ended in a 10-10 tie.

Someone asked Hayes if he would play for another deadlock since that is all his team needs to go the Rose Bowl for a fourth straight season and fifth in the last six years.

"I've tried to think about everything that might come up in the game. But I won't talk about it until after the game," responded Hayes.

The Ohio State coach refused to discuss any strengths or weaknesses of the Wolverines, saying only "They're an extremely tralented team. That's the only comment I'm going to make."

Hayes did concede it's a problem preforming before the more than 100,000 fans at Ann Arbor.

"It's a disadvantage to play away from home," he said. "We'll try to overcome that."

Following tradition, Hayes drilled the 10-0-0 Buckeyes behind the locked gates of Ohio Stadium, saying, "I'm bitter. I'll stay that way."

The short-fused Ohio State coach recalled he let a writer view practice when he was at Miami Ohio, worked on a new offense for Cincinnati rival Xavier. The writer revealed the strategy. Miami lost 7-0.

"Another year we got all we needed about a fine Wisconsin team from their student newspaper. Without that information, we could not have won," contended Hayes.

The Ohio State coach was in a good, low-key mood Monday. But that may have been a front.

"I am never happy as long as a football game is coming up," he said. "Contentment is for cows. They stand there with that dumb look on their faces."

The only team other than Ohio State or Nebraska to get first place support in the AP poll was No. 3 Texas A&M, which received one No. 1 vote. Following the Aggies and No. 4 Michigan was Alabama, Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona State, Colorado and Penn State.

Arizona heads the second 10, followed by Florida, California, UCLa, Georgia, Miami of Ohio, Pittsburgh, Missouri, Arkansas and Maryland.

Ohio State, still No. 1 in the United Press International board of coaches football ratings, collected 32 first place votes this week and led second-place Nebraska, 392 points to 322.

The Cornhuskers, who meet sixth rated Oklahoma Saturday, garnered eight-first place choices.

Texas A&M held on to third, while Alabama moved up a notch to fourth.

Michigan, which challenges Ohio State for the Big Ten title Saturday, was in fifth place.

Reds' Morgan NL's MVP

New York (UPI) — Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds, a little guy who beats you in a lot of big ways, Tuesday was a landslide winner of the National League's Most Valuable Player Award and said he felt winning the trophy was good for baseball because it proved there is more to the game than just being able to swing a bat.

The 5-foot-7, 155-pound second baseman, whose brilliant all-around play sparked the Reds to the National League pennant and the World Series, received 21½ first place votes and 321½ points from the 24-member committee—two from each NL city—of the Baseball Writers Association of America to easily beat out outfielder Greg Luzinski of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Luzinski, the major league leader in runs batted in with 120, did not receive aky first place votes and was far behind with 154 points. Morgan's 167½ point margin over Luzinski is the greatest plurality in MVP history in either league. Morgan was the only player named on all 24 ballots and he's the first second baseman to gain NL MVP honors since Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn in 1949.

Outhelder Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates was third with 120 pounts and two of Morgan's teammates, catcher Johnny Bench and third baseman Pete Rose, finished fourth with fifth respectively. Bench, who won MVP awards in 1970 and 1972, had 117 points while Rose, the 1973 winner, had 114. Rose received the other two and a half first place votes as one writer split his vote between Rose and Morgan.

"I knew it would be a landslide," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson over the telephone, saying it loud enough so that Morgan, who was in the room with him, would hear it.

Joe Morgan
NL's MVP

"Aw, man," said Morgan. "I think the thing that separated me from fellows like Luzinski and (Ted) Simmons and some of the other fellas is that I can do more things than just hit. This is certainly not a knock at Luzinski, who had a great season, but I think I've shown that I can hit, run the bases and do the job in the field.

"Personally, I'm happy for baseball that I won. What I mean by that is kids should strive to be complete players. With the designated hitter rule they have now (in the American League), I hear some of the kids saying, 'well, I can hit so I guess I can be a designated hitter. But, there's more to baseball than doing just one thing."

Morgan, who has earned the reputation as baseball's most "complete player," was outstanding in every phase of the game during the past season. He batted .300 for the first time in his career, finishing fourth in the league with .327 average. He also scored 107 runs, led the league in walks with 132, hit 17 homers, drove in 94 runs, stole 67 bases and was the fielding leader among second baseman, making only 11 errors.

His style of play was so outstanding that his biggest booster was Rose, whose own aggressive style has had a lot to do with the Reds' success over the years.

"I'm a baseball fan und Joe Morgan is my favorite player," says Rose. "When you talk about the 'Big Red Machine' this year, you are talking about Joe Morgan and Johnny Bench. Joe did an unbelievable job for us, both on offense and defense, and he's in scoring position so often that I kept telling Bench that the only time he shouldn't get a run batted in is when he strikes out."

Luzinski, who missed most of the 1974 season with an injury, bounced back to become one of the most fearsome sluggers in the league. He batted .300, clubbed 34 homers and 35 doubles and finished second in the league in slugging percentage with .540 in addition to his major league-leading RBI total.

Parker, at 24 one of the bright young stars on the NL horizon, led the league in slugging percentage (.541) while batting .308. He hit 25 homers and 35 doubles, knocked in 101 runs anf was a standout defensively in right field for the NL East Division cvampions.

Bench, despite playing much of the season with an injured shoulder, drove in 110 runs and hit 28 homers to lead the Reds in both departments. Rose batted 317, scored 112 runs and had 210 hits.

Ted Summons of St. Louis finished sixth in the voting with 103 points and Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh was seventh was 69. Reliever Al Hrabosky of St. Louis was eighth—the highest ranked pitcher in the voting—followed by Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver of the New York Mets and Cy Young runnerup, Randy Jones of Cy Young, in ninth and 10th place respectively.

Steve Garvey of Los Angeles, last year's winner, finished 11th.

Doughy Baskets Will Last

"If treated with respect," Christmas decorations, wall plaques and decorator baskets of bread dough will last for years, said Mrs. E. S. Maness.

Mrs. Maness is one of nearly 200 people who helped prepare items for Tuesday's Bread and Basket Festival at Sheldon Art Gallery. The event was sponsored by the Nebraska Art Association.

"I made a lot of baskets for Christmas gifts last year and I know of only one that has broken," Mrs. Maness said. "I have one at home that I made a couple of years ago."

She explained that the bread dough items are baked for a long time and are constantly basted with eggs and water while they are baking. Also, an application of shellac helps to preserve the items.

Among the bread dough items featured at the festival were Christmas tree decorations of various sizes and designs, several wall plaques including bread dough frames containing small mirrors, and Christmas wreaths.

Other items being sold included herbs, spices, sauces and canned goods "for the gourmet cook;" denim chef aprons decorated with colorful appliques, patch pockets or lace; wicker baskets, quilted sewing bags, small, handcrafted pillows and herb wreaths and table arrangements.

Money earned from the festival will be used for the conservation of art collections at Sheldon Gallery.

Co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. Ted Andros and Mrs. Robert Burton.

Nebraska Lawmen Elect Pontine President At Confab

Norfolk (AP) — The Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Assocation wrapped up its three-day, 81st annual convention-conference Tuesday with the election of a new slate of officers.

Clay County Sheriff Lloyd Pontine was elected president of the group, succeeding Wayne County Sheriff Don Weible.

Douglas County Sheriff Ted Janing was elected first vice president.

Other officers include: Holt County Sheriff Charles Fox, second vice president; Dawes County Sheriff Lester Jensen, third vice president; Merrick County Sheriff Dan Schneiderheinz, fourth vice president, and Jefferson County Sheriff Frank Knocke was re-elected as the group's secretary-treasurer.

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas addressed the group during a Monday night banquet, telling the estimated 300 persons in attendance that law enforcement officers must seek public support for their work.

Douglas stressed the importance of public opinion in law enforcement work, and said officers should make every effort to provide the public with information concerning their work.

"We've turned the corner of public opinon, but we still have a long road ahead," Douglas told the gathering.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Washington Star columnist David Israel reported Tuesday that Notre Dame was invited to the Cotton Bowl despite losing to Pittsburgh last Saturday, but the players rejected the offer because of dissatisfaction with coach Dan Devine.

Field Scovill, selection committee chairman of the Cotton Bowl, said Tuesday Notre Dame was not invited to play in the New Year's Day classic "before or after the Pittsburgh game."

Ed Bauer, captain of the Fighting Irish, Tuesday said there is no truth to the story that the team rejected an invitation because of its dissatisfaction with Devine. Devine said the story "is a lie."

Penn State was a unanimous choice as the East's leading college football team in Division One balloting by the Lambert Trophy voting board. Pittsburgh was second with West Virginia third.

The Tangerine Bowl committee hopes to make an announcement Thursday of an opponent for Miami of Ohio. The list of possible teams includes Arkansas State (10-0), East Carolina (7-3), Tulsa (7-3), Virginia Tech (7-3), South Carlina (6-4), and Navy (6-4).

New England Patriots quarterback Jim Plunkett is back on the injured list, not because of his separated shoulder, but because of a sprained right knee, coach Chuck Fairbanks said.

Representatives of the 26 NFL teams will meet Wednesday to try and resolve the sticky question of how to stock the league's new Tampa and Seattle Franchises.

Quarterback Dan Fouts will probably be lost to the winless San Diego Chargers with a sore right shoulder when they face the unbeaten Minnesota Vikings in Minnesota Sunday.

The St. Louis Cardinals said that veteran running back Eddie Moss, tight end Jackie Smith and defensive end Ron Yankowski are doubtful for Sunday's game with the New York Jets.

The Arlington Heights, Ill., village board has denied a special-use zoning permit to Madison Square Garden Corp. to build a 76,000-seat stadium next to Arlington Park race track for use by the Chicago Bears.

Houston Oilers coach Bum Phillips says Duane Thomas' hopes of joining the team aren't likely to be fulfilled because the running back still belongs to the Washington Redskins.

Carroll Rosenbloom, 67, underwent a five-hour coronary bypass operation in Inglewood, Calif., Monday and a son of the Los Angeles Rams' owner reported "the surgery went fine."

Carl Garrigus, a former University of Miami quarterback and Canadian Football League player, died Monday of injuries suffered in an automobile accident two weeks ago.

Bond for Elmore Stephens, a member of last year's University of Kentucky football team, John Bishop, 22, and Robert Channels, 22, all being held on kidnaping and murder charges, was reduced from $200,000 to $50,000 each.

BASKETBALL

Utah Stars' owner Bill Daniels said he has $3 million on the line and is working around the clock to keep the ABA club in Salt Lake City.

The Chicago Bulls of the NBA, charging they were not paid for exhibition games last month in Utah and Virginia, have filed suits against The Utah Stars and the Virginia Squires of the ABA.

A group of black businessmen rescued the financially troubled Virginia Squires Tuesday, saving them from collapse.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien of the NBA said NBA team owners don't seem interested in a merger with the ABA.

A further check on Washington Bullets guard Dave Bing revelaed that his knee cap, believed fractured in a game Saturday against Philadelphia, is merely bruised and he will be out for only five games instead of two months, a club spokesman said.

Boston Celtics center Dave Cowens, in traction for three days to relieve back spasms, has left the hospital and was expected to resume practicing.

BASEBALL

Four Baltimore Orioles players — third baseman Brooks Robinson, Second baseman Bobby Grich, Shortstop Mark Belanger and centerfielder Paul Blair — have received Golden Glove awards for outstanding defensive play, the third consecutive year each has won the prize.

New Boston Red Sox pitcher Ferguson Jenkins said he felt "like a checker" after being traded for the second time in three years.

Minnesota Twins' president Calvin Griffith said he plans to name a new manager in about a week and Gene Mauch is among three ex-major league field bosses he is considering for the job.

The Milwaukee Brewers announced they have signed Hal Smith as bullpen coach and Harvey Kuenn as batting coach for the 1976 season.

Third baseman Pete Rose, who played a key role in the Cincinnati Reds' World Series victory, was a landslide winner in the October voting for the Hickok Award.

TENNIS

Romania's Ilie Nastase beat Jimmy Connors 7-6, 3-6, 7-5 in an exhibition match in Bucharest, Romania.

Second-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India rallied to a 4-6, 7-6, 6-4 comeback victory over Australia's Ray Ruffles in first-round play in the Indian Grand Prix tennis championships in Calcutta.

New Zealand's Onny Parun defeated unseeded Billy Freer of Johannesburg, 6-4, 6-4 in the first round of the South African Open tennis championsips.

OTHER SPORTS

Muahmmad Ali's next fight appears headed for the Dominican Republic in January or February, followed by a "big-money" bout against Ken Norton July 4 in the United States.

Three European athletes have become the first track and field competitors to be banned for life for using muscle-building anabolic steroid drugs. The names were not disclosed.

Bryant's Toughness Symbol Softened

By JOE McGUFF
Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY — Well, so much for the legend of Bear Bryant. Not too many years ago the Bear was equated with John Wayne and the U.S. Marines as a symbol of toughness.

We could envision him destroying the Barbary Pirates, defending the Alamo and damning the torpedoes to go full steam ahead. He was tall, tough-jawed and mean-eyed, the kind of man who could buckle a 250-pound lineman's knees with a hostile glance.

The Bear, we assumed, drank his whiskey straight and his football teams feared no opponent. Now the passing years, affluence and eight straight non-winning bowl appearances have softened Bryant and set him out looking for lesser opponents to conquer.

Fresh from a victory over Southern Mississippi, the Bear scored another triumph of matchmaking by adroitly avoiding a Big Eight opponent in the Sugar Bowl and lining up an engagement with Penn State, which has lost two games and has a chance to make it three Saturday against Pitt.

"I recommended it," Bryant said of the Penn State selection at a time when his defenders were claiming that he was not the sort to duck an opponent.

It was like hearing Arnold Palmer announce that he was going to start lagging up on the long putts or listening to Pete Rose explain that he wasn't going to break up double plays any more because he had his wife and kids to think of.

Commenting on the accusation that he ducked the Big Eight, Bryant said, "I've been called a lot worse than that. They are all fine people out there, but it would take those young guys 15 or 20 years before they can wear their spurs regular. We have no apologies to make to anyone. I recommended it (playing Penn State) and I want those young coaches out there to know it."

Despite saying that he had no apologies to make, Bryant attempted to justify his action by saying, "If they (the Big Eight) wanted us, why didn't they invite us to the Orange Bowl."

Oklahoma's Barry Switzer answered that point earlier when he said that the Orange Bowl officials approached him at the time the Sooners played in Miami and asked him his opinion about possible opponents for the Big Eight champion.

"I told them to go out and get the best team in the country," Switzer said. Alabama did not want to play the best available opponent and so Penn State got the call over Oklahoma or Nebraska. Joe Paterno of Penn State declared, "Alabama has one of the greatest football traditions in the country and the greatest football coach in the country." Paterno has reason to speak well of the Bear since Bryant made a $450,000 pay day available to Penn State.

In New Orleans, the reaction to the selection of Penn State has been negative. Peter Finney, sports editor of the New Orleans States-Item, said the people calling the paper have expressed a strong preference for the Big Eight runner-up.

While Bryant's decision to avoid a Big Eight opponent is out of character, it is understandable. The Tide's inability to win a bowl game is becoming a source of embarrassment. This year's Alabama team does not appear to be as strong as usual and by playing Oklahoma or Nebraska, the Tide would have run the risk of a one-sided loss.

Missouri is the only strong opponent Alabama ha met this season and the Tide lost to the Tigers, 20-7, in a game that was more one-sided than the final score indicates. Since losing to Missouri, Alabama has defeated Clemson, Vanderbilt, Mississippi, Washington, Tennessee, T.C.U., Mississippi State, L.S.U. and Southern Mississippi.

Alabama's unpleasant experiences with Big Eight opposition date back to 1968 when Missouri routed the heavily-favored Tide, 35-10 in the Gator Bowl. Colorado defeated Alabama, 47-33, the following year. Then came a 24-24 tie with Oklahoma and a 38-6 loss to Nebraska. Over the last three seasons Alabama suffered bowl losses to Texas, 17-13, and to Notre Dame by scores of 24-23 and 13-11. This year's season opener with Missouri was an unhappy reminder of the risk involved in playing the top Big Eight teams.

What Bryant needed was a bowl opponent with a big name that would not be too formidable. Penn State proved to be just the sort of team he had in mind, although a 15-14 loss to North Carolina State Nov. 8 made Penn State less attractive. If Penn State loses to Pitt Saturday the criticism of the Sugar Bowl will be even stronger.

Bryant's search for a weaker opponent is much more understandable than the Sugar Bowl's willingness to let him arrange its game. The possibility also exists that the Sugar Bowl was resentful because of the tie-up whereby the Big Eight sends its championship team to the Orange Bowl. Cliff Kern, president of the Mid-Winter Sports Association which controls the Sugar Bowl, is believed to be the man responsible for giving in to Alabama.

"He's very pliable and he was afraid of losing Alabama," a source close to the Sugar Bowl executive committee said. Kern defended the decision by saying that New Orleans would get more Eastern publicity and was able to obtain the leading team in the East. "We would have come up with a loser in the Big Eight," he said. "Which is it better to have, a winner or a runner-up?"

Despite Kern's claims, an Alabama-Penn State game is not likely to attract as much national attention as a pairing with a Big Eight team and the game does not appear to be especially attractive from a television standpoint. Except for the Orange, the major bowl schedule is not particularly good. Ohio State could be rematched with UCLA in the Rose Bowl and Georgia ranks as a mediocre attraction for the Cotton Bowl.

From the Big Eight's standpoint the most disturbing thing about the situation is that the Sugar Bowl did nothing to indicate that a conference team would not be acceptable, thereby eliminating the Big Eight's chances of making a better deal for itself.

Kern lost credibility by first denying that Bryant had influenced the selection of Penn State. He was then refuted by Bryant.

"Obviously the Sugar Bowl doesn't use the same formula that the Orange Bowl does by taking the highest rated team," Switzer declared. "It's a disappointing thing because even if Oklahoma and Nebraska had both been 10-0 coming into Saturday's game the same thing would have happened."

BIG 8 REPORT

Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State drilled for two hours early Tuesday afternoon preparing for its season finale here Saturday against Oklahoma State.

The Cyclones not only face the Cowboys while in the throes of a five-game losing streak, but also must devote considerable attention to final quarter exam week.

Coach Earle Bruce, minus starting quarterback Buddy Hardeman with a dislocated thumb, said the Cyclones will regain fullback Mike Williams, who was held out of last week's Nebraska game with a thigh bruise.

Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)— Oklahoma State concentrated on Iowa State's passing game during what Jim Stanley described as an "enthusiastic" practice session Tuesday.

"We have some older guys—seniors—who were practicing with the enthusiasm of freshmen," Stanley said. "Even though there's only one game left for them, they're giving good effort and trying to get better.

Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Three more Kansas football players were sidelined Tuesday with injuries.

Nose guard Dennis Balagna reinjured an ankle. Lloyd Sobek, a backup tight end, strained a leg muscle. And No.2 tight end Gregg Hosack suffered a leg cut in a nonfootball related accident and the wound required stitches.

Nine other Jayhawks were suffering with the flu but only two — offensive tackle Dave Scott and defensive tackle Paul Margheim — missed practice. Place kicker Dennis Kerbel and punter John O'Rear have not done any kicking this week because of injuries and coach Bud Moore lists them as doubtful for the Missouri game Saturday. Another in the doubtful category is safety Kurt Knoff, held out of contact again because of a pulled hamstring muscle.

Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State devoted much of Tuesday's 90-minute football practice to tactics designed to stop the plunges of Colorado's fullback, Tery Kunz, and the option-play wizardry of quarterback David Williams.

Coach Ellis Rainsberger expressed a hope that the 19 K-State seniors can close out their college football careers Saturday with a creditable performance against Colorado, which is ninth ranked in the nation and bound for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It's important that our players find some catalyst for ending the season on a positive note," Rainsberger said. "Hopefully it will be the seniors who provide that catalyst. We asked them to do it against Nebraska, and I hope they can do it again."

Nebraska, the nation's No. 2 team, managed only a 12-0 victory over Kansas State two Saturdays ago.

Quarterback Joe Hatcher, who missed last week's game because of some bone chips in his ankle, was moving around much better Tuesday. But Rainsberger still listed Tom Merrifield, a junior, as the No. 1 quarterback.

Trinidad Tips McCook Juco

TRINIDAD, Colo. (AP)— Trinidad Junior College handed McCook its first loss in college basketball Tuesday as Mark Taylor led the Trojans to a 93-78 victory.

Taylor scored 23 points as did McCook's Lee Johnson. Bill Wilbon of McCook had 19. Trinidad led at the half 41-35.

Fall Athletes To Be Honored

Students participating in fall sports in the five Lincoln high schools will be honored Thursday noon at the 41st annual Fall Sports Awards Luncheon at the Elks Club.

Boys in football, cross-country, tennis and gymnastics and girls in volleyball, golf and swimming will be cited.

Paul Schneider, Nebraska's head trainer, will be the guest speaker.

Patriots Sign Imhof

Foxboro, Mass. (UPI) — The New England Patriots Tuesday signed big defensive end Martin Imhof, a free agent with three years of National Football League experience, and waived rookie lineman Dave Tipton for the second time.

SeTech To Analyze Lincoln Campus Building Needs

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Milford — The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area Board voted unanimously Tuesday to analyze current, projected and potential Lincoln campus programs and building needs to suit them.

SeTech President Robert S. Eicher stressed that the go-ahead for Lincoln campus Director David Buettner contains "no suggestion" of building a new, consolidated campus.

Dr. Buettner agreed, saying the study will simply be a tool. "It's not going to answer your question for you, what your solution will be."

There's "no question" that the Lincoln educational programs are "sound," Buettner said, but they're "plagued" by space problems.

2 Classes Same Place

For example, he said two classes inadvertently occupying the same space simultaneously "shouldn't occur." The campus leases space, often unsuitable for some SeTech training, throughout Lincoln.

"It's a 10 to 15-minute trip from any program to the other," with few exceptions, Buettner said.

Thus, "sometimes we're skipping a very important part of the training program, simply because we don't have the facilities to do it" properly, he said. A teaching and training program has "got to be very concrete" instead.

Buettner called the study only a first step that will examine "manageable chunks" of where the campus is heading. He's "not assuming" the recommendation will favor new building or remodeling old ones.

Board member Lloyd Wright of Reynolds predicted, "There is going to be some very strong opposition to (building) a Lincoln Campus, in the coming Legislature." Wright added, "Especially as long as Pershing (College) is a factor."

Opposition Strong

SeTech has run into fierce opposition in trying to acquire defunct Pershing. Wright said at least one state senator would have Lincolnites go to the Beatrice campus for voctech training, instead of beefing up the Lincoln campus.

That stems from some lawmakers' objections to the Metropolitan Technical Community College competing with NU's Omaha campus, Wright said. Senators are also complaining about community college use of the local one-mill levy, said Ted Doyle of Fairbury.

Eicher said SeTech has established "credibility" for using construction tax revenues. Board Chairman Robert Wekesser of Lincoln declared SeTech has been "tight-fisted" and that there's "more responsibility in this board than there is in that state Legislature."

Most In Lincoln

Eicher said the "greatest percentage" of the building fund "is going to have to be spent in Lincoln," a position the board took earlier, pending rejection of Pershing.

Buettner said his study of needs should be ready for board consideration by March or April. He said he will involve Lincoln campus faculty and students, but the board will be responsible to make compromises or adopt alternatives, also intended to coincide with occupational requirements for graduates.

Buettner will lead the study team of board members Betty Schlaphoff of Waverly and Earl Kraft of Lincoln, the campus instruction coordinator and a staff represenative.

Space requirements, said Wekesser, should examine "some unneeded things or things we could be doing a different way," to avoid duplication of NU and SeTech Fairbury and Milford campus programs. Buettner said that's negligible.

Enough Delay

Vice Chairman G. Alan Dunlap of Milford said SeTech has "procrastinated enough" on Lincoln facilities. The board 11 months ago endorsed building a consolidated campus.

Eicher said any such decision must meet specific college-wide objectives. The board operates under governing policies it has never formally sanctioned. Goals are being developed, with the first summary development scheduled next month.

In other business, the board:

—Split informally on the practice of awarding athletic scholarships, but will decide in December on a policy to award those and academic scholarships to SeTech students.

—Heard Eicher announce the Fairbury campus will take a new nursing class in March, reversing an earlier position. He said all recent graduates have passed the state licensing exam.

—Met in closed session to discuss an accreditation team report on the Fairbury campus. Eicher said recommendations on accreditation will be made public about Dec. 9.

PR Director At SeTech Cooley Resigns Position

C.W. (Bill) Cooley, director of public information for the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area, announced his resignation Wednesday, effective Dec. 31.

Cooley, 30, of 441 N. 75th, has held the SeTech post since October 1973. He will remain in Lincoln as a corporation member and sales representative for a wholesale lighting company.

Colley was administrative assistant to former Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf before joining the SeTech staff, serving the Fairbury, Lincoln and Milford campuses and the 15-county area.

A Lincoln native, Cooley is a 1963 graduate of defunct University High School, and obtained a journalism degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1971.

Cooley serves as chairman of the Lincoln Drug Commission. Married with three children, he is a member of the Naval Reserves Seabees and the First Baptist Church Board of Deacons.

Distance Prescribed

Caracas, Venezuela (UPI) — Funeral homes in the federal district must be located at least 500 feet from hospitals.

Funds Asked For Tribute To Welsh

The new Southeast Community College Educational Foundation has kicked off a three-year, $60,000 fund drive to establish a lasting memorial to Lowell A. Welsh.

Milford campus Director Robert Klabenes, who succeeded Welsh, said the Lowell A. Welsh Fund within the foundation will pay tribute to teh man who "paved the way for postsecondary vocational education in Nebraska."

Welsh died last June. For 28 years, he headed what was formerly called the Nebraska Vocational Technical School at Milford.

Dr. Klabenes said the fund will provide student scholarships and loans. At first, he said, foundation officials hope to offer one tuition scholarship per program, or about 20 at Milford. The awards will be made based on ability and need.

"A high percentage of our enrollment," Klabenes said, consists of students whose parents are farmers. "Many of them can't qualify for typical federal financial aid programs," although they need some aid because their assets are tied up.

Klabenes, foundation president, said the board also intends to use contributions to imporve a wide variety of educational services for students.

The Lincoln business and industry drive has begun, to be followed by one in Omaha and another in outstate communities, Klabenes said. The foundation is also conducting a separate mail solicitation from about 5,000 alumni.

Other foundation directors are:

Vice President Howard R. Mannschreck, of Fairbury, former Southeast Community College (SCC) board member; Secretary-Treasurer Richard Safarik, of Lincoln, SCC business manager; Lindell Churchill, of Fort Collins, Colo., retired Milford instructor; G. Alan Dunlap, of Milford, current SCC board member; Robert S. Eicher, of Lincoln, SCC area president; Stanley Matzke Jr., of Lincoln, State Department of Administrative Services director; Robert A. Wekesser, of Lincoln, SCC board chairman; Douglas L. Curry, foundation attorney.

Foundation board members are unpaid.

Lincoln Youth Shot In Leg Reported 'Fair'

A Lincoln youth shot in the leg late Monday afternoon was reported in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday evening.

Michael Morrison, 13, of 4211 N. 11th, was shot when a companion's gun discharged after the boys had finished hunting in a field north of town. He was taken to the hospital by his mother who had come to give the group a ride home, according to sheriff's officers who investigated the incident.

Shooting Victim Listed As 'Good'

A Lincoln man who was shot accidentally at his home last Wednesday was reported in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Tuesday night.

The man, Dan Linderman, 20, of 3227 S. 40th, was shot in the abdomen, police said.

Stars In 'Voyage'

Hollywood (UPI) — Lee Grant, Faye Dunaway and Max Von Sydow will co-star in "The Voyage" for producer Stuart Rosenberg.

NU's Ross Changing Duties

By VIRGIL PARKER

Jim Ross is likely to be much busier now that he's retiring.

The veteran Nebraska football aide, who has coached the Husker freshmen the past seven years, ended his coaching duties last Friday when his 1975 NU yearlings ended the season with a perfect 5-0 record.

But Ross, who also carries the title of assistant athletic director to Bob Devaney, will take on the responsibility of managing the new Fieldhouse complex.

"The biggest question about my new duties is when they will start," Ross says, observing that the completion date on the fieldhouse has been ever-changing.

"They keep insisting that we'll get in there for some of the basketball season. And I hope they're right. A lot has been done in recent weeks, but there's still a lot left to be completed before the building can be opened."

Open In January

Ross says the projected date is "at the start of the second semester in mid-January. That, of course, is for basketball. That's the only part of the building we have a chance to finish this school year."

Swimming, gymnastics, wrestling and indoor track will also be housed in the building.

Ross is a Michigan native who first became acquainted with Devaney when both coached at Alpena, Mich., High School following World War II.

"I was born in Grosse Ile, Mich.," Ross relates. "It's a resort island in the Detroit river. My dad was the greenskeeper of the golf course. That's what I was always going to be. I helped him at the club as a youth."

But Ross went off to college (Eastern Michigan) and got a coaching job at little Newaygo High upon graduation in 1939.

His first football team rolled to a 7-1 record.

Meets His Wife

"That's where I met my wife Maurine," Jim recalls. "I was also teaching history and she was the Latin teacher in the school. I always went to see her after school to have her teach me how to pronounce the Greek and Roman names so I could prepare for my classes."

More sports, Pages 38 & 39

The Rosses have three married daughters and four grandchildren. Sharon is married to Maynard Smidt, who was on Nebraska's first Cotton Bowl team. He is in the insurance business in North Platte.

Middle daughter Peggy teaches at Clinton grade school in Lincoln. Her husband, Larry Honeycutt, is associated with the National Guard.

Youngest daughter Kathy is also a teacher — at East Junior High. Husband Jim Mischnick is an architect in Lincoln.

After his first three years of high school coaching, Ross went into the army. While serving with the 33rd Infantry Division in the South Pacific he was awarded the Bronze Star for gallantry in the Phillippines.

Returns From Service

"When I got out of the service in 1946," Ross remembers, "I was hired as the basketball coach at Alpena High and Devaney was named the football coach. We were together there eight years.

"Devaney was hired as an assistant at Michigan State when Duffy (Daugherty) got that job," Ross continues. "He told me that if he ever got a head coaching job he wanted me to go with him."

That opportunity came three years later when Devaney was named the head coach at Wyoming.

Devaney assembled an all-new staff at Wyoming. Ross and three others — Mike Corgan, John Melton and Carl Selmer — also made the move with Devaney from Wyoming to Nebraska.

"My first impression of Lincoln was our facilities," Ross admits, "We had better offices in Wyoming than in the old place (Coliseum)."

"I was also impressed with the size of the kids we inherited," Ross says. "We never had kids the size of Bob Brown, Lloyd Voss and Bill Thornton at Wyoming."

With a five-man staff in those one-platoon days, Ross coached the offensive and defensive ends plus the defensive backs.

Ross was named assistant athletic director five years later. Two more seasons went by before he took the less demanding head freshman job.

His seven frosh teams lost just two games — one the first year in 1969 and the other in '73 — with the other five clubs going unbeaten.

Players Win Games

"Coaching doesn't win the games, the kids do," Ross claims.

He laughingly says his poorest freshman coaching job was his first.

"I had Johnny Rodgers, John Dutton, Monte Johnson, Daryl White, Rich Glover, Bill Olds — and probably some other great ones I can't recall this moment — and we lost to McCook Junior College," Ross recalls.

"I think the varsity record in the past seven years shows the kind of talent I had. The main job at the freshman level is to improve their techniques and help them with the adjustment to major college football.

"One big advantage we have is that we keep the freshman program separate. They're not out there knocking heads with the varsity every day. They get a chance to mature a little before that happens."

The guiding hand of Jim Ross will be missed in directing that maturing process. But fortunately, the open door of his office won't be far away.

Stanford's Nickname Still In Controversy

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — The "Big Game" against the University of California may not be the only contest on Stanford University's gridiron this Saturday.

Another battle is shaping up between the antic-filled Stanford Band and the university administration.

The dispute is over whether the band should eliminate the last remaining vestiges associated with the university's former mascot, the Indian, which was changed in 1972 after protests from Indian students.

It was learned that the Band, which performs at Stanford football games, has been urged by Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Alan Strain to eliminate its traditional fanfare because Indian students object to its tom-tom beat, and also the band's traditional "ax" formation, a part of Stanford spirit for as long as anyone can remember.

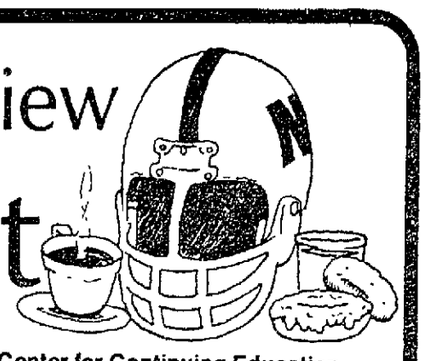

In addition, Strain said the Indian students object to the Stanford "dollies," the band's pom-pom girls, wearing feathers in their hair and using a zigzag Navajo design on the skirts of one of their uniforms.

The request from Strain to the band, which lies outside the university's control, came following Stanford's game with Washington State Oct. 25. The dollies have removed the feathers, but band leader Bill Wick said the tom-tom fanfare and "ax" formation will be part of its Big Game show, as usual.

"The band isn't going to change under pressure from the university, and we are also not going to be bought by the alumni," Wick said. And he said the band would have an additional comment on the situation during its performance Saturday.

The campus is scheduled to vote early in December on whether to change the mascot from the current "Cardinals," perhaps back to Indians. An "underground" movement selling the once-popular Indian decals has sprung up in recent weeks, and Lowell Berry, a spokesman for an alumni group, the New Founders League, says "the Indian is alive and in the hearts of a lot of alumni."

Devine, Players Deny 'Cotton' Bid Refused

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine and his players branded as "a lie" a published report that the Fighting Irish voted not to play in the Cotton Bowl because the players were upset with Devine's leadership.

The furor began Tuesday morning when David Israel, a columnist for the Washington, D.C., Star, quoted sources as saying that Notre Dame players had been offered a bid to the bowl even after losing to Pittsburgh last Saturday and that they turned it down because they were disturbed with Devine.

Cotton Bowl officials denied that a bid had ever been offered, although Notre Dame players said they voted on two different occasions concerning the bowl.

Notre Dame officials said the school was approached twice by the Cotton Bowl, once before the Pitt game and once after. Each time, they said, bowl officials wanted to learn the team's sentiment if a bid were extended.

The results of the first vote could not be learned, but the players did vote against playing the second time. Meanwhile, players and coaches reacted angrily to Israel's story which quoted the sources as saying the players voiced dissatisfaction with Devine in a closed team meeting.

"It's a lie," said Devine of the story. He said he told the squad last week there would be no meeting or talk of any bowl games.

"By Thursday it became apparent that the Cotton Bowl wanted some kind of indication as to how the players felt," Devine said. "We had a meeting which Moose Krause (athletic director) attended and the players took a vote. I do not know what the vote was. The votes were sealed and sent to Father Joyce (Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, head of the athletic board)."

But here there were also differing versions of the story. Field Scovell, selection committee chairman for the Cotton Bowl, said Notre Dame was not invited to play in the New Year's Day game "before or after the Pittsburgh game."

"We made no proposition to Notre Dame," said Scovell. "We told them that they were one of four teams we were considering and that no decision would be made until 6 p.m. (Saturday)."

Scovell watched the Pitt-Notre Dame game and then on Sunday, the Cotton Bowl selected Georgia to face the Southwest Conference champion. Had Notre Dame been invited after the loss?

"Absolutely not," said Scovell.

But, Devine said, "Even after we lost, there still appeared to be interest by the Cotton Bowl. I don't know how big, but enough so that another vote was taken.

"As far as I'm concerned, I considered it a great compliment to the coaching staff, the team and myself that the Cotton Bowl people thought I could make a bowl representative out of our club even after losing to Pittsburgh."

Ed Bauer, captain of the Irish, denied that the team had rejected any bowl bid because of Devine.

"Speaking for myself only," he said, "it was the overwhelming fact of Saturday's game that had to be the major factor in the decision we made Sunday afternoon. Taking a poll was merely to get the sentiment of the team."

Asked about reported team feelings against Coach Devine, Bauer said: "No, there's no truth to that. There's nothing to it at all. We're going to be there Saturday (for the Miami, Fla. game) and we're going to be playing in our 11th game the same way we played in our first."

Executive Board OKs Study Of Public Power

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

On a 6-3 vote, the Legislative Council's executive board Tuesday authorized a $30,000 study of major public power district rates and operations.

The review of Nebraska Public Power District and Omaha Public Power District will be undertaken by O'Brien and Gere Engineers, Inc., of Syracuse, N.Y.

Executive Board Chairman Eugene Mahoney of Omaha cautioned senators not to approve the contract in view of approaching legislative budgetary problems.

The Legislature must cut $85,000 from its current internal budget in order to institute the 3% cut proposed by Gov. J. James Exon and approved, in part, by this month's special legislative session.

"I don't know where to start cutting," Mahoney said.

Not The Place

But Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook, the sparkplug behind the public power rate survey, said that project was not the place to start slicing.

Nebraskans may rightfully protest "if the Legislature sits on its hands" and does not study the reasonableness of what may be a 30% to 50% electric rate increase for most citizens next year, Lewis said.

"We have an obligation to take a close look at that."

Mahoney warned that a legislative study of public power rates could "jeopardize" the standing of the districts in the bond market, leading to higher interest rates and additional costs for the ratepayers.

'Favorite Argument'

"I've heard that bogeyman ever since I've been down here," Lewis said. "That's one of their favorite arguments" against legislative action.

Voting with Lewis to approve the contract with the New York engineering firm were Sens. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, John Cavanaugh III of Omaha and Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia.

Joining Mahoney in dissent were Sens. Jules Burbach of Hartington and John Savage of Omaha.

Savage said the Legislature could not buy "a valid rate study" for $30,000.

Noting that the proposed study had already been scaled down to fit a $30,000 price tag, Burbach suggested that the 1976 Legislature reconsider the issue and provide additional funding, if it is needed to complete the survey.

O'Brien and Gere had placed a $48,000 price tag on the original request prepared by the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

First Phase Only

"We then tailored the request to meet the $30,000 figure," Lewis said. That funding could complete the first phase of the survey, he noted, with additional money required later if the initial results point toward the need for further study.

Kelly said the two major power districts now have debts which total $2 billion.

Any organization which is publicly owned and which incurs such obligations should be able to stand the test of legislative scrutiny, he said.

Mahoney said he will offer the board at a later date some suggestions on how to reduce legislative spending.

A reduction in staff numbers is one option.

Mahoney is encouraging savings in travel expenditures by reducing the number of legislative study committee hearings scheduled prior to next January's regular session.

Women, Young Offenders Treated Better By County

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Although the procedures for dealing with juvenile and female offenders in Lancaster County aren't perfect, they are superior to those in many other cities, agreed panel members participating in a Student Y-sponsored Women/Speak at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Tuesday.

Panel members included Karen DeBrown, volunteer coordinator for Volunteers in Probation; Pat Wall, director of St. Monica's Home for Women; Marti Barnhouse, juvenile probation officer and Diane Bloss, deputy county attorney.

In other cities, it is not unusual for juvenile offenders literally to "disappear" in the corrections system, Ms. Barnhouse said.

The effects of sex role stereotyping — and the impact it has on the treatment of female offenders — is also more prevalent in other areas, Ms. DeBrown added, explaining that judges may treat females who come before them differently than they do males.

She also said she has heard of cases in other states involving frequently unnecessary detention of juveniles.

Programs such as those offered by Volunteers in Probation (which provides help for juveniles on probation) and the Lincoln Learning Center came in for praise from panel members.

Describing Volunteers in Probation as "an attempt at a community-based way of working with kids who have problems," Ms. DeBrown went on to say that the group's program "supplements existing court services."

Ms. Barnhouse also emphasized the importance of community-based rather than training school solutions to juvenile problems.

"We are there to help the youth," she said of the juvenile court probation program, although sometimes "parents ... want us to be the punishers."

Ms. Wall said she is troubled by the fact that the female offender has "ceased to be regarded as a person with dependent needs." She said her experience has shown that women will often "escape" into pregnancy, drugs, etc. as a means of ensuring that she will be cared for.

"We need to look at their needs," she continued. "When a woman 'escapes' ... she is looking for structure, and program and direction." The fact that these are not always available should be "faced up to" by those working in corrections, she said.

Police Raiders Hit 'Bookie' Operations

Lincoln police arrested three people and seized more than $3,500 and alleged "bookie" records in raids on two Lincoln homes Monday night.

Police said they received about 25 phone calls at one home while the house was being searched. Police reports said a detective took eight bets, all for the Monday night football game.

Six of the people bet on Buffalo to beat Cincinnati, according to police reports. The other two bet on Cincinnati. Cincinnati won 33-24.

Police said they found about $3,141 at one home hidden beneath a sewing machine. The other $500 was found in a billfold of one of the arrested men.

John J. Brtek, 30, and Karen L. Brtek, 31, both of 3824 N.W. 51st, were charged with keeping a gambling room. John Brtek was also charged with being a common gambler.

Tosh Shiba, 46, of 4000 S. 56th, Apt. 388 C, was also charged with keeping a gambling room. All three pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge. Trial for all three was set for Dec. 9.

ITT Wants Out Of Parking Biz At Municipal Airport, Sort Of

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The corporate machinations of the huge International Telephone and Telegraph Co. produced befuddlement Tuesday at a meeting of the Lincoln Airport Authority.

The far-flung corporation has informed the board it wants to get out of the business of parking cars at the Lincoln airport.

"Who knows what makes a big corporation tick?" attorney Chauncey Barney responded when questioned on the move, to which the board later tentatively agreed.

Barney speculated that since ITT "has managed to blunder around and acquire such a horrible reputation" it might be trying "to become less visible."

No Connection

Specifically, what is being asked is that APCOA, Inc., now a division of ITT, be allowed to continue operating the pay parking lots at the airport, but on its own, with no connection with ITT.

Barney noted that the contract with the company provides $1 million in revenue to the authority over a 10-year period.

"It's an integral part of our financial planning," Barney said. He noted that one of the reasons the authority selected APCOA from other bidders was that the company was affiliated with ITT.

Barney said he talked with representatives of APCOA by phone and was informed the company had $11 million in assets and long-term debts of $5.5 million. "It looks like a stable operation," he said.

'Biggest, Best'

"It's by far the biggest and best parking operation in the country," he told the board.

The board tentatively agreed to the move after the company provided the authority with a written financial statement verifying information given over the phone.

On another matter the board agreed to proceed with an arrangement with a private company to install vending machines at the airport for renting baggage carts to carry luggage to and from the parking lots.

There apparently is not enough traffic at the airport to support a "skycap." Board members have been searching for a way to help airline passengers carry their luggage to and from the airport terminal.

Authority executive director Rollie Harr told the board that Smarte Carte, Inc., of White Bear Lake, Minn., has installed similar vending machines in large airports.

Experiment

Harr told the board the company may decide to install the carts in Lincoln as an experiment to see if they will pay at a smaller airport.

The board also agreed to increase from two cents to three cents the amount charged for gasoline sold to private aircraft at the airport by commercial aviation facilities such as Duncan Aviation.

Bob Duncan, owner of Duncan Aviation, opposed the move, stating that he would be forced to charge more for gasoline because of the increased tax, and that he had advertised at the lower rate.

Because of the lower rate, he argued, he has been able to double his business, which in turn doubled the revenue paid to the authority.

Discussion Set On Hemophilia

Karras Says Pro Football Popular As Sunday School

By TOM FITZPATRICK
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Cincinnati — In just a little while Alex Karras, who was sitting there now bare to his ample belly, would be putting on a shirt and tie and a yellow blazer with an ABC emblem on the pocket.

Karras would leave his room on the ninth floor of the Stouffer Inn and take a five-minute taxi ride to Riverfront Stadium.

Walking through the crowded lobby, there would be hundreds of eyes turned in Karras' direction. Chances are, the cab driver would recognize him, too.

As he entered the stadium through the press gate, fans who never saw Karras play as an all-pro defensive tackle for the Detroit Lions would wave and shout "Good luck, tonight, Alex. Say hello to Howard and Frank."

That's the way it is, now wherever the ABC Monday Night Football team travels.

Alex Karras, Howard Cosell and Frank Gifford are better known than almost any of the players whose performances they dissect. It is the age of the critic as star.

Alex Karras, the one-time toughneck from Gary, Ind., snorted as he thought about what his life has become in the past few years and what pro football has come to mean in this country.

"People have lost their minds and their souls trying to play this game or even follow it," Karras said in a loud voice.

He never talks softly. He carries a big stick, but Alex Karras does not talk softly.

"It's now on a parallel to going to Sunday School. Yeah, it's reached that status in our country. It really is interesting where our heads are.

"It's weird. It's like the old Roman Empire. To be President of the United States is no longer great, but if you could be the quarterback of the St. Louis Cardinals? That would be what your daddy really would want."

A phone rang. Karras snatched it off the cradle and shouted into the receiver.

It turned out it was a man with a business proposition. Karras listened politely. He gets a lot of business propositions these days.

He listens to them all. He knows much more about money and how it works than you might expect.

Karras hung up the phone.

"No, I don't think I'd want my boys to grow up to be defensive tackles like I was. I'd rather have them be doctors (Karras' father was one) or lawyers or anything they could have fun with physically without violence."

It's a popular misconception that Karras suddenly emerged as a full-blown character one night a couple of years ago in the ABC booth on Monday Night Football.

"I was up in Canada five years ago doing color on TV and even some play-by-play," Karras said. "I wanted to get the experience I needed."

"Then when Don Meredith went to NBC and the job with ABC was open, I called Roone Arledge (the ABC sports producer). I took Roone out to lunch.

"I wined and dined the hell out of him. I think the lunch cost $68 and I paid the tab. I thought I had the job tied up.

"But there was a problem. I had been running a little betting sheet. At least Pete Rozelle and the owners thought it was a betting sheet. I called it "Alex Karras: Pro in the Know."

"So they told Roone I was too controversial and that I had a very bad image with the public. So Rozelle told ABC, or at least suggested, that they lay off me.

"'We want NFL football to have as high a caliber as possible and we just don't think a man like Karras fits in,' they said."

Karras recalled the story without apparent bitterness. "So they gave the job to Fred Williamson, another guy from Gary who I've known all my life. I never knew how he did.

"I never watched the show because I was doing some other things, but when Fred got fired they brought me in for a shot as a guest.

"Hell, I'd been talking in front of people since 1958. I'd been acting since 1966. I did two movies. I did the Daniel Boone series. I did maybe 20 shots on the Johnny Carson show. I had learned my business."

Karras was as close to being an instant success as anyone could expect. He was funny. He was irreverent. He knew how to handle Howard Cosell without growing surly as Williamson had done.

He didn't possess the homespun Western charm on Dandy Don, but he had something else that was equally important.

He talked tough and funny and sometimes a little poignantly. He was a student of the human condition. And even more; Karras displayed a brilliant football mind.

"What do I do before a game?" Karras said now, restating the question. He laughed out loud.

"I don't do anything. I know the rosters of the teams. I just figure out who should win and why and for the rest I play it loose and hope I can come up with some fun. Hopefully, I can always have some funny things to say.

"Our cameramen will get some great visual shots for us along the sidelines. Remember, this is a game that lends itself to comedy . . . or tragedy and most times both of them.

"There's no clash up there in that booth among Howard and Frank and me. Howard has a great ego. But so does Frank. And so do I.

"If we didn't, we wouldn't be in this business. Hell, we all love notoriety."

On a table near Karras' bed there was one of those football flip cards made of hard cardboard which Karras had apparently been using to learn the numbers of the players in the coming game.

It would be the Buffalo Bills against the Cincinnati Bengals and Karras had already figured out the probable result before leaving his hotel room.

"The way it looks," Karras said, "Cincinnati will run all over Buffalo. Better yet, they'll pass all over them.

"Buffalo is hurting. They have no defense. They had to depend on O. J. Simpson and Joe Ferguson. They have to control the ball.

"But it will be a good game for the fans to watch. Hell, O. J. is as good a back as I've seen. I don't think he's any better than Jimmy Brown or Hugh McElhenny or Joe Perry were. But he's terrific."

Karras halted and then he said one of those things that always gets him into hot water with the NFL establishment.

"There are so many more teams now," Karras said. "The damn talent's depleted. I don't give a (expletive) what anybody says. The teams aren't as good as they used to be when I was playing."

Ex-ISU Standout Hoppmann Killed

Stuart, Fla. (UPI) — Dave Hoppmann, an all-America running back at Iowa State in the early 1960s, was killed in a traffic accident Monday near this southern Florida community, authorities reported Tuesday.

Investigators said Hoppmann's car was hit from behind by a semi-trailer truck on the Florida turnpike about 3½ miles south of Stuart in Martin County. Hoppmann, 35, was dead at the scene, authorities said.

Hoppmann had been living in Winter Park.

The report on the accident said Hoppmann's southbound car crashed into a school bus parked along the highway.

(Ten persons on the bus, carrying students from the Indian River Academy in Fort Pierce, were injured but only one required hospitalization.

Bus driver James S. Pembleton said he parked the vehicle so he could adjust the windshield wipers.

The truck driver — Willie M. Jones of Greenville, S.C. — was charged with reckless driving and other charges were pending, authorities said.

Hoppmann played tailback at Iowa State under coach Clay Stapleton from 1960-62 and set several ISU offensive records.

He was an all-Big Eight Conference selection in 1961 and 1962 and was named to numerous all-American teams in those two seasons.

Hoppmann, the key man in Stapleton's single-wing offense, played in three all-star games after the 1962 season — the Blue-Gray game, the Senior Bowl and the All-American game.

He led the nation in total offense in 1961.

When Hoppmann left Iowa State in 1962 he had established records for most rushes in one season (229), rushing yards in one game (271), total offense in one game (32), rushing yards in one season (920) and career rushing yards (2,562).

The 271 yards rushing in one game, set in a 31-7 victory over Kansas State in 1961, is still an Iowa State record.

Hoppmann, a 6-1, 195-pounder, played in the Canadian Football League for two years after leaving Iowa State and then spent one season with the New York Giants of the National Football League.

He also played for Orlando in the Continental League.

In high school, Hoppmann starred in football and basketball in Madison, Wis.

Survivors include his widow, Arlene; a son, Brad, 2, and his mother, Doris Hoppmann of Madison, Wis.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in Winter Park.

Bruce To Fight For Job

"You always hear rumors when a team is in trouble," Bruce said after his club fell 52-0 to second-rated Nebraska.

"But I'll say right now, I'm going to fight to keep my job."

Bruce was questioned about rumors that he may be on shaky ground because of the Cyclones' late tailspin — five straight losses after a 4-1 start.

"I'm a football coach. I've worked damn hard here.

"We are trying to build a solid program and have a lot of young kids — there aren't many seniors on this squad.

"I've worked too hard to give it up without a fight."

Bruce is on the third year of a five-year contract.

Iowa State closes its season Saturday at home against Oklahoma State and needs a victory to escape a third straight 4-7 season under Bruce.

"As far as I know, there is no pressure to remove Earle," said ISU athletic director Lou McCullough.

"That would have to come from our president W. Robert Parks and the athletic council.

"The are the powers that be at Iowa State. I've just got one of the 16 votes on the athletic council."

Bruce came to Iowa State in 1973 from Tampa and replaced Johnny Majors, who took the head job at Pittsburgh.

If Bruce is fired, it will cost the school about $50,000 to pay off the remaining two years of his contract.

Injuries, especially to quarterback Buddy Hardeman, have hurt the Cyclones since Big Eight Conference play opened six weeks ago.

Special Ed Advisors For Broader Programs

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Special Education Advisory Council indicated support Tuesday for broadened special education programs which would serve the handicapped from birth to age 21.

Council members said handicapped people under age 5 and over age 18 need the programs but only receive them now if they are funded locally.

"What we need is early identification and early programs," former State Sen. David Stahmer, initiator of the state special education bill (LB403), in 1973, told the council.

State law makes handicapped persons between 5 and 18 years old eligible for state-aided programs. Schools may offer programs for preschoolers and 18- to 21-year-olds but must finance them themselves.

The advisory council asked the State Department of Education's staff to report on state and federal aid requirements and possible sources of funding before the council makes a recommendation to the State Board of Education.

The council was established to identify and recommend solutions to problems with the implementation of LB403.

Some council members said pre-school programs should remain locally supported.

Council co-chairman Don Stroh, Millard school superintendent, said state-supported preschool programs for the handicapped might prompt parents of nonhandicapped children to seek state-financed preschool education for them.

An amendment is needed to allow preschool programs for the handicapped without requiring them for all children, he said.

In other action, the council directed the Education Department's staff to prepare a proposal for increasing budget accuracy by basing state special education payments on the previous year's expenses.

Payments now are made during the year based on estimates from the school districts.

If a district underestimates its expenses, the necessary state funds will be unavailable, council members said. In addition, when handicapped students transfer to other districts, the state funds do not go with them, they said.

The council also directed the department's staff to list alternatives to the present method of paying for initial diagnosis of handicapped children.

State law requires all special education students to have been diagnosed as handicapped. School districts are required to pay for that initial testing.

Stroh said diagnosis is part of each distgrict's special education program and so should be paid for by the state.

Stahmer said diagnosising everyone at state expense "would be so expensive financially that we couldn't support it." He suggested that the state only pay for the initial testing of children accepted into a special education program.

The council also voted to recommend to State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell that the Legislature, the attorney general, those working on a Beatrice State Home settlement and others advise it as it discusses special education probelms.

Governor To Shift Funds For Retarded

Gov. J.J. Exon said Tuesday he would shift funds in the Department of Public Institutions so that pre-school services for the mentally retarded would not have to be cut.

He said the funds could be shifted without a deficit appropriation.

Exon reaffirmed his position that community mental retardation programs should live within their budgets.

He said the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation was able to cut 25 staff members without reducing services.

Exon also praised the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation for taking similar actions to "bring their costs within appropriated amounts."

"I am certainly pleased to see that the elected county commissioners of this state are putting forth strong effort to bring these programs into control and within existing resources," the governor said.

"I must re-emphasize, however, that I cannot agree to any deficit spending in this area now."

Too Clean?

Pittsburgh (AP) — Federal clean air standards could make it practically impossible for industry to expand in areas where it now operates, according to U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar B. Speer.

Henshaw New Clerk

Washington (UPI) — Edmund "Ted" Henshaw Jr. was named clerk of the House to succeed W. Pat Jennings, who joined the Slurry Transport Association.

Baldwin's Play Heads Festival

A play by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln drama professor will headline a bicentennial festival of American plays in New York City.

Prof. Joseph Baldwin's play, "A Deed from the King of Spain," will begin the Bicentennial Festival of American Plays with American Actors at the American Center for Stanislavski Theatre Art (ACSTA).

This is the second year the ACSTA has included Baldwin's play in its repertoire. Last year's performance was acclaimed by the critics, with the New York Times' Howard Thompson writing the play "simmers like a Chekhovian chamber work, then boils into a darkly sardonic symphony."

The play will be presented Nov. 21-23, 28-30, Dec. 5-7, 12-14, and 19-21 in the Greenwich Mews Theatre, at 141 W. 13th. St.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

Exon 'Shocked' At Deaths Of Youths On State Roads

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday said he is shocked and concerned that 56% of the fatal accidents in Nebraska since Oct. 1 have involved persons between the ages of 16 and 25.

He said he has ordered the governor's Highway Safety Advisory Committee "to initiate plans that will effectively stop the senseless killing of our Nebraska youth."

Exon said, "Rural Nebraska roads, young drivers not wearing safety belts, speeding and continued alcohol involvement are the major contributing factors to these shocking statistics."

He requested that all young persons in Nebraska exercise greater diligence and drive responsibly.

The advisory committee is composed of officials from agencies responsible for the day-today operation of Nebraska's highway safety programs.

Ex-State Treasurer Heintze Dies

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services for former State Treasurer Frank B. Heintze will be held here Thursday afternoon.

Heintze, 80, died Monday in a local hospital after suffering a heart attack at his home, according to a family spokesman. However, the spokesman said Heintze had been ill for several weeks.

An Omaha native, Heintze worked in the state treasurer's office from 1943 to 1955, spending eight years as deputy state treasurer and four years as state treasurer.

Survivors include his widow, Beatrice, two daughters, one brother, 11 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Burial will be in the Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Hayes Brushes Off Newsmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State coach Woody Hayes might have set a record for brevity Tuesday night after practice when he brushed off waiting newsmen in one minute and 37 seconds.

That's all it took Hayes to tell a small group of writers, including one who came from Chicago, what the top-rated Buckeyes worked on Tuesday in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten title clash with No. 5 Michigan.

Hayes, who has held shorter conferences following infrequent losses, usually is more talkative at the prearranged meetings during Michigan week.

"Defensively, we worked on almost every phase," Hayes said. He then ran down those specific phases: running, passing, goal line and punt return. "Everything but kickoff returns," he said.

Woody then routinely went over what the offense had worked on, no big surprises there either, adding that he kept the No. 1 offensive unit a little longer than usual to practice field goals.

Tom Klaban booted four field goals in last year's 12-10 Bucks victory over the Wolverines.

"We'll work about an hour and a half tomorrow," said Hayes, who then turned and walked away, leaving the small gathering standing in the dimly lit hallway outside the Buckeyes training quarters.

Although Hayes had little or nothing to say in person, he did comment on the magnitude of the nationally televised game on Ohio State's telephone "sports line."

"This is the ultimate for the entire season," Hayes told interviewer Steve Snapp, OSU assistant sports information director. "The game we need to set the whole thing off. It means an extreme amount to each one of the players and for the team, it means everything."

For the second consecutive day, the Buckeyes practiced under sunny skies with temperatures in the mid 60s.

The fence at the open end of the giant horseshoe Ohio Stadium was covered with canvas and extra university police were on duty to keep out spectators.

Michigan Intensity Different

Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan adhered to its normal practice schedule Tuesday, holding a heavy two-hour workout in preparation for Saturday's Big Ten showdown with Ohio State. But the players admitted a difference in intensity.

Junior fullback Rob Lytle explained "it's a week where everybody is really psyched. Players are psyched. Coaches are psyched. It actually makes it a lot of fun because everything seems to come together."

The game, which will decide the league championship for the seventh time in eight years, is definitely emotional but coach Bo Schmebechler discounts the need for added incentive.

"You don't need any extra incentive for this game," he said, "because it's Michigan and Ohio State and that's all you really need."

Schembechler even played down the home field advantage, which has been a factor since 1968, the year before he took over.

"Neither team has been able to win on the road," he said, "but we have played two pretty good games down there and they have played well up here. So I'm not sure the home field is much of an advantage in a game this big."

He did say, however, the home field would mean something for the Michigan seniors, since it would be their last home game.

Barnes On Trial

Providence, R.I. (AP) — Lawrence Ketvirtis took the stand in U.S. District Court Tuesday and told his story of being struck with a tire iron by Marvin Barnes, a Providence College All-American who is now with the American Basketball Association Spirits of St. Louis.

UNO AD Agrees To Coach

Omaha (UPI) — The boss-employe relationship between Nebraska-Omaha athletic director Don Leahy and head football coach Bill Danenhauer will be reversed next year, at least on the football field.

Danenhauer said Tuesday Leahy has agreed to be an assistant coach coordinating the offensive unit starting with spring practice. Leahy will retain his position as athletic director.

"We don't have the money in the budget to hire somebody else, and it definitely looks like we're not going to get any money for this," Danenhauer said.

"We've asked for the money many times, but have always been turned down."

Danenhauer said "every body we're playing has at least one more full time assistant than we do, so we're undermanned to begin with."

Leahy, a former standout quarterback at Marquette University, was head football coach at Creighton Prep in Omaha for 17 years. At one time, he also was an assistant coach with the Omaha Mustangs.

"It's really great we have a man who is qualified as he is to give time to football coaching," Danenhauer said. "Mr. Leahy has been highly successful as a football coach."

Danenhauer said his budget allows for four full time assistant coaches, two graduate assistants and himself.

"We are all teachers as well," Danenhauer said. "We have our classroom duties as well as our coaching duties. Our problem is the money type of thing."

UNO chancellor Ronald Roskens approved the placing of Leahy as a football assistant.

The Mavericks closed their 1975 campaign Saturday, losing to Jackson State University, 31-13. It was the ninth straight loss for UNO and game them a 2-9 season record.

Napoles To Fight

Mexico City (UPI) — World welterweight champion Jose "Mantequilla' Napoles will defend his title against Britain's John Stracey on Dec. 6, a spokesman for promoter Jaime De Haro announced Tuesday.

OU's Washington Wins Big 8 Honor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joe Washington's magic moves paid off again.

The Oklahoma flash turned them on Saturday, breaking loose on a fourth-and-one situation for a 71-yard run for a touchdown that gave him a chance for a two-point conversion.

Washington, with a tremendous effort, fell over the goal line after he was hit for the tying and winning points, and Oklahoma nipped Missouri 28-27.

Washington's big effort, coming with four minutes, 20 seconds left in the game, also was good for Big Eight Conference offensive football player of the week honors Monday. The vote by a panel of sports writers was unanimous.

"Washington's run was the difference," sighed Missouri Coach Al Onofrio. "That's why he is a great back. He can break a game anytime."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said of Washington:

"Joe might not have the greatest statistics of the year but there isn't a greater back in football this year. He produced a great play in a clutch situation."

Switzer gave the game ball to Washington.

Also nominated were Charlie Weatherbie of Oklahoma State, Jim Wingender of Iowa State, Curtis Craig of Nebraska, Nolan Cromwell of Kansas, David Williams of Colorado and Curtis Brown and Henry Marshall, both of Missouri.

K-State Varsity Rips Alumni

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State basketball fans got a preview of coming attractions Monday night when the varsity defeated an alumni contingent 105-70 in their second annual pre-season game.

The game was close the first 13 minutes, but the varsity then hit 10 straight points to take a 38-21 lead with 5:13 remaining in the first half.

Varsity guards Chuckie Williams and Mike Evans scored 12 points each and center Carl Gerlach had 10 points and 10 rebounds.

Forward Ernie Kusnyer of Manhattan led the alumni with 17 points.

A favorite with the crowd was 68-year-old Kermit Silverwood of Tampa, Fla., who played for the Wildcats in 1928-30.

He entered the game in the second half and hit two straight two-hand set shots from 20 feet out.

Alliance Parents Pleased

Alliance (AP) — A group of parents said they were satisfied with explanations by Alliance coaches Monday night of how they determine playing time for athletes on athletic teams.

Brad Smith, head football coach at Alliance High, told the parents it was the opinion of the coaches for whom he spoke that winning is the important aspect, followed closely by participation.

The session was called by the Alliance Board of Education after about 20 parents signed a petition last week urging the board to look into the matter.

Some of the parents wanted to know why their children weren't getting in games.

Smith said the coaches rate players on talent, desire, hustle and attendance at practice sessions.

The discussion centered primarily on lower level teams, such as junior high, freshmen, reserve squads and junior varsity.

Kings Begin Omaha Slate

Omaha — Civic Auditorium will be the battleground on Friday for the first meeting between the Kansas City Kings and Chicago Bulls this season.

After being eliminated by Chicago in the first round of last year's playoffs in six games, Kansas City is looking for revenge.

Although the Kings won the nine game series five to four, Chicago proved the stronger team in post season play.

BY FIRESTONE
1. JUST LISTED:
Darling 2 bedroom, formal dining room, woodburning fireplace, central air, garage, finished basement. South location and in low 20's.
2. LOW 30's:
Price tag on this like new split-foyer. The condition is the best, and it has so much to offer. Central air, finished lower level, nicely draped and papered and a beautiful deck overlooking the landscaped yard.
3. QUALITY!
If you would like to find out exactly what that word really means in new home construction, then see us. We're experts when it comes to the best and we offer complete service after the sale.
4. ACREAGES:
We presently have two very fine acreages listed and both have lots to offer. Both have excellent water, and are completely fenced. One has a double wide modular home and an enormous heated warehouse, while the other has a lovely brick home and a horse barn. These won't last long!
5. CHANCE OF A LIFETIME:
Experience the ultimate in leisure living in this tastefully decorated three bedroom home featuring, among many extras, fantastic family room inside and tremendous covered deck outside. Reasonably priced, it awaits your approval.
6. LETS GO SOUTH:
To this beautiful three bedroom, better than new home. The interior decorating and finished basement will take your breath away. The fenced back yard and landscaping are two more features that are outstanding.

Inventory Of Possessions Helps Support Loss Claim

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — If someone breaks into your house and steals the silverware, will your insurance policy pay you what it's worth? The answer depends on your policy — and on your proof of what the silver cost.

Jane Bryant Quinn

Let's start with proof, since that's what people most often neglect. Not many families keep lists of what their homes contain, even though they read over and over again that it's a good idea. Should they suffer a loss (from theft, fire or vandalism), they have to construct their possessions from memory, guess when they were bought, and how much was paid.

If the insurance company thinks your estimates are too high, and refuses to accept them, you have little recourse. Without proof, you pretty much have to go along with what the insurer thinks.

To make sure you get your money's worth out of your fire-and-theft insurance, back up the policy with an inventory of your possessions. Take pad and pencil, and an afternoon. Go through every room in the house, writing down precisely what's in it (including make and model), when you bought it and about what it cost. Don't forget the closets and cupboards.

Keep the list in a fireproof strongbox.

If you have a loss, this inventory list shows the insurance company that you aren't suddenly coming up with inflated estimates of what your things were worth. But don't try to steal a march on the company by jacking the price of everything up 10%. If the insurer thinks your estimates are too high for a person of your means he'll knock them down, regardless of your list.

Sales Slips Helpful

For this reason, it's helpful to have sales slips (and snapshots) for items of particular value, like furniture and appliances. Any heirlooms or purchases of unusual worth must be separately appraised if you hope to recover anything approaching their value. A store in town will likely do appraisals, or at least be able to tell you where to get them done. Keep the sales slips and appraisals along with your inventory list.

If anything is stolen, report it immediately to the police, and put the same value on it that you'll report to the insurance company (they'll likely check the report). Small losses you'll have to cover yourself. You policy probably carries at least a $50 deductible and perhaps one that's much higher.

Even when the loss is fully covered you generally won't get the full replacement value of the stolen goods. The insurance company estimates what the stolen item would cost today, and reduces that amount for every year you owned it. To replace it, you'll have to ante up more money of your own. Some companies sell policies with full-replacement clauses for fairly new items, but they're more expensive than regular policies.

You usually don't buy a theft policy all by itself. It comes as part of your homeowner's, renter's, or condominium-owner's policy. You're covered up to a specific ceiling mentioned in the policy; more coverage costs more money.

Policies typically cover you for all losses from your home and garage, including the theft of rented items; the losses of your guests; losses away from home up to a specific ceiling, and thefts from a locked car. Typical limits on recovery are $500 for furs, $500 for jewelry, $100 for cash and $50 for securities. Each policy has its own special wrinkles, however, and you should read yours to see if it's really what you want.

Higher Deductibles

You can lower the cost of a policy by taking higher deductibles. A $100 deductible may save you 10% in premiums, and a $500 deductible, 20%. You may also be able to lower costs — and perhaps improve coverage — by switching insurance companies. Ask your neighbors about their coverage, to see if it's better than yours. If your policy turns out to be the best on the block, make sure people know about it. You find good insurance companies mainly by word of mouth.

If you want more insurance for special items, the company will write it for you. Expensive furs and jewelry, for example, are typically covered by a "floater" policy. Tell your insurance agent what possessions or collections you have of special value, to find out whether they're covered or not. No sense letting yourself in for a nasty surprise.

If you live in a high-crime area and can't get private insurance, investigate federal coverage. Write to Federal Crime Insurance, P.O. Box 41033, Washington, D.C. 20014, or call toll-free 800-638-8780, to find out if your state is part of the crime-insurance program, and if so who sells it.

You can get residential coverage up to $10,000. If it's any consolation, you're also covered if you're mugged. The government requires a deadbolt lock on your door, but won't cancel your insurance or raise your rates if you're robbed again and again. Rates are higher than normal, but for the protection it's a small price to pay.

Gas Rate Hikes Told By Cengas

By United Press International

Natural gas rates will increase beginning Dec. 27 for 37 Cengas-served Nebraska communities supplied by Northern Natural Gas Co., Cengas announced Tuesday.

C. L. Wilcox, Lincoln division manager of Cengas, a division of Central Telephone & Utilities Corp., Lincoln, said the increase will amount to about 40 cents per month for the average residential heating customer.

He said Northern Natural filed evidence with the Federal Power Commission permitting it to increase rates to recovery the higher field cost of gas.

Pending before the commission is another Northern Natural rate application which resulted in an increase, subject to reduction and refund, on Oct. 27, 1974. The initial hearing will be Feb. 3, Wilcox said.

In addition to Lincoln, other communities affected by the Northern Natural rate increase are Adams, Arlington, Beatrice, Lee, Beemer, Blair, Clatonia, Columbus, Cortland, Craig, Crete, David City, DeWitt, Dorchester, Friend, Garrison, Greenwood, Hallam, Mead, Milford, Mynard, Nickerson, Oakland, Osceola, Plattsmouth, Plymouth, Rising City, Seward, Shelby, Staplehurst, Tekamah, Ulysses, Wahoo, Waverly, West Point and Wilber.

New Retirement, Nursing Facility Slated At York

York (AP) — The York General Manor will become a new, $1½ million retirement and nursing home complex under a plan approved Monday night by the trustees of York General Yospital, Inc.

The hospital now owns and operates the "manor."

The new facility will include the addition of 60 private rooms and will offer a complete range of attendant services, officials said.

The combination of the current facility with the new structure will be called "The Hearthstone."

The current building will be refurbished to conform with the new addition.

No federal funds will be used in the project, instead, backers plan to finance the construction with voluntary contributions and loans.

Barge Traffic Closing Set On Missouri

St. Louis (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has announced that it will begin closing the Missouri River to barge traffic Nov. 28, the day after Thanksgiving.

On that day, the Coast Guard cutter Gasconade gets into position behind the last commercial barge at Sioux City, Iowa, and begins removing buoys.

Two more river tenders will take up the job as work progresses down river 732 miles to St. Louis.

Dec. 10 the river will be closed at St. Louis, after removal of more than 1,000 buoys and electrical equipment from nearly half as many shore lights.

During the winter months the Coast Guard maintains its navagational aids, painting the buoys, checking batteries and bulbs and overhauling the ships.

Dec. 1 the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will limit the flow of water into the river over the spillway at Gavins Point Dam, in Yankton, S.D. to the minimum level required for generation of electricity.

From then until mid-March, when the river is reopened to commercial traffic, four lakes will store enough water to insure an 8½-foot channel and plenty of hydro-electric power for the coming summer.

Early Rally Cut Short; Prices Slip

NEW YORK (AP) —Profit takers cut short an early advance in the stock market Tuesday and pushed prices down a bit from Monday's four-month closing peak.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up more than five points in the early going, wound up with a 1.42 loss at 855.24.

Losers outnumbered gainers 779 to 665 among the 1,875 issues changing hands on the NYSE.

Big Board volume rose to 20.76 million shares from 17.66 million Monday.

The session's strong opening was ascribed to continuing hopes for an agreement between New York and Washington leaders on plans to stave off a financial collapse of New York City.

The market seemed to turn cautious, however, at about the time reports reached Wall Street that the White House was expected to make an announcement later in the day relating to the city's situation.

President Ford, back from an economic summit conference in France, conferred with advisers and some members of Congress about the city's money problems.

The market's recent gains had been attributed in large part to the belief that the President's position against federal help for the city was softening.

But it was evident that traders were taking some profits Tuesday as a precaution against a possible disappointment for the market on that score.

Analysts said signs of an upturn in some key short term intrest rates also contributed to the selling.

Gulf Oil was the day's most active issue, down ½ at 21¼. A 201,800-share block traded at 21.

Xerox, also active, fell 2¾ to 49⅞, touching a new low for the year of 49⅝ along the way. The stock, widely held by investing institutions, has been under pressure lately since the company announced reductions on the rental prices of four of its copiers.

In addition, IBM filed suit recently charging Xerox with infringement on some IBM photocopier patents.

IBM, which has had a sharp runup in recent weeks, dropped 4⅝ to 220⅜.

Hogs Erase Most Losses

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Tuesday was a flip-flop of Monday's trade on the Omaha livestock market, as hogs gained back most of Monday's losses, while cattle reversed Monday's upward trend.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 5,000 head.

The trade on barrows and gilts was called moderately active, and the trend was unevenly $1.00-to-$1.25 higher, with some sales as much as $1.50 higher.

The cattle run was estimated at about 4,500 head. Steers and heifers saw only moderate activity, with steers trending weak to mostly 25-to-50 cents lower, and heifers trading unevenly 25-cents to as much as $1.00 lower.

Cows trended 25-to-50 cents lower.

There were only about 300 sheep on offer. The trend on the small supply of slaughter lambs was called steady to strong, while ewes were scarce.

Soybeans Drop Nearly 16 Cents

Chicago (AP) — Soybean futures tumbled nearly 16 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, setting new lows in all options.

Soybean oil fell the allowable limit for one session, 100 points, or 1 cent a pound. Oil set several contract lows. New crop wheat also set new contract lows.

Wheat futures were down 10 cents a bushel, corn more than 4 and oats nearly 2. Soybean meal fell $3 a ton.

Few things in life worry a Volkswagen.
Gas shortage worry a Volkswagen?
Not while the VW Rabbit gets about 38 MPG highway and 24 MPG city.
In fact, if every car used as little gas as a Rabbit there wouldn't be any threat of a gas shortage to begin with.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Wednesday

"I am a Pisces and I don't write fan letters. But I admire your skills, knowledge and, most of all, the way you display the courage of your convictions. Do you think I am a wonderful Pisces for saying these things?" — Ray Grossman, Pomona, N.Y. Response: I really cannot say how "wonderful" you are, but your taste obviously is excellent. I will put down a plus mark for Pisces — in your name.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on relatives, close neighbors, short trips and special messages. Older individual is willing to share knowledge. Be receptive. Don't permit false pride to block progress. Pet theory may take a beating. Maintain sense of humor. It will be a wonderful ally!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight on earning power and potential. You come to fork in road — choice of ultimate direction is your own. Benefits shown if you release the past — and take cold plunge into future. Aries, Libra could be on picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress original approach. Highlight greater independence. Imprint personality. Be obvious, direct, communicative. Say what you mean-mean what you say. Leo, Aquarius persons are fascinated and come to your aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You delve deep, into past, into areas in mystery, into clandestine affairs. You visit one confined to home, hospital. You are asked to contribute to "a cause." You're also asked to represent group, club, organization "before the media." What's happening!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight entertainment, versatility. Expand horizons. Don't take yourself too seriously. Laughing at your own foibles now will win allies. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are involved. A wish is fulfilled. Romance and creative endeavors could make this a red-letter day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home life, family, comforts, sense of well being — these are highlighted and, perhaps, challenged. Accent on promotion, career, standing in community. Now you can contact professional superior with expectation of good results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Travel emphasized. Movement, analysis, curiosity all play key roles. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. You find out where you can get best results, how to get there, who to see. Plainly, puzzle pieces can fall into place and you can profit as result.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money, costs, luxury items, making the home more pleasant, convenient and beautiful — these are featured. You get "lucky break." Means timing is likely to be on target. Tax problems, write-offs are matters to be considered, now more so than in recent past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on what is legal or otherwise. Special consultation is in store with partner, mate. You find that, in the ultimate, you must face yourself. No one is going to solve anything that you cannot resolve for yourself. Message becomes increasingly clear. Pisces is involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Achievement is featured. You know what should be done — and you have tools, materials with which to accomplish goal. Know it and get busy. Steady pace will win. Another Capricorn — and a Cancer — could play key roles. Keep diet, health resolutions. Avoid extremes. You'll understand!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Good lunar aspect coincides now with journey, education, publication, language. Your ability to gain "rare insights is enhanced. You finish a project and get credit which has been overdue. Aries, Libra persons could be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Roadblock to progress is removed. You get green light to progress. Transaction, leading to profit and security, can be completed. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Home improvements are indicated, too.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you hae suffered disappointments, disillusionment — but emotional bruises are going to be healed. You're coming back — you'll be on your feet, stronger in many ways, including financial. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. A fresh start is shown for you in December.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Doughy Baskets Will Last

"If treated with respect," Christmas decorations, wall plaques and decorator baskets of bread dough will last for years, said Mrs. E. S. Maness.

Mrs. Maness is one of nearly 200 people who helped prepare items for Tuesday's Bread and Basket Festival at Sheldon Art Gallery. The event was sponsored by the Nebraska Art Association.

"I made a lot of baskets for Christmas gifts last year and I know of only one that has broken," Mrs. Maness said. "I have one at home that I made a couple of years ago."

She explained that the bread dough items are baked for a long time and are constantly basted with eggs and water while they are baking. Also, an application of shellac helps to preserve the items.

Among the bread dough items featured at the festival were Christmas tree decorations of various sizes and designs, several wall plaques including bread dough frames containing small mirrors, and Christmas wreaths.

Other items being sold included herbs, spices, sauces and canned goods "for the gourmet cook;" denim chef aprons decorated with colorful appliques, patch pockets or lace; wicker baskets, quilted sewing bags, small, handcrafted pillows and herb wreaths and table arrangements.

Money earned from the festival will be used for the conservation of art collections at Sheldon Gallery.

Co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. Ted Andros and Mrs. Robert Burton.

Nebraska Lawmen Elect Pontine President At Confab

Norfolk (AP) — The Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Assocation wrapped up its three-day, 81st annual convention-conference Tuesday with the election of a new slate of officers.

Clay County Sheriff Lloyd Pontine was elected president of the group, succeeding Wayne County Sheriff Don Weible.

Douglas County Sheriff Ted Janing was elected first vice president.

Other officers include: Holt County Sheriff Charles Fox, second vice president; Dawes County Sheriff Lester Jensen, third vice president; Merrick County Sheriff Dan Schneiderheinz, fourth vice president, and Jefferson County Sheriff Frank Knocke was re-elected as the group's secretary-treasurer.

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas addressed the group during a Monday night banquet, telling the estimated 300 persons in attendance that law enforcement officers must seek public support for their work.

Douglas stressed the importance of public opinion in law enforcement work, and said officers should make every effort to provide the public with information concerning their work.

"We've turned the corner of public opinon, but we still have a long road ahead," Douglas told the gathering.

SeTech To Analyze Lincoln Campus Building Needs

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Milford — The Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area Board voted unanimously Tuesday to analyze current, projected and potential Lincoln campus programs and building needs to suit them.

SeTech President Robert S. Eicher stressed that the go-ahead for Lincoln campus Director David Buettner contains "no suggestion" of building a new, consolidated campus.

Dr. Buettner agreed, saying the study will simply be a tool. "It's not going to answer your question for you, what your solution will be."

There's "no question" that the Lincoln educational programs are "sound," Buettner said, but they're "plagued" by space problems.

2 Classes Same Place

For example, he said two classes inadvertently occupying the same space simultaneously "shouldn't occur." The campus leases space, often unsuitable for some SeTech training, throughout Lincoln.

"It's a 10 to 15-minute trip from any program to the other," with few exceptions, Buettner said.

Thus, "sometimes we're skipping a very important part of the training program, simply because we don't have the facilities to do it" properly, he said. A teaching and training program has "got to be very concrete" instead.

Buettner called the study only a first step that will examine "manageable chunks" of where the campus is heading. He's "not assuming" the recommendation will favor new building or remodeling old ones.

Board member Lloyd Wright of Reynolds predicted, "There is going to be some very strong opposition to (building) a Lincoln Campus, in the coming Legislature." Wright added, "Especially as long as Pershing (College) is a factor."

Opposition Strong

SeTech has run into fierce opposition in trying to acquire defunct Pershing. Wright said at least one state senator would have Lincolnites go to the Beatrice campus for voctech training, instead of beefing up the Lincoln campus.

That stems from some lawmakers' objections to the Metropolitan Technical Community College competing with NU's Omaha campus, Wright said. Senators are also complaining about community college use of the local one-mill levy, said Ted Doyle of Fairbury.

Eicher said SeTech has established "credibility" for using construction tax revenues. Board Chairman Robert Wekesser of Lincoln declared SeTech has been "tight-fisted" and that there's "more responsibility in this board than there is in that state Legislature."

Most In Lincoln

Eicher said the "greatest percentage" of the building fund "is going to have to be spent in Lincoln," a position the board took earlier, pending rejection of Pershing.

Buettner said his study of needs should be ready for board consideration by March or April. He said he will involve Lincoln campus faculty and students, but the board will be responsible to make compromises or adopt alternatives, also intended to coincide with occupational requirements for graduates.

Buettner will lead the study team of board members Betty Schlaphoff of Waverly and Earl Kraft of Lincoln, the campus instruction coordinator and a staff represenative.

Space requirements, said Wekesser, should examine "some unneeded things or things we could be doing a different way," to avoid duplication of NU and SeTech Fairbury and Milford campus programs. Buettner said that's negligible.

Enough Delay

Vice Chairman G. Alan Dunlap of Milford said SeTech has "procrastinated enough" on Lincoln facilities. The board 11 months ago endorsed building a consolidated campus

Eicher said any such decision must meet specific college-wide objectives. The board operates under governing policies it has never formally sanctioned. Goals are being developed, with the first summary development scheduled next month.

In other business, the board:

—Split informally on the practice of awarding athletic scholarships, but will decide in December on a policy to award those and academic scholarships to SeTech students

—Heard Eicher announce the Fairbury campus will take a new nursing class in March, reversing an earlier position. He said all recent graduates have passed the state licensing exam

—Met in closed session to discuss an accreditation team report on the Fairbury campus. Eicher said recommendations on accreditation will be made public about Dec 9.

PR Director At SeTech Cooley Resigns Position

C.W. (Bill) Cooley, director of public information for the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area, announced his resignation Wednesday, effective Dec. 31.

Cooley, 30, of 441 N. 75th, has held the SeTech post since October 1973. He will remain in Lincoln as a corporation member and sales representative for a wholesale lighting company.

Colley was administrative assistant to former Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf before joining the SeTech staff, serving the Fairbury, Lincoln and Milford campuses and the 15-county area.

A Lincoln native, Cooley is a 1963 graduate of defunct University High School, and obtained a journalism degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in 1971.

Cooley serves as chairman of the Lincoln Drug Commission. Married with three children, he is a member of the Naval Reserves Seabees and the First Baptist Church Board of Deacons.

Caracas, Venezuela (UPI) — Funeral homes in the federal district must be located at least 500 feet from hospitals.

Funds Asked For Tribute To Welsh

The new Southeast Community College Educational Foundation has kicked off a three-year, $60,000 fund drive to establish a lasting memorial to Lowell A. Welsh.

Milford campus Director Robert Klabenes, who succeeded Welsh, said the Lowell A. Welsh Fund within the foundation will pay tribute to teh man who "paved the way for postsecondary vocational education in Nebraska."

Welsh died last June. For 28 years, he headed what was formerly called the Nebraska Vocational Technical School at Milford.

Dr. Klabenes said the fund will provide student scholarships and loans. At first, he said, foundation officials hope to offer one tuition scholarship per program, or about 20 at Milford. The awards will be made based on ability and need.

"A high percentage of our enrollment," Klabenes said, consists of students whose parents are farmers. "Many of them can't qualify for typical federal financial aid programs," although they need some aid because their assets are tied up.

Klabenes, foundation president, said the board also intends to use contributions to improve a wide variety of educational services for students.

The Lincoln business and industry drive has begun, to be followed by one in Omaha and another in outstate communities, Klabenes said. The foundation is also conducting a separate mail solicitation from about 5,000 alumni.

Other foundation directors are:

Vice President Howard R. Mannschreck, of Fairbury, former Southeast Community College (SCC) board member, Secretary-Treasurer Richard Safarik, of Lincoln, SCC business manager; Lindell Churchill, of Fort Collins, Colo., retired Milford instructor; G. Alan Dunlap, of Milford, current SCC board member; Robert S. Eicher, of Lincoln, SCC area president; Stanley Matzke Jr., of Lincoln, State Department of Administrative Services director; Robert A. Wekesser, of Lincoln, SCC board chairman; Douglas L. Curry, foundation attorney.

Foundation board members are unpaid.

Lincoln Youth Shot In Leg Reported 'Fair'

A Lincoln youth shot in the leg late Monday afternoon was reported in fair condition at Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday evening.

Michael Morrison, 13, of 4211 N. 11th, was shot when a companion's gun discharged after the boys had finished hunting in a field north of town. He was taken to the hospital by his mother who had come to give the group a ride home, according to sheriff's officers who investigated the incident.

Shooting Victim Listed As 'Good'

A Lincoln man who was shot accidentally at his home last Wednesday was reported in good condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital Tuesday night.

The man, Dan Linderman, 20, of 3227 S. 40th, was shot in the abdomen, police said.

Executive Board OKs Study Of Public Power

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

On a 6-3 vote, the Legislative Council's executive board Tuesday authorized a $30,000 study of major public power district rates and operations.

The review of Nebraska Public Power District and Omaha Public Power District will be undertaken by O'Brien and Gere Engineers, Inc., of Syracuse, N.Y.

Executive Board Chairman Eugene Mahoney of Omaha cautioned senators not to approve the contract in view of approaching legislative budgetary problems.

The Legislature must cut $85,000 from its current internal budget in order to institute the 3% cut proposed by Gov. J. James Exon and approved, in part, by this month's special legislative session.

"I don't know where to start cutting," Mahoney said.

Not The Place

But Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook, the sparkplug behind the public power rate survey, said that project was not the place to start slicing.

Nebraskans may rightfully protest "if the Legislature sits on its hands" and does not study the reasonableness of what may be a 30% to 50% electric rate increase for most citizens next year, Lewis said.

"We have an obligation to take a close look at that."

Mahoney warned that a legislative study of public power rates could "jeopardize" the standing of the districts in the bond market, leading to higher interest rates and additional costs for the ratepayers.

'Favorite Argument'

"I've heard that bogeyman ever since I've been down here," Lewis said. "That's one of their favorite arguments" against legislative action.

Voting with Lewis to approve the contract with the New York engineering firm were Sens. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, Loran Schmit of Bellwood, Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, John Cavanaugh III of Omaha and Dennis Rasmussen of Scotia.

Joining Mahoney in dissent were Sens. Jules Burbach of Hartington and John Savage of Omaha.

Savage said the Legislature could not buy "a valid rate study" for $30,000.

Noting that the proposed study had already been scaled down to fit a $30,000 price tag, Burbach suggested that the 1976 Legislature reconsider the issue and provide additional funding, if it is needed to complete the survey.

O'Brien and Gere had placed a $48,000 price tag on the original request prepared by the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

First Phase Only

"We then tailored the request to meet the $30,000 figure," Lewis said. That funding could complete the first phase of the survey, he noted, with additional money required later if the initial results point toward the need for further study.

Kelly said the two major power districts now have debts which total $2 billion.

Any organization which is publicly owned and which incurs such obligations should be able to stand the test of legislative scrutiny, he said.

Mahoney said he will offer the board at a later date some suggestions on how to reduce legislative spending.

A reduction in staff numbers is one option.

Mahoney is encouraging savings in travel expenditures by reducing the number of legislative study committee hearings scheduled prior to next January's regular session.

Women, Young Offenders Treated Better By County

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Although the procedures for dealing with juvenile and female offenders in Lancaster County aren't perfect, they are superior to those in many other cities, agreed panel members participating in a Student Y-sponsored Women/Speak at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Tuesday.

Panel members included Karen DeBrown. volunteer coordinator for Volunteers in Probation; Pat Wall, director of St. Monica's Home for Women; Marti Barnhouse, juvenile probation officer and Diane Bloss, deputy county attorney.

In other cities, it is not unusual for juvenile offenders literally to "disappear" in the corrections system, Ms. Barnhouse said.

The effects of sex role stereotyping — and the impact it has on the treatment of female offenders — is also more prevalent in other areas, Ms. DeBrown added, explaining that judges may treat females who come before them differently than they do males.

She also said she has heard of cases in other states involving frequently unnecessary detention of juveniles.

Programs such as those offered by Volunteers in Probation (which provides help for juveniles on probation) and the Lincoln Learning Center came in for praise from panel members.

Describing Volunteers in Probation as "an attempt at a community-based way of working with kids who have problems," Ms. DeBrown went on to say that the group's program "supplements existing court services."

Ms. Barnhouse also emphasized the importance of community-based rather than training school solutions to juvenile problems.

"We are there to help the youth," she said of the juvenile court probation program, although sometimes "parents . . . want us to be the punishers."

Ms. Wall said she is troubled by the fact that the female offender has "ceased to be regarded as a person with dependent needs." She said her experience has shown that women will often "escape" into pregnancy, drugs, etc. as a means of ensuring that she will be cared for.

"We need to look at their needs," she continued. "When a woman 'escapes' . . . she is looking for structure, and program and direction." The fact that these are not always available should be "faced up to" by those working in corrections, she said.

Police Raiders Hit 'Bookie' Operations

Lincoln police arrested three people and seized more than $3,500 and alleged "bookie" records in raids on two Lincoln homes Monday night.

Police said they received about 25 phone calls at one home while the house was being searched. Police reports said a detective took eight bets, all for the Monday night football game.

Six of the people bet on Buffalo to beat Cincinnati, according to police reports. The other two bet on Cincinnati. Cincinnati won 33-24.

Police said they found about $3,141 at one home hidden beneath a sewing machine. The other $500 was found in a billfold of one of the arrested men.

John J. Brtek, 30, and Karen L. Brtek, 31, both of 3824 N.W. 51st, were charged with keeping a gambling room. John Brtek was also charged with being a common gambler.

Tosh Shiba, 46, of 4000 S. 56th, Apt. 388 C, was also charged with keeping a gambling room. All three pleaded innocent to the misdemeanor charge. Trial for all three was set for Dec. 9.

ITT Wants Out Of Parking Biz At Municipal Airport, Sort Of

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The corporate machinations of the huge International Telephone and Telegraph Co. produced befuddlement Tuesday at a meeting of the Lincoln Airport Authority.

The far-flung corporation has informed the board it wants to get out of the business of parking cars at the Lincoln airport.

"Who knows what makes a big corporation tick?" attorney Chauncey Barney responded when questioned on the move, to which the board later tentatively agreed.

Barney speculated that since ITT "has managed to blunder around and acquire such a horrible reputation" it might be trying "to become less visible."

No Connection

Specifically, what is being asked is that APCOA, Inc., now a division of ITT, be allowed to continue operating the pay parking lots at the airport, but on its own, with no connection with ITT.

Barney noted that the contract with the company provides $1 million in revenue to the authority over a 10-year period.

"It's an integral part of our financial planning," Barney said. He noted that one of the reasons the authority selected APCOA from other bidders was that the company was affiliated with ITT.

Barney said he talked with representatives of APCOA by phone and was informed the company had $11 million in assets and long-term debts of $5.5 million. "It looks like a stable operation," he said.

'Biggest, Best'

"It's by far the biggest and best parking operation in the country," he told the board.

The board tentatively agreed to the move after the company provided the authority with a written financial statement verifying information given over the phone.

On another matter the board agreed to proceed with an arrangement with a private company to install vending machines at the airport for renting baggage carts to carry luggage to and from the parking lots.

There apparently is not enough traffic at the airport to support a "skycap." Board members have been searching for a way to help airline passengers carry their luggage to and from the airport terminal.

Authority executive director Rollie Harr told the board that Smarte Carte, Inc., of White Bear Lake, Minn., has installed similar vending machines in large airports.

Experiment

Harr told the board the company may decide to install the carts in Lincoln as an experiment to see if they will pay at a smaller airport.

The board also agreed to increase from two cents to three cents the amount charged for gasoline sold to private aircraft at the airport by commercial aviation facilities such as Duncan Aviation.

Bob Duncan, owner of Duncan Aviation, opposed the move, stating that he would be forced to charge more for gasoline because of the increased tax, and that he had advertised at the lower rate.

Because of the lower rate, he argued, he has been able to double his business, which in turn doubled the revenue paid to the authority.

Discussion Set On Hemophilia

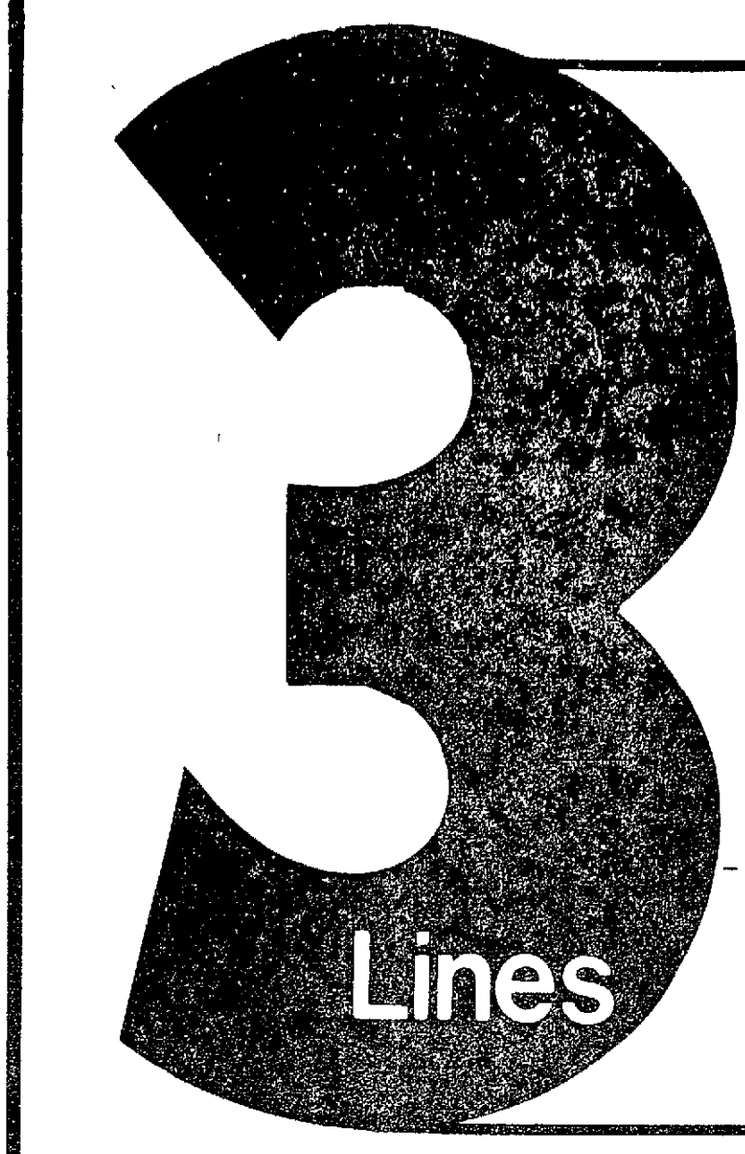

Parents of hemophiliacs are holding an open meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the C. Y. Thompson Library on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus.

Parents, adult hemophiliacs and interested persons are invited to a roundtable discussion with Mrs. Patty Clark, administrator of the Hemophiliac Foundation Inc. in Denver, formerly the Rocky Mountain chapter of the National Hemophiliac Foundation.

Special Ed Advisors For Broader Programs

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Special Education Advisory Council indicated support Tuesday for broadened special education programs which would serve the handicapped from birth to age 21.

Council members said handicapped people under age 5 and over age 18 need the programs but only receive them now if they are funded locally.

"What we need is early identification and early programs," former State Sen. David Stahmer, initiator of the state special education bill (LB403), in 1973, told the council.

State law makes handicapped persons between 5 and 18 years old eligible for state-aided programs. Schools may offer programs for preschoolers and 18- to 21-year-olds but must finance them themselves.

The advisory council asked the State Department of Education's staff to report on state and federal aid requirements and possible sources of funding before the council makes a recommendation to the State Board of Education.

The council was established to identify and recommend solutions to problems with the implementation of LB403.

Some council members said pre-school programs should remain locally supported.

Council co-chairman Don Stroh, Millard school superintendent, said state-supported preschool programs for the handicapped might prompt parents of nonhandicapped children to seek state-financed preschool education for them.

An amendment is needed to allow preschool programs for the handicapped without requiring them for all children, he said.

In other action, the council directed the Education Department's staff to prepare a proposal for increasing budget accuracy by basing state special education payments on the previous year's expenses.

Payments now are made during the year based on estimates from the school districts.

If a district underestimates its expenses, the necessary state funds will be unavailable, council members said. In addition, when handicapped students transfer to other districts, the state funds do not go with them, they said.

The council also directed the department's staff to list alternatives to the present method of paying for initial diagnosis of handicapped children.

State law requires all special education students to have been diagnosed as handicapped. School districts are required to pay for that initial testing.

Stroh said diagnosis is part of each distgrict's special education program and so should be paid for by the state.

Stahmer said diagnosising everyone at state expense "would be so expensive financially that we couldn't support it." He suggested that the state only pay for the initial testing of children accepted into a special education program.

The council also voted to recommend to State Education Commissioner Anne Campbell that the Legislature, the attorney general, those working on a Beatrice State Home settlement and others advise it as it discusses special education probelms.

Governor To Shift Funds For Retarded

Gov. J.J. Exon said Tuesday he would shift funds in the Department of Public Institutions so that pre-school services for the mentally retarded would not have to be cut.

He said the funds could be shifted without a deficit appropriation.

Exon reaffirmed his position that community mental retardation programs should live within their budgets.

He said the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation was able to cut 25 staff members without reducing services.

Exon also praised the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation for taking similar actions to "bring their costs within appropriated amounts."

"I am certainly pleased to see that the elected county commissioners of this state are putting forth strong effort to bring these programs into control and within existing resources," the governor said.

"I must re-emphasize, however, that I cannot agree to any deficit spending in this area now."

Too Clean?

Pittsburgh (AP) — Federal clean air standards could make it practically impossible for industry to expand in areas where it now operates, according to U.S. Steel Chairman Edgar B. Speer.

Baldwin's Play Heads Festival

A play by a University of Nebraska-Lincoln drama professor will headline a bicentennial festival of American plays in New York City.

Prof. Joseph Baldwin's play, "A Deed from the King of Spain," will begin the Bicentennial Festival of American Plays with American Actors at the American Center for Stanislavski Theatre Art (ACSTA).

This is the second year the ACSTA has included Baldwin's play in its repertoire. Last year's performance was acclaimed by the critics, with the New York Times' Howard Thompson writing the play "simmers like a Chekhovian chamber work, then boils into a darkly sardonic symphony."

The play will be presented Nov. 21-23, 28-30, Dec. 5-7, 12-14, and 19-21 in the Greenwich Mews Theatre, at 141 W. 13th. St.

Exon 'Shocked' At Deaths Of Youths On State Roads

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday said he is shocked and concerned that 56% of the fatal accidents in Nebraska since Oct. 1 have involved persons between the ages of 16 and 25.

He said he has ordered the governor's Highway Safety Advisory Committee "to initiate plans that will effectively stop the senseless killing of our Nebraska youth."

Exon said, "Rural Nebraska roads, young drivers not wearing safety belts, speeding and continued alcohol involvement are the major contributing factors to these shocking statistics."

He requested that all young persons in Nebraska exercise greater diligence and drive responsibly.

The advisory committee is composed of officials from agencies responsible for the day-today operation of Nebraska's highway safety programs.

Ex-State Treasurer Heintze Dies

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services for former State Treasurer Frank B. Heintze will be held here Thursday afternoon.

Heintze, 80, died Monday in a local hospital after suffering a heart attack at his home, according to a family spokesman. However, the spokesman said Heintze had been ill for several weeks.

An Omaha native, Heintze worked in the state treasurer's office from 1943 to 1955, spending eight years as deputy state treasurer and four years as state treasurer.

Survivors include his widow, Beatrice, two daughters, one brother, 11 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Burial will be in the Forest Lawn Cemetery.
